YOUNGSTER DIED SUDDENLY; HEART ATTACK CAUSE

Mrs. Mary Agnes Davis Prominent Trenton Woman Succumbed Yesterday

Trenton, Jan. 26 (by Special Correspondent)—Playing and throwing snowballs with her little friends in front of her parent's home in Trenton late yesterday afternoon, eleven year old Mary Rita Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Burns, was called into supper by her mother. She ran to the verandah of her home and was just climbing up the verandah steps when she slowly toppled over. Her mother rushed down and picked her, but the child succumbed in her arms. A weak heart was given as the cause of her decease. Besides her parents she leaves two brothers, Donald and Harold, both at home.

A case that baffled doctors of Trenton came to a sudden end yesterday when Mrs. Mary Agnes Davis, wife of Cecil Davis, twenty-five years of age, died of an enlargement of the heart. The heart was greatly enlarged and when it burst it is floated by Trenton physicians, the report could be heard all over the house. Mrs. Davis was a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

LAWYER IS GIVEN TWO YEAR TERM

BRANTFORD, Jan. 26.— Two years less a day in the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph, was the sentence passed on Saturday afternoon by Judge Hardy on W. McEwan, local barrister who pleaded guilty to a charge of theft and four charges of conversion of the funds of clients. A fifth charge of conversion was traversed.

No evidence was taken. The charges involved a total of about $6,000. Previous to the lawyer's plea of guilty the McEwen business had been placed in bankruptcy to protect the assets for the creditors, the statement filed show ing a surplus of assets over liabilities some $40,000 of the assets claimed is in land here, which may p rove a fron en asset.

Counsel and judge alike spoke with regret of the predicament of the accused.

Automobile accidents has increased 500 per cent since 1913, whereas accidents in general have decreased 5 per cent.

TWENTY-THREE MEN TAKEN ON TODAY

In all twenty-three men were taken on work this morning on the west side sewer operations. A smaller shift than usual was necessary to be taken on in exchange for the shift which has been at work, because the operations here run into rock on the sewer on the continuation of Bridge Street west to the fair ground entrance. The work on Ridley Avenue sewer north from Bridge Street was started today.

FIRE DESTROYED WINNIPEG BLOCK

$500,000 Damage When Blaze Gutted Six-Storey Office Building

WINNIPEG, Jan. 26.—In the heart of Winnipeg downtown business section, fire early this morning razed four close to five hours, destroying the Avenue Block, a six-story office structure and causing damage estimated at about $500,000.

Firemen battled the blaze in freezing weather. Companies from all sections of the city answered the early morning call and toiled till long after daybreak before the flames were dead. It was believed the fire broke out in Allan's shoe store about 4 o'clock.

Flames shot up the elevator shaft, gutting the top three floors, devoted to offices. Firefighters were successful in checking the blaze from below and damage on the second and third floors were confined to that caused by water and smoke. Stocks in retail stores in the lower Portage Avenue building were completely wiped out. Cause of the fire had not been determined last night.

CHIEF FOUGHT FIRE IN HIS OWN HOUSE

Fulton, Mo., Jan. 24 —"A fire, I'll bet anything. Fire Chief Harry Duncan, as he got out of bed to answer the telephone in his home.

"Your house is on fire," said the party on the other end of the telephone.

By that time the trucks were pulling up in front of the Duncan home. The chief stirred himself as befitting his position and executable to direct the firemen.

Standard sizes for men's ready-made clothing are increasing; today thirty-eight inch chest is quite usual, while thirty-six inches was the standard twelve years ago.

Events Move Swiftly In Lives of Three Councillors

Events will move swiftly today and two tomorrow in the lives of three members of the county council of Hastings. Tomorrow night, as the get-together banquet of the City Council and Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Quinte there will be three guests, the warden of Hastings who is to be elected tomorrow afternoon, and the reeve and deputy reeve of Rungarford township who are being elected today to fill vacancies in the township council.

It is generally conceded that Chas. Thompson, reeve of Madoc township will be chosen warden but he has to be elected, he has to prepare a speech immediately after the opening of the county council for the council and then he will e expected to speak tomorrow night at the banquet. Whom he will be expected to speak today is of course problematical.

DEATH HAD NO TERROR FOR THIS CANINE WHO GAVE THE WOULD BE SLAYERS THE DIRTIEST OF LAUGHS

J. H. Sutcliffe is Named President of Trenton Horticultural Society

TRENTON, Jan. 26.—No pains are being spared by the pupils of the Trenton High School in the preparations for their annual Valentine Dance. The following committees have been appointed with W. P. Smith, the Principal a member, ex-officio:

Invitations—Mr. H. Stickwood, E. Baldson, S. Donaldson, W. Chambers, M. Metzler; Music—Miss M. Goodsell, M. Shannon, Mr. VanAllen, D. Celna, B. Miller, E. Gauthier; Decorations—Miss Little, Miss Hermiston, M. McColl, J. Taylor, A. Chandler; Refreshments—Miss E. Farley, P. Avery M. Aylsworth, G. Johnson, Edna Ash.

The dimension of canine fame has always been associated with those members of the cat family, but ac incident has come to light here which would lead to the assumption that dogs, also, possess this attribute: but what particularit one of the nine lives was involved is yet to be determined.

A pet dog owned by Mr. J. Lewis has been suffering from some internal trouble and no relief could seemingly be affected. It was decided that the animal be destroyed. Because of sentimental reasons, Mr. Lewis did not wish to do the deed himself, but took the dog to Dr. R. C. Tilus, local veterinary. This was in the morning. Between eleven and twelve o'clock that evening, Dr. Tilus called Mr. Lewis by 'phone when the following conversation is said to have taken place:

"This is Lewis speaking. What did you do about the dog?"

"Why! Put it in a box and administered chloroform. I threw the dead animal out on the snow in the back yard tonight. Sweet will take the thing to the nuisance-ground tomorrow and bury it."

"Yes, he will replied Mr. Lewis. "The dog is here in the house now. Come home about ten. And moreover, he'll stay here until he dies a natural death."

Mr. J. A. Sutcliffe was elected President of the Trenton Horticultural Society with Messrs. E. E. Wiggins and C. VivaAlaine, 1st and 2nd vice respectively; Treasurer, G. A. Rose; Auditors, S. Langdon and T. W. Jarrett, Directors—Mrs. O. A. Sprung, Mrs. S. Hooey, Miss Connolly, Miss E. Payne, E. A. Simmons, R. A. McQuade, E. L. Fraser, F. W. Hubbard, J. McKenzie and Mrs. H. Gray.

The funeral of the late Edward Wilson, who passed away at his home in his old age of 85, was held here on Saturday afternoon from the St. George's Church. Interment was at Deseronto. Two daughters, both at home, mourn the loss of a dear parent.

Mrs. W. G. Perks and family leave this week for Hamilton, where her husband is engaged. Mr. Perks was formerly town engineer here.

Mrs. Hugo Bohan, Toronto, is visiting his mother, Charlie street.

Miss Mildred Bailey, Detroit, Mich. is spending a few days with her parents Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bailey.

CASHIER LOST LIFE IN HOLD-UP OF TAXI STAND

Montreal, Jan. 26 — His refusal to hand over the key of the cashier's office of the De Luxe Cab Co., cost Wm. Reed, 37, cashier, his life, but the hold up man who shot him down was unable to get at the $18,000 in cash the office contained. The hold-up took place early today and the bandit escaped after sending the fatal bullet through Reed's breast.

WAS STRUCK BY UNKNOWN DRIVER

Alvin Franks Seriously Injured by Motor Car Which was Demolished

Peterboro, Jan. 26—Alvin Franks of Emily Township was seriously injured last night on the Peterboro-Lindsay Highway when a hit-and-run motorist struck his cutter. Franks was thrown out and his skull was fractured, while the horse was so badly hurt that it had to be shot.

Franks had only pulled out onto the road when the car crashed into him, smashing the cutter and hurling the horse into the ditch. The hit-and-run man was found 125 feet ahead of the cutter.

The car did not stop, but later a wrecked machine was found deserted six miles from Lindsay. It was the property of a Peterboro man, and had been stolen. There is no clue as to the identity of the driver.

DRIVER PINNED BENEATH TRUCK

Kingston, Jan. 26—Harvey J. L. Linsen of Montreal, was seriously injured here yesterday when the truck he was driving crashed into a gasoline pump at Oakwood. Robert Jones of Montreal, owner of the truck, also suffered injuries.

The truck was loaded with advertising and drug supplies and at Oakwood it skidded, crashing into the pump. The driver, Linsen, was pinned under some of the cases and the truck when the gasoline poured out. But this was extinguished and the man rescued. He was taken to the General Hospital where it was found he had a fractured pelvis, a broken arm and c dislocated hip. Emare suffered a bruised knee.

The truck was on the way to Toronto, when the accident occurred.

POST CATCHES BUSY

Two female police pups are now in custody in the dog pound and if anyone has lost a dog of this breed, it will be better at the home of Thos. Thwaite, the dog catcher. Both the pups were captured today running at large and without the proper tag on them. Both the pups are well bred and if not called for in the specified time of three days they will be destroyed. If the dogs are not claimed and anyone wishes a family dog and a real pet, they can obtain the same from the dog catcher after purchasing the required dog tag. Incidentally the dog tags for the coming year can now be obtained from the police station and the dog owners are notified to procure their tags early for a round up is going to be made of all dogs running at large without the required licenses.

WON POULTRY PRIZES

At least one Belleville exhibitor at the recent poultry show held in Picton was decidedly successful. Charles Saunders of 82 Baldwin Street, Belleville, took every prize in the light Brahma class, and in going so he won the Carter Cup, best poultry cup in Central Ontario, for the third time. He is now allowed to keep it for good, but no cup is given to the exhibitor with the best ten birds of any variety in the show. Mr. Saunders also had the best exhibition pen in the whole and so carried off the Keogh Cup. He had thirty birds entered altogether.

At the Picton show he had 1st hen, 1 st cock, 1st pullet and 1st young pen. At the Royal he had 1st and 3rd cockerel, 1st and 2nd pullet, 2nd hen and 2nd and 3rd cock. This is a splendid showing as competition was keen at both places.

In Picton this week he had 1st and 2nd cock, 1st and 2nd hen, 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th cockerel, 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th pullet, 1st young and 1st old pens.

MUST GET PLATES

Traffic Officer W. O. Frink and Chief Kidd informed the press today that February 1st would be the last day of grace for motor car owners to secure their license for cars for the coming year, and also the renewal of their driver's permit. After this date there will be no warning, but a summons to appear in police court will be issued, and that will mean the price of the license rather high. The license plates are now available at 1 Bridge street east, and motor car owners should see that their cars are equipped with the 1931 plates at the earliest opportunity.

ENTERS CIVIL ACTION

A civil action of unstated damages has been entered in the Supreme Court against Labatt's brewery of London, by E. T. Hinchcliffe. This action is the result of a motor accident near Deseronto in which the car of Hinchcliffe was badly damaged and some of the occupants of the car injured. The civil action will be fought on the question of right of way. Hinchcliffe was found not guilty of criminal negligence nor reckless operation of his car nor was the driver of the brewery truck, but Judge Madden in summing up against the driver of the truck stated that at no time before or at the time of the accident did Hinchcliffe interfere with the right of way of the truck.

Ruling Grand Master of Grand Lodge, W.S. Herrington, K.C., D.C.M., of Kingston, was among other Grand Lodge officers present.

CAUGHT SHOP-LIFTING

A married woman was arrested in Loblaw's groceteria on Saturday night caught in the act of "shop-lifting" and their likely will be a charge of theft laid in the matter. Mr. George Purdy, the manager of the store, received information from one of the clerks that the woman was seen putting some tins in the pocket of a fur coat. Mr. Purdye then watched her for some time and saw her put a tin of sardines in the inside pocket of her fur coat. He accosted her and took her to the office, explaining the cause and the woman produced four tins of articles taken from the store. The police were notified and she was taken to the police station, later to be released. There has been considerable "shop-lifting" in the various groceterias and chain stores in the city and the police are determined to stop these acts of theft.

DEFENDS YOUTH OF PRESENT DAY

Rev. C. E. Clarke Points Out Need of Better Equipment

That the youth of today is as sturdy and as sound as the youth of any age in past history was Gee opinion expressed by the Rev. C. E. Clarke, preaching at Christ Church on Sunday evening in an address of particular importance to the rising generation. He said that in all ages the older generation looked upon the rising boys and girls as inferior to their parents and as unlikely to bear up against the tasks and problems of life. Mention was made of the discovery of an inscription thousands of years old in which reference was made to the awful youth of that day. Classic writers of the ancient world also repeated the same burden of the blase young generation. "

But declared Mr. Clarke, humanity in the mass is rather a fixed quantity as regards quality and stubbornness. Changes in humanity from century to century are not great.

The present age Mr. Clarke thinks the greatest in the history of the world. It has seen the motorcar come, the telephone and telegraph, the radio and the airplane.

Certain of the features of the present age were mentioned by Mr. Clarke who directed the attention of the young people to the new and attendant risks. This is an age of speed, when the young will drive mechanical stuff up to sixty miles an hour in a motorcar. This he contrasted with the simple pleasures of the young of a generation ago, when walks were rare and life moved less rapidly. This also is an age of distraction which will not permit man or woman, boy or girl to rest a moment which prevents their taking their leisure leisurely. Business demands are heavier, the cry is for more and more production with consequent reduction in the overhead charges. This is the story of an age which does not know how to spend its leisure, for no art has had as much leisure as the present age. Mr. Clarke mentioned that one had but to speak one moment of the people to find that this is a nervous age and this is true of so many of the people today.

This is a day of loose thinking. Magazine articles carry articles which have not the proof of age. On the marriage question opinions are expressed that it is not as serious a matter that it was, and that things which have been stressed are not as essential as they have been thought to be, but Mr. Clarke reasoned forward that when a church surrounded the marriage rite with a sacrament, and the church and society all through the ages looked upon marriage as one of the most important facts of life, readers of today may rest assured that it has the support of the best thought.

The danger of this age of distraction, speed, and loose thinking is that sometimes it leads the young unalert to his sorrow.

Mr. Clarke brought a challenge to the youth of today to face the extra demand of the world. He said that the world asked more of the rising generation and the present generation of the middle-aged knew nothing as of the heavy demands that were facing the boys and girls today. This means that the young must be more thoroughly equipped to meet the demand of life. He cited how a challenge can be met and accepted so as to bring the best results. He had asked a few why it was that Jewish children, studying in schools with Gentiles in this country usually surpassed the Gentiles in their studies. The Jews reply was that the Jewish children do not more clever, but that they felt they were a minority and that they would have to be more thoroughly fitted if a position in society, and the result was that they endeavour to excel to offset this handicap. The same opportunity faces the young people today from a much greater task and must rise to the challenge.

How this was to be brought about was next dealt with. This might be a fear of being overrun in the race of life, but one element in life stands supreme in guaranteeing life, success

Married 50 Years

An event of interest on Saturday was the 50th wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Scott. They were married on January 24th, 1871, at the Methodist parsonage, Picton, by Rev. John Betts, pastor of the church at that time.

Mr. Scott spent some time at Carrying Place, being engaged in the blacksmithing business. Mr. and Mrs. Scott have resided in Picton for some years and have many friends who join in extending best wishes and hearty congratulations.

The Kiwanis Club held a Karnival at the rink on Friday night for the children of the town and a large number spent a happy evening. There were many prizes given, not only for costumes but for dancing. This is an annual event and one eagerly looked forward to by the children of the town and district.

Y'S MEN TACKLE NAPANEE SQUAD IN CAGE BATTLE

Variety of Sports Events Will be Staged at Local Gymnasium

Those fans who like variety in the way of athletic entertainment may get just what they want by attending the programme slated for this coming Wednesday evening at the Y.M.C.A. Without doubt this should be one of the best lineup of attractions that will take place in the Campbell Street institution this winter. In addition to a league basketball game at which the Y's Men will be hosts to the Napanee quint, there will be exhibition games of badminton, both singles and doubles and for extra good measure, several boxing bouts, in which some of the best local mit artists will participate.

Last year the Napanee representatives in the Eastern Ontario Amateur Basketball Association were not quite as strong as the other teams which constituted the group but this was undoubtedly due to the fact that considerable good available talent in the Eastern town was split up amongst two opposing camps which were more or less at loggerheads with each other. This year the two groups have ironed out their differences and combined their forces with highly satisfactory results judging from their splendid showing against the strong Kingston Y.M.C.A. team. However, the Y's Men and their supporters are of the opinion they can put over a win at the expense of the Easterners providing the Club Men play up to the form they are capable of displaying. With two wins and no losses to their credit already, the "Men of Weir" can attain an enviable position in the league standing by keeping unbroken their string of trim.

Co-operating with the Association in making the evening's programme one of special interest, are a number of the outstanding badminton players of the city who will put on exhibitions of both singles and doubles. Mr. A. H. Ketcheson, one of the outstanding players of the local Badminton Club, is arranging these matches and has already lined up the cream of the local talent for these games.

For those fans who lean towards the science of fisticuffs, Scotty Elms is busy lining up several feature bouts to be put on by members of the local boxing fraternity. Jimmy Parks, who is a member of the Association has offered his services in this connection. A number of the city's outstanding performers will be seen in action in these bouts.

Served question, such a programme as the above should afford the spectators an evening of real entertainment and should the regular two-bit fee will be the maximum contribution required at the door, where, might we ask, can you get more for your money? The programme will begin at sharp eight o'clock with the visiting Napanee players the first to go into action.

On The Sport Trail

Belleville Intermediates are distinctly in the running for section honors and can tie the group tomorrow night by winning from Kingston Frontenacs. Trenton helped the cause along by knocking off King ston in their own ballyhack and will finish do the same thing when the Frontenacs visit Trenton. Belleville and Trenton have finished their series with a win and a tie for Belleville. On tomorrow night's game depends the group and the team is ready to battle till the last gong for a win. Rennard will be in goal with Ingram and Green looking after the defense. The Canning twins and Harold Back will be one starting line with the other line to be chosen after practice tonight. Fans will see in Boyd and MacInnes for Kingston two players that should go a long way in the hockey pastime. Frontenacs are weak in goal and at one position at defence but otherwise they have a smart team.

Practice has been called for every night this week for the seniors in preparation for their game with Queen's on Saturday night. This game was moved on from Friday night to accommodate the Tricolor whose members will be attending a social evening of the University on Friday night. The Cheerios played as good hockey as Queen's did in the last game in Kingston but were not favored with the breaks. The forward line of the locals were outskated in the early stages but there was a reason. Jack Leachman's muscles in the calves of his legs knotted up through receiving hard drives on them, while Mulvihill was struck over his sore shoulder early in the game. Smith had two tough breaks, both of his efforts should have landed goals but the rubber slipped away from his stick on each occasion. There is no doubt the game on Saturday afternoon but clean on Saturday night and Belleville should win by a comfortable margin. The rubber into the net. Alex. Smith was serving a penalty at the time. Then followed some more or less uninteresting play until the Senators evened the count.

It has been said that Hec Kilrea has missed the inspiring presence of Clancy this season, but after ten minutes' play the Senator left winger worked his way down and approached Clancy. The latter swaited him and the close proximity of his former leader seemed to inspire Kilrea. As he closed in on Clancy he shot between the latter's legs and Chabot did not have much of a chance to play the puck. The Leafs had a couple good openings before the end of the period but Connell spoiled them all, once sliding into a shot by Jackson that looked like a certain counter.

OTTAWA BEATEN BY TORONTO 5-2

Toronto, Jan. 26—Turning back the Ottawa Senators by 5 to 2 on Saturday night, the occasion being the second visit of the group tail-enders to the Arena Gardens this season, the Maple Leafs at least held their own in the struggle for a play-off berth in the Canadian section of the National Hockey League. In fact, they improved somewhat as the fourth place Americans dropped a 6 to 1 defeat in Montreal from the Canadiens, but their task of getting into the first three was made somewhat harder. In scoring their third straight win, and at the expense of clubs in their own group the Leafs had much the better of the play but it was not until the last period that they drew away and made the result certain.

The Leafs were weakened by the absence of Bailey, who sustained an injury to his knee in Montreal on Thursday, and their forces were further depleted in the final period when an old injury to Day's knee was aggravated, compelling his retirement, but they held the whip hand throughout, although at times they were somewhat disorganized by the fury of the Senators' attack. The excitement was gradually increased as the game progressed; the first period being a rather dull affair, the second picking up considerable after a poor start, and the third producing lots of action and four goals, one of the latter being Primeau's second of the season. Incidentally, this counter and two assists gave the Senator-Sabre centre six scoring points in the last two games.

Open Scoring as Usual

As usual, Leafs opened the scoring and Clancy inaugurated the attack that produced the first counter against his old club. He rushed and when he crossed the blue line he drove a terrific shot at Connell. The latter turned the rubber into the corner but Blair passed out in front of the goal. Clancy barged through but Stevens laughed up with Connell on the ice and Cottons lipped in to bat the game will not be called until nine-fifteen in order to allow the employees in the stores to attend the pastime.

The Junior Cubs have one more chance to remain in the running for group honors on Wednesday night when they journey to Kingston to take on the Cadets from the Military College. Queen's stayed in the running by defeating R.M.C. on Saturday night by 5-4 but their hardest game is tonight when they tackle the Kingston juniors, who have yet to lose a game in the group. It is the only chance that the Cubs have of getting back in the running that of having one of the other teams in the group knock off Kingston at least once but that appears a large contract. If the Cubs could play as well away from home as they can in their own stamping ground they would be world beaters but apparently they have not the courage when facing an audience that is against them. They have plenty of ability and have been taught the finer points of the game but they can't get going away from home. Probably Wednesday night will be different and they will play back to the form expected of them.

Two curling rinks from this club will journey to Cobourg tomorrow to take part in the District cup competition. The competition is the carry over curling clubs and the two rinks being sent up will take some beating before passing out of the picture. Campbellford, Colborne, Belleville, Oshawa and Cobourg will be the competitors. Wilson and Harden will be the skip of one rink with John Houston lead, C D Tice second stone and Alf Symons last skip; while Percy Pitney will lead the other rink with Sergt. H Storey will be second stone and Ernest and E. E. Orr vice-skip. The first draw is at ten o'clock in the morning and will be a knockout draw.

LINDSAY DEFEAT PORT PERRY CLUB

Lindsay, Jan. 26—With a perfect ice surface to play on and a crowd to cheer them on, Lindsay Vics put on their best exhibition of hockey seen here Saturday night. They literally played the Port Perry Intermediates off their feet to win 3 to 0. The victory gave Vics the round 6 to 3, and sent Coach Markham in the Littlon playoffs, the first game to be played here Monday night.

Port Perry—Goal, Sleighholm at centre, Raines, on the defence and Deshane in goal were standouts.

Deshane made a goal a period and in the first two canton both scores came as the climax of beautiful efforts by Rich, Swingle and Dowson.

The last counter came on a shot by Perer, local defenceman.

Port Perry—Goal, Deshane; defence, Raines and Hall; centre, Sleighholm; wings, Sleighholm and McGregor; subs Sleighholm, Swingle and Dowson.

Lindsay—Goal, MacCrey; defence, Fever and Reeves; centre, Martin; wings, Williams and Rich; subs, Forbert, Crafton and Dancey.

Referee—A. W. Armstrong, Oshawa.

FIRST MUSICAL REVUE IN TOWN

The Midnight Maids, a noted organization comprising 35 people, will come to the Capitol theatre, for one day only, January 30th. Included in this company are some of the most famous musical comedy and vaudeville stars in the country— such name for instance as Lefty Levine, noted Hebrew comedian, Mirian Wakefield, beautiful soubrette, Babette, diminutive and lovely singer and dancer, Florence Oxford, Johanna Slade, Eva Chaffin, Bunny Whitlock, the Lewis Sisters, Paul Workman, Mel Melvin. These are but a few of the names of the noted principals in this production. And directing is Frank Wakefield. There is a chorus of young and lovely ladies, gorgeously costumed; there is colorful scenery, and a host of the most delightful assortment of comedy skits, dances, solo and ensemble, songs that are new, spicy and up to the minute and sure to please.

Hot tunes, clever and intricate dance numbers, ballads—there is it. Not included in this production something to please the entertainment taste of one and all. The seats are going very fast and it looks as if this musical piece will be a sell out before the opening.

OBITUARY

CHARLES CARR

For some time past, secretary of Post 98, local branch of the Canadian Legion, Charles Carr passed away in his 54th year at his home on Front Street, yesterday. Mr. Carr was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carr. He was born in England and had only lived in Belleville for the past six years. He had been in ill-health for some time.

He is survived by his widow and eight daughters, Mrs. H. Hanna, Thurlow township; Mrs. T. Holland, Niagara Falls, N.Y.; Lydia, Ruby and Winnie of Toronto; Ethel and Eunice at home; two sons, Charles, Dartford, Ontario, and Philip of Toronto; one brother, James, of England.

Mr. Carr was a member of St. Thomas church. He served during the war with the 3rd Manchester Regiment as corporal, competent with a hospital on the East Coast, Albert Road, Gleethorps, England.

WELLINGTON JONES

Wellington Jones, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Jones, passed away at his home in Cannilton on Saturday after a brief illness. The deceased was in his 78th year and had lived in Cannilton for twelve years, previous to that residing in Belleville. He is survived by his widow and one half-brother, Judson Kelly. Mf. Jones was a member of Cannilton United Church and also of Eureka Lodge No. 283 and was also a life member of Belleville Lodge No. 81, I.O.O.F.

UNIQUE COURT SCENE IN AUSTRALIAN HOME

(By The Canadian Press)

SYDNEY — A strange court sitting at the foothills of the Penang Mountains near Gosford, New South Wales, is thus described by Sir Sidney Bun: "A white-haired man, frail, but very voluble, clad in trousers and singlet, sitting beside his wife on a bed in a disordered room, giving evidence on oath before a Commissioner occupying a kitchen chair at a deal table; Council balanced on chairs somewhat less reliable at the other end of the table; the Court recorder hoping his kerosene case would not collapse; rain and wind beating upon the rough stone walls of the settler's home among the Warara foothills; storm-water scouring down the ruts the car wheels had made along the bush tracks. This scene proves there is nothing fussy about the Workmen's Compensation Commission.

C. P. Richmond, respondent in a claim for £100 by Norl Dawson for injuries stated to have been suffered while he was working in the bush. He was too ill to come to Court, his doctor certified; so the Court went to him, three miles and a half into the eastern slopes of the Penang Mountains. It heard his evidence among scattered profusion of law and other books, treasured possessions of this man, once a barrister in New Zealand, now growing oranges and vegetables near Gosford.

The case was concluded by the Commission giving an award in favor of the applicant for $15.00 a week from November 30, 1929, to December 24, 1929."

FORTS AND PORTS TIE

Port Arthur, Jan. 26—Port William and Port Arthur seniors played 30 minutes overtime to a 2 to 2 tie here Saturday night in a Thunder Bay Hockey League contest. Seeking to score their second win of the season over the Ports, Port Arthur were unable to solve a sturdy opposition defence. Forts have won six games from the Allan cup finalists of last year.

DETROIT SUFFER DEFEAT AT HANDS OF THE STARS 2-1

Detroit, Jan. 26—Detroit's Olympics ran just a couple of tumbles out of the International League cellar and on their performance at Olympia last night they deserve a clear title to the basement.

Frank Foyston brought a small band of Syracuse Stars here and after accepting a floral piece from well wishers, saw his team take an early lead; lose it and then go out and win in overtime 3 to 1, in a game that was terrible to watch until the Olympics tied the count midway in the third period.

Lloyd "Deed" Klein, who started the season with the Olympics, but who was turned adrift and picked up by the Stars, had a hand in the scoring of both goals for Foyston's team. He took a pass from Bill Holmes, the first one in the opening period and gave Holmes the pass for he tally that broke the deadlock with less than three minutes remaining to be played in the over-time session.

Only Leroy Goldsworthy, "Shrimp" McPherson and Vezina played the brand of hockey that is expected of them. Goldsworthy was worked hard all night and was unfortunate in not having registered at least two goals. McPherson also played steady and can stand hockey, but he had no better luck than his team mates in trying to beat the veteran Paddy Parrell, who was at his best.

CANADIENS VICTORS OVER AMERICANS

Montreal, Jan. 26—The Canadiens zoomed around the husky Americans like a swarm of angry hornets at the Forum Saturday night and with their superior speed and aggressiveness, tied the Amazin' Amerks in knots and throat a 6-1 beating down their throats. Thus the Canucks maintained their perch at the top of the Canadian section of the National Hockey League standing, though Toronto also pulled out a win.

The flashing, hurtling Canadien speedsters bored in on Worters from all angles, while the big hulking Americans were hindered by their very size in the unequal battle. With Howie Morenz used but sparingly due to the back injuries that kept him out of two games, Pete Lepine played a smart game at centre. With him raced Johnny Gagnon, George Mantha and Aurel Joliat, all fast skaters to maintain the blazing pace that was seen from the outset.

With the game under way for a half minutes, Pete Lepine and Gagnon flashed in on Worters, knifed through the defence and Johnny slammed the disc into the net. With a goal behind them the Flying French men were unbeatable." In the second period they smothered all attacks with devastating checking at mid-ice and ran in two goals. Burke and Joliat combined in a dashing play that gave Gus Rivers a chance to score and 15 seconds later Battleship Lepine rushed down the ice like a juggernaut to score unassisted.

Growing Deaf With Head Noises? Try This.

If you are growing hard of hearing, and fear catarrhal deafness, or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears, go to your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint (double strength) and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to take. Anyone who is threatened with catarrhal deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

RadioFans Corner

Reception was freaky last night plenty power for some stations and others were so weak it was difficult to bring them in. Smerio didn't display much volume last night and WLW walked all over it. Hello to bring that station up again but the old interference is putting in an appearance again, got rid of it once and we're making another appeal to the responsible to have a heart and let us have our radio as long as possible, goodness only knows how long that will be now.

Globe Radio Editor says radio conditions haven't been half bad since Christmas and we only look for a change anytime now when it will become very difficult to bring in stations at any great distance, well let it come we've had plenty practice one way or another.

Tried to fish for Little Jack Little yesterday afternoon but WJZ was wary and wouldn't bite. Burns a person up how that station just manages to fade out before his program. It's a wonder they don't arrange a larger hook-up for his performance, oh well that will come in time.

Monday night and that usually brings us the Mormon Tabernacle Choir at 8.15 and it has no intentions of fooling us tonight because we'll hear it per schedule from WJZ. The JZesters from this station at 7.15 and Hoxy and his Gang at 7.45.

The Hoxsey orchestras will be heard over WJZ at 8.30 and that means plenty fun for all and then there is the Mayfag orchestra at 9, well, well what a lovely line-up. Real Folks next at 9.30 and Duke Ellington at midnight!

WEAF invites us to listen in during the Family party at 9.30 and at 10.30 to Willard Robinson and his Deep River orchestra. Florence Richardson and her orchestra at 11 and Horace Heidt and the famous Californians at 11.30. Phil Spitalny and his Hotgwater Beach orchestra at midnight. I'll be seeing you subsequently.

BELLEVILLE AND KINGSTON TEAMS TIED AT HOCKEY

Local Ki-Y Players Did Well in Spalding League Competition

On Saturday last a selected team of boys sixteen years of age and under from the Ki-Y league teams, was taken to Kingston by Secretary J. E. Shorts, to play a game with a team selected from the Kingston city league. The boys met on the Jock Harty Arena, played three periods of sterling hockey with neither team able to notch a counter. The boys were welcomed on their arrival in the Limestone city by Mr. E. F. Richards of the General Hospital staff and Mr. McGlashon, who had made every arrangement for the comfort and convenience of the Belleville team. The players on both teams showed fast skating and splendid stick handling ability. They were a little off in team play, as they had not the advantage of practising together, and had been selected from different teams. The game was a mighty nice one to watch, the boys giving the best they had in this Spalding league fixture. It is difficult to select any of the players for special mention. This is the first of home and home games in a Spalding fixture, the game in Belleville to be played on February 21st. Mr. Steve Licence and Mr. Chris Lewis kindly loaned their cars and assisted in the transportation of the teams. The game was efficiently and satisfactorily handled by Referee McDougal of the Kingston seniors. The line-up was as follow::

Kirgston— Jones; Defence, James, Allen; centre, McGregor; wings, Laird, Plunkett; alternates, Catlin, Sampson Gibson, Bews.

Belleville—Goal Garnet Smfield; defence, Dop Campbell, Cy Barriage; centre, George High, Don Lee; wings, Bill Hammett, George Catron; alternates, Herbert Burley, S. LaPain.

Children suffering from worms soon show the symptoms, and any mother can detect the presence of these parasites, by the writhings and fretting of the child. Until expelled and the system cleared of them, the child cannot regain its health. Miller's Worm Powders are prompt and efficient, not only for the eradication of worms, but also as a toner up for children that are run down in consequence.

CLARA BOW IN ROMANTIC COMEDY

Ralph Forbes Shoots Gallagher Charles Ruggles in "Her Wedding Night"

Skeets Gallagher and Charlie Ruggles, two of Paramount's most rich comedians, are prominently cast in the new Clara Bow picture, "Her Wedding Night," at Avery Haywood Jones' comedy of unusual and diverting entertaining quotities. Also featured in what undoubtedly is the best Clara Bow vehicle since the advent of talking pictures are Ralph Forbes, who played opposite Ruth Chatterton this year in real life), in "A Lady of Scandal," and Rosita Moreno, the charming heroine of "The Santa Fe Trail." In "Her Wedding Night," it is Skeets Gallagher who starts all the trouble And once starting the commotion, Skeets in his imperturbable fashion keeps going.

The trouble begins on a train in the south of France. Skeets sees Clara, loses her and mistes one grand play for her. Clara is one of the train stops. Skeets and Clara get off the train and while they are trying to convince the customs officials their presence is the real thing, the train, in true European fashion, starts off without them. Stranded, Skeets and Clara make inquiries about a hotel and are directed to the Mayor who, innocently enough, marries them. Skeets and Clara sign the marriage certificate believing it to be a hotel register. Then they discover their mistake, but the verry is much more complicated than it appears. It seems that Skeets was travelling with his friend (Ralph Forbes), a famous composer having tired of it over fond people, had exchanged identities with Skeets. So that Clara is not only an embarrassing and unblushing bride, but the wife of a man she has never seen.

Naturally enough from this point on "Her Wedding Night" turns out to be one of the funniest comedies of the season, replete with screaming situations and unusual situations made even more complicated and humorous by frantic efforts of Charlie Ruggles as mutual friend, to patch up the difficulty. There is a first-rooting, pleasing climax that brings "Her Wedding Night" to a convincing and delightful conclusion.

As the unblushing bride who doesn't want to be a doilful wife, Clara Bow is smart, gay and vivacious. Slimmer loo. As her husband by proxy, Ralph Forbes is handsome, debonair and master of the situation. And Skeets Gallagher and Charlie Ruggles, in the cause of the excitement, romp away with comedy honors in two of the best roles they have ever had.

"Her Wedding Night" comes to the Bell Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee daily.

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

Last nite after supper ma brawt some note paper in the living room, sayins she was going to start a diary this evening. Willyum of corse he was like having a diary from the first of the year, but theres no use crying into spilt milk. So Im just start from this morning and put down everything of any usual thats happened today. And then I will see if theres any this week tred copy my note paper erround in it. Now let me see, what did I do this morning? I sekfoned the butcher to be sure to send a chicken, but of corse he is cident, so thats nothing unusual, she sed.

Ma remembered exactly where your diamond ring was worn I asked you about it at brekfist, that was unusual pop sed, and ma sed, This afternoon I met Hilda Bickell downtown, and we had tea together and she made me pay the check by pertending to fish in her pocketbook for lost all patience and Pa exploded, and goodness knows there was nothing unusual about that I put in a bid for liver and onions tonite and dident get it, but I sant any thats unusual pop sed, and I red. Hay sed I have remeching unusual, you dident get no sumthing wonderful that Claudius baby did today.

O, that just reminds me, ma sed. Claudia cant him trying to slide down stairs on a tin tray this morning, and brekshe discovered he had been tearing up a magazine with pictures of winter sports in it. In other words he was imitating the tobaggan sliders. Isnen't ther remarkable for a baby of 10 months? she sed. Thats just a perfekt ferst lisen for my diary, she sed.

And she hurry up wrote it down on the sheet of paper.

JACOB PHILLIP HUCK

The death occurred on Friday of an old and highly respected resident of Belleville, in the person of Jacob Phillip Huck in his 82nd year.

The late Mr. Huck came to Canada as a lad and spent the early part of his life on the farm in Sidney township with his parents, who were pioneers. In 1881 he married Katherine Lang of Thurlow township.

In 1903 he entered the employ of the Canada Cement Co., with which firm he held various executive positions, until his retirement seven years ago.

Deceased was a member of St. Michael's church, le pollibus a Liberal, and a Protestant in religion, the C.M.B.A. He was always a kind and sympathetic friend of the poor.

The funeral was held from his late residence to St. Michael's church. Interment in the family plot in St. James' Cemetery.

The bearers were—W. H. Legate, J. P. Hart, P. J. Bennet, A. B. Armstrong, Wm. Ellis, W. C. McDonald.

Besides his widow, he leaves to mourn to loss, three sons, William, Jacob Alexander, four daughters, Mrs. F. E. Simmons, of Point Anne, Mrs. P. J. Bennett of Montreal, Mrs. B. J. Brown of Oshawa, and Miss Anna at home. His eldest son, Albert predeceased him six years ago. One sister also remains.

GROW BEARDS FOR OLD ALMA MATER

Vancouver, Jan. 26—Students of the University of British Columbia will grow beards for their dear old alma mater.

At a general meeting of the Men's Undergraduate Society today it was decided that none of its members will shave until the present $38,000 stadium drive goes over the top.

As an added incentive to the movement, it was suggested that the women students should return to date students who do not join the beard-growers.

CONDUCTOR WAS FATALLY HURT WHILE AT WORK

Brother of Mrs A F Stillman Met Untimely Death on N. Y. Central

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Stillman left yesterday for Rochester in response to a telegram announcing them of the death of W. S. March, brother of Mrs. Stillman in an accident on the New York Central Railway on which system Mr. March was a conductor. No details were given in the telegram beyond the bare fact that an accident happened on Saturday which cost Mr. March his life. He was born in Campbellford and left here about thirty years ago for the United States taking up railway work.

Mr. March was "a man of many friends, his kindly disposition endearing him to all with whom he came in contact. His choice hobby was flowers and most of his spare time was spent in his garden. He was a relative of the late Col. L. W. March of Belleville, and visited this city a number of time.

It is a curious coincidence that last June Mr. Stillman's brother was killed in a railway accident at Detroit, now Mrs. Stillman's brother meets a similar fate.

Mr. March was sixty years of age and leaves a wife and two daughters.

GOLDEN DAWN

by P. BETER B. KYNE

"Hank! I'm an officer," McNamara shouted, and fired into the air. But the running man did not even hesitate. In the morning he sent for Angelo Wilson, a reporter on the staff, and was charmed to note a faintly lemonish spot on the Italians left cheek and a very noticeable iridescence under the left eye. The chief grinned Angelo" he queried innocently. "He "What does the other fellow look like couldn't have been more than a fly specks, or he'd have done more damage! How come you let some runt one-two you like that?"

"It was a dame I picked up for drunkenness.' Angelloi lied with the silliness of long practice.

Following some discussion of the report, McNamara dismissed him, and sat down to decided what to do with Nance Belden. That Flynn and Angelloti were keeping his house under surveillance he knew now; undoubtedly they would enter his house at the earliest favorable opportunity.

The chief wondered what he would do if he stood in the shoes of his two detectives. "I'd wait for a night when I wouldn't be disturbed for a couple of hours," he decided. "What night would that be? Why, Thursday night, when she Board of Police Commissioners meet and I am in attendance there. Stephen will make his usual early evening call—and soon as he leaves the house those two cuties will slip in. The cellar door, of course. I'll leave it easy for them. I'll leave the door unlocked."

He concluded that until then, Nance would be safe at Lanny's house. In the meantime, however, he must arrange to get her out of the city at an early date. The detectives were both absolutely satisfied Lanny had once given Nance sanctuary for a brief period, trust them, therefore, to keep an eye on Lanny's house.

He had in his office a telephone line that did not connect with the private exchange system in the Central Station, to be called Lanny on this phone at Doctor Burt's office now.

"Dan speaking, Lanny . Tomorrow morning you had better buy our pet nuisance a lot of clothes, so she'll be all ready to get out of town when I send for her. I think I'll have to fly her out and down to Tia Juana, Lower California."

"I don't know. We'll think about my two clicks won't be there and Tia Juana is one place where that saddle nose of her's won't surprise anybody. And when she gets rough and tough in Tia Juana nobody will pay any attention to her. They have experts down there in that line."

"I'll think that Tia Juana stunt over," Lanny decided. "It has possibilities. Is there a good hospital there?"

"I don't think so. Why?"

"You numb-skull, Dan McNamara! We have to find a quiet hospital where we can have her poor nose operated on.

"Well, if we can get her beeur restored and change that black bob-of hers to a movie-tone gold, she could take Flynn and Angelloti to the cleaners and they'd never suspect her."

"Stevie says her nose must be operated on first. Her present state of dissociated personality probably start from an inferiority complex, and the inferiority complex probably arose out of the knowledge that her nose made her unlovely. When its safe to bring her back to the city, Stevie will take her soul out and look at it, dust it off, put it back and do a little jack Horner."

"Can he do that? McNamara's heavy voice was freighted with awe.

"He can, provided he can find a starting point for his investigation. Into her past life. There is always a reason for a dissociated personality. The ground for the mental shock that causes it is usually prepared long before the psychosis occurs. Rebellious thoughts, unhappiness, brooding— all these eventually have a serious effect upon sensitive and highly intelligent people and particularly, women of the hysterical type."

"All women are hysterical," McNamara said with conviction.

"You're a dear booby, Dan. Eight women out of ten can throw a fit of hysterics as easily as you'd break an egg, particularly if there is a man to be impressed. They never simulate hysterics to impress a woman, however, because they know better. However, there are women who have hysterics that are real, but it has been the experience of this office that most of these are just a trifle balmy—neurotics."

"Well, you get our girl a trousseau and warn her to keep away from the window and not to answer the doorbell, or do any telephoning, or leave the house until she has my permission I don't expect she'll obey, so tonight when you go home have some hysterics to impress her."

"Dan dear, I couldn. Im hard on a picnic egg. Did you stage your little comedy after leaving us last night?"

"I did—and it worked exactly."

"Good gracious. Well I'm busy. Goodbye."

Nance Belden's personalities were a source of keen professional interest to Lanny, who regretted that for the present Dr. Burt was unable to share her observations with her. She had, as yet, had no opportunity for ascertaining anything regarding the dual past history, but she had a suspicion that Nance had had advantages superior to most girls.

Her hands were the very first thing (with the exception of her poor wrecked nose) that Lanny had noticed. They were soft, shapely, small and well kept, decidedly not the hands of a factory girl. While her vocabulary was a trifle "salty", running at times to the idom of the ill-bred rod ignorant, her voice was soft, with well bred intonations. Her clothing, on the occasion of her visit to Stephen Burt's office, had been, in Lanny's judgment, in splendid taste; rich but not flashy, up to the mode but not beyond it.

Vitalex Best For Rundown, Nervous, Constipated Folks

Says Eminent Physician

DR. JOSEPH S. THORNE, M.D., North Evans, N. Y.

"In Selecting a Remedy, One Should Secure the Best—That is Vitalex," Says Dr. Thorne

Dr. Thorne has been practising medicine for years and the following message from him is of great importance to everyone who suffers from the miserable ailments he mentions: "This new and important tonic, Vitalex, is different from anything I have hitherto discovered," says Dr. Thorne. "It combines the important Vitamins with the best pharmaceutical preparations and eliminates and thus increases metabolism and is a true tissue builder. It seems at its best as a general tonic when a rundown condition prevails.

"For nervous disorders I consider it much superior to the sedatives so frequently prescribed. In full doses it quickly relieves chronic constipation and flushes the kidneys. The vitamins, of course, are beneficial in many ailments such as each year.

"In selecting a remedy one should secure the best for the ailments mentioned above. That should be Vitalex.

Doubt as a Disease

By Leslie E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

If you suffer from doubt, and therefore have difficulty in making up your mind, you know how troublesome it can become. Doubt undermines many a strong character and often is the direct cause of failure.

There are people, of course, who are always cock-sure and invariably rush into action before sober reflection has had time to mellow a decision. Yet there are many more, strange to say, who test the pros and cons indefinitely. They "if" and "but" to such an extent that they never make a decision at all. Both extremes are bad and lead to trouble.

Nevertheless, the chances of succeeding are hundreds of times greater if one acts quickly than if one delays so long that one is unable to act at all. The doubting habit sometimes is so pronounced in people that it amounts to a disease!

Unable at first to decide so simple a problem as whether or not to take a walk, later its victims become fearful of doing anything whatever on their own initiative. Doubt . . . perplexed and continuous doubt . . . colors and dominates every thought.

Not every case of doubt, to be sure, will lead inevitably to a chronic disease state. But the doubting habit can get worse and, in fact, it rather easily does so.

Therefore if you find yourself drifting into ways of overcarefulness before acting, take immediate steps to check the habit.

Don't be hasty or rash, of course!

Take your time. Quietly think things out. But then, when once the decision is made, put it into execution without delay! Don't go back and review the steps that led you to the decision. Don't begin to wonder and worry whether you are right or wrong. Do something and do it quickly. And when you do it, put your best efforts and your greatest available force behind it. Act as though you never had the slightest doubt but what you were right from the beginning.

The French have a very apt name for the doubting habit. They call it "folie de deliberer" freely translated it means "doubting mania," a frenzy of doubting.

Doubt certainly undermines your personality and strength of character. Doubting makes you feel inferior and afraid. Doubting makes cowards of us all!

If already you are a doubter by nature, practise making quick decisions no matter what the result may be. It looks like rain, let us say. "Shall I take an umbrella?" you ask yourself. Immediately the thought pops into your mind, hurry to the closet and get your umbrella, or run out of the house without it.

What, under the circumstances, does it really matter what you decide? The point is that you actually have made a decision.

Plan such a doubt problem for yourself every day and soon you will develop such strength of conviction it will astonish you.

Fight doubt! Don't let it take hold. Should it, however, already have you in its grip, do not despair, but keep routing it out until you have supplanted decision in its stead.

YOUNGER PEOPLE READ BETTER BOOKS

(By The Canadian Press)

WINNIPEG — Children and young people read a far better class of books than did their parents, Dr. George Locke, chief librarian, Toronto public library, declared in an interview here recently.

"We have to keep the shelves of the library stocked with the poorer type of books, not for the children, but for their parents," he remarked.

Dr. Locke envisions the day when parents will be as well educated as their children, when these books no longer will be needed.

The distinguished librarian is making a tour of the Dominion in an endeavour to interest people in the library extension idea.

MEN'S ASSOCIATION HELD INAUGURAL IN RAWDON TOWNSHIP

Rawdon, Jan. 22: By Will— The initial meeting of the Men's Association held at Bethel United Church on Wednesday evening, January 14th with a good representation of men and women from the three appointments —The pastor opened the service with the hymn "Lead on Oh King Eternal" followed by the Scripture Devotional dealing with the theme of love, social service and loyalty. Two terms of "O Canada" were then sung as a prayer for our country. Rev. Jobin in a few well chosen words explained how this Association had originated out of the banquet held last fall in Stirling. After heartily welcoming the ladies, he called the president and secretary to the platform. The programme was prepared by the committees of Wellmans and Mount Pleasant but some numbers were omitted owing to the vast amount of sickness.

The President, Mr. H. V. Hoover in his address said he felt rather at sea this being a new organization. He was pleased with the honor of the position but also felt it a duty resting on him to perform. He passed out some programme suggestions and asked all to remember that where there is an organization there is also strength. The pastor at this juncture conducted a song service taken from the new books being "Loch Lomond" "Sweet and Low," "Believe Me if all Those Endearing Young Charms" and "Clementine".

Mr. O. H. Leury of Stirling rose as the subject of his address, "The value of the Church to the Community"— He said there are certain things in life that we can put a definite value on while others cannot be valued so readily. No estimate can be put on a reputation that has given the best years of his life in working among his flock.

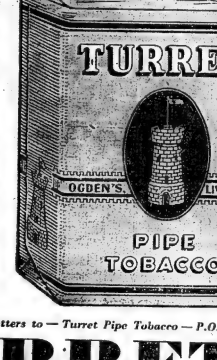
Neither can we value the Secular School which in these daily life is above reproach. The army of Sunday School teachers who do this work because they love it are casting influences on the boys and girls that we can never repay.

The ideals of the Scriptures are only made possible by the influence of the church.

If a man can live a good life outside the church he can do better inside. Christian Church today needs to be user alert day in and day out to preach Peace. From time to time great moral issues come up but the Christian Church does not stand as united as it should. While on earth Christ touched every phase of life, political, moral, social and religion. The Christian Church gives us the sanctity of the Sabbath day. The church has a broad outlook and must be alive to the holiest to better conditions in the world.

Messrs. Orro Sharp and Harry Bird, two scouters and Miss Mildred Elliott at the piano rendered very pleasing selections during the evening.

Mr. John Coggins sang very nicely "Good King Wenceslas." All sang "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep." Mr. Harry Rulin of Stirling spoke on the "Value of the church to his young people." He put his address as if he were spokesman for the young people and was speaking to older Church members. The latter recognizes that our country's hope is in our young people and that was why Stirling Church was erected. The church should be regarded as the ideal home where all are striving to reach the great object in view. Many churches are attempts to understand there young people and boys and girls are misunderstood in the home of their parents.



Young people are thinking differently now than a generation past and we must meet them on their level in order to win them for Christ. They are asking "What is difference between men who never go to church every Sunday and those who never go at all? Christ was a true patriot as he dearly loved the Jewish race and we are most love our country. Young folks should be taught the great part taken by the Anglo Saxon race in the spread of Christianity. Christ saw the two fold purpose as with the young you save their souls and have their life works besides.

PAVLOVA'S DEATH

An artist's death always saddens because it means that a gleam of joy or of light has become eclipsed. Pavlova who through the medium of rhythmic motion and the dance interpreted some of the principles of life to millions of folk, is dead.

She was the joyous creator of dance rhythm, as much an artist as the musician who strikes new harmonies or the painter who blends the colors on his palette.

To the Greeks beauty was summed up in the dance, in music, and in dialogue. The dance was in reality acting to them: superb acting too.

Pavlova read the secret of life in rhythm and so caught and represented in her art a glimpse of eternal truth.

THE EGG BASKET

The old grey hen, the white hen and all the other old hens with the pullets of all hues and clipper-built breeds find themselves on the news pages these days. They are producing eggs in plenty and the price is diving down like the mercury on a zero day. Eggs in the upper twenties for local consumption and ranging down from twenty-one to fifteen cents for shipment make a real news story.

But eggs are not at the lowest in history. Once they sold for about eight cents a dozen during the present century. That they will go down to that again is most unlikely and it would be a calamity if they did. Anyway when the hens go on producing and singing after the hens is laid their eggs as if nothing else they have to do and the farmers feel that were happening in the great egg market to which they produce but which they do not obtain—a sight of until they come at last, "dressed" at the end of their laying career.

CHURCHES GO FORWARD

Despite all the reference to "hard times", the churches have marked a year of prosperity. Many an industry would like to have the come through with such flying colors as churches which are able to carry on, except in some parts of Western Canada. Hereabouts the churches have reported their membership as very loyal and strongly in support of the aims and objects of the congregations.

The church does remain a power in the communities. There are folk who do not pay the church the regard it deserves as the organized body of Christians but others do carry the work on their shoulders. But a change has been the way though perhaps the danger of attraction away from the church was never so great with the appeal of every possible device and with the universal love of mankind for pleasures which can be so easily enjoyed. If the loyal people of the church do not do their duty the results would show themselves.

It is just because the church is functioning so well, and without apparent effort that some think is slipping. The givings are not mere matter of course. Mention has only to be made of the missionary guide of the and he will be the best friend and guide of the soul of a church—they are increasing.

POWER

Belleville with Central Ontario had a power shortage fright some years ago and through the efforts of the Central Ontario organization, the situation was relieved and the attention of the Hydro so that a supply was brought from a development near Ottawa which has since eliminated hereabouts any possibility of shortage.

But now the Hydro Commission of Ontario has brought out the fact that there is a possibility of a general power shortage in Ontario and that unless present sources are increased the limit of development will have been reached within five years for domestic consumption. This is looked upon as really serious because under the present depression there has been a steady increase of power consumption and with revival the demands upon electrical energy will be all the more accentuated.

No doubt the provincial authorities will take up the matter and strive to have every possible development proceeded with. Eyes look to the St. Lawrence development to relieve the situation.

THE ROBIN AND THE SPRINGTIME

Northern folk much as they love wintertime have a longing for spring. That explains the attention paid to the sight of a robin. There is more than a bad accident or some great political event. Man still counts his spring by robins and others which hibernate to the south and return at the proper time to herald the lovely green, balmy spring with the springing grass, the bright sun, and the tumbling rill and drip-drip-drip of countless little streams running off the land.

Last week a robin was seen in this city. Of that there is no doubt, but that it means spring is more than doubtful. It cannot be possible, that springtime is here. This robin must be one which neglected to make the annual flight in the autumn to the south, or he must be one which has become acclimatized to the rigors of the north.

But the robin makes a sensation. He stirs up thoughts which are present in every heart. He is a sort of contrast which makes the winter all the more enjoyable because he points inevitably forward to the days which are to be in late March and early April. The north loves its springtime all the more because of the rigid days of winter. As the frost benefits the soil, winter benefits man's outlook by contrast.

Man still lives close to nature's heart. He watches the sky for signs for clouds and for evidences of change.

Toronto Hydro rates are again being cut. The Globe hails this as "another boost for industry and another vindication of the great public ownership system."

For months before the depression which has been talked of was even mentioned in public, the decline has been in progress. Likely depression will conversely be talked of for months after it has passed and the world has commenced to "mend." Indeed the uptrend will be on the way, experts believe, months before the general public knows it. For such is man.

Those cold spells have been getting a little more sudden and a little more frequent, just as the mild spells were one time ago. He is a wise man who can tell the weather a week or more ahead and he is a most wise man who is contented with all kinds of weather.

GOD'S PITY

Man's pity is a little thing.
So circumspect, so small,
Contained within a narrow ring
And bounded in a wall.
It names the rigid terms it asks,
And with a will of steel
It sets offenders cruel tasks,
And grants them last appeal.

God's pity is a boundless sea,
Wherein the soul can cast
The burden of its misery
For all its vices past.
To every humble penitent
God's pity offers peace,
For anguished souls it holds content,
In it all conflicts cease.

Man's pity mocks at those who seek.
Too slight it is, too frail:
But in God's pity all the weak
Find hope that will not fail.

SIDELIGHT FAN tells me he was reminded by reference to "Devil's Auction" in recent paragraph in this column incident in his life during the period when "The Devil's Auction" was a reigning stage success. He is a printer by trade and at the time, thirty or more years ago, was receiving the munificent sum of $2.50 a week in a printing office in this city. It was while attending a performance of "The Devil's Auction" in the old Carman Opera House that he was told that a new paper was starting in Wellington and a printer was wanted. He left the next morning for Wellington via Trenton with just enough money to pay his fare to Trenton. Boarding the other train at Trenton he rode until the conductor, Paddy Shannon, came around for tickets. Paddy would not consent to a credit journey, despite a splendid spell for a ride free to Wellington. "Off at Hillier ye get," Paddy said, and off at Hillier it was with an invitation from Paddy to use the tracks and walk to Wellington. Nothing doing, when the lad started out here was standing on the back platform there to be found later by Conductor Paddy. Another argument ensued which continued almost to Wellington and Paddy gave it up for a bad job. At Wellington the Belleville printer went to work and the first editorial of the new paper was soon ready. That it was found that the pages were too large for the Washington press and the forms had to be taken to Trenton for them. This one week ended and his pay envelope contained three dollars. Next week's paper was set up, and made up, but alas and alack the shadow of the bailiff darkened the printing house door and he laid a heavy hand on the plant for bills accrued and owing. He is the wandering publisher who left his imprint from Halifax to Vancouver in various journalistic enterprises hoping to waste their subsistance on a cold and unfeeling public and fade away overnight. Just when the sky seemed darkest a telegram came to Belleville of the roving print from his former employer offering a fifty cent per week increase in salary to come back. The printer came back, worked hard and in the course of time thru' various raises reached the grand wage scale of six dollars per week. Good board and lodging then available for $2.50 a week, a dollar a day was mighty good pay for a young lad in those days of cheap living.

THE STORM CELLAR

Some companies are helping to restore confidence, like forerunner of prosperity, by maintaining dividends, whenever possible, and declaring bonuses to shareholders, when it is possible. But some other are resisting to storm cellars. Retreating to a storm cellar is wise if the move is a result of far-sightedness. But it is the wonder whether, in some instances of the passing or the reduction of dividends, it really has not been timidity that has been masquerading as far-sightedness. —Financial Post.

NOVELISTS IN HANDCUFFS

Could a handcuffed Charles Dickens have helped to abolish the inefficient, dangerous and gin-soaked "debtors' prison" of early Victorian days? Could English novelists of a more recent day have helped to bring about the legislation which now shields shop assistants from having to stand behind counters until nearly midnight? Should similar Lewis have been compelled to go in dread of some resentful Babbit, or F.O. Woodhouse to put the lid of satire on the "Babbs" in their all too last some earl or marquess, being suit against him? There are some novelists who, on occasion, should be handcuffed. During the last few years they have produced, under a travesty of the great word "novel", a type of literature which, if it pictures anything at all, holds a distorting mirror up to society. There are three agents at work which make the most baneful effect in regard to such novels. These are the publishers, the police, and the public. There is no doubt that the wholesome breeze of public opinion exercises to some extent a beneficial influence after all, as to late a stage as the time of circulation of these books, this it something like suppression of the sale of the old flodded kitchen floor instead of turning off the tap. Censorship, in essence is abhorrent to liberty-loving people. But some novelists have abused their privileges. Theirs are the wrists for the handcuffs.—Christian Science Monitor.

THE NEED FOR THRIFT

During and since the war there has been a great redistribution of wealth which has diminished many of the previously well-to-do and has increased the number of those in modest comfort. The future of the country may depend on the manner in which those who have benefited use their resources. A great factor in the restoration of prosperity is the willingness of the man of modest income to go on adding little by little to his capital against emergency and he can afford.—London Daily Telegraph.

CANADIAN BUSINESS LEADERS

After meeting in Ottawa yesterday, the executive council of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce set out to launch a great preparedness campaign in trade mission to South America. Premier Bennett showed how fully appreciated the importance of such an effort to open up new avenues of trade by appointing Sir George Perley to be honorary president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce party. About 150 Canadian business leaders will make the visit to Buenos Aires next month, where the British Empire Trade Exhibition will be opened by the Prince of Wales. Samples of every description and commodities are to be on display in some attractive exhibits. Already Toronto, Canada, has the Argentine Republic and throughout South America generally, is very friendly towards us, a strong desire to promote trade with Canada and every reason to believe that good will come from this visit.—Ottawa Citizen.

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION

We spend considerable time in imagining that education means prosperity and, in this, we have met with considerable success, but if we are to progress in the future we must give more due attention must be given to improving the conditions under which we live and to the application of the laws ing to make a living, for, after all is said and done, the industry of farming is the basic industry of the country, and will ever continue to be the most important consideration in building up the nation's lasting prosperity. One of the greatest aids to agriculture is education. Nothing can stimulate the progress of the scientific farmer, and the more knowledge in a practical nature we disseminate in the rural districts, the greater will be the contribution to the prosperity of the country. Thus it is, that we view with a sense of gratitude and encouragement, the efforts of the Ontario department of education to further pure agricultural education through the medium of the Public and High Schools, or agricultural vocational schools, such as the one located in the town of Ridgetown.—Chatham News.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Cause of Collapse

(Ottawa Citizen)

Gold has been so religiously worshipped as the only reliable standard of money value, universally accepted, it is significant to find Mr. McKenna saying in London, at a meeting of Midland Bank directors that the nations are "suffering from maladministration of gold." The so-called yardstick is being found out to be faulty an entirely stable basis for the expanding pyramid of world trade and industry.

Mr. McKenna discussed the possibility of safeguarding the industrial nations from "catastrophies as bad as the present one." He is reported as saying:

Obviously, the problem of use of the world's gold supply is international in character, and can be dealt with only by co-operation among the central banks. There is already evidence of general willingness to co-operate, but no indication yet of continuous common action based upon an agreed policy.

The first essential must be full recognition of the importance next to gold of the stable level of commodity prices. Trade cannot prosper while the world's monetary units are subject to such wide variations in purchasing power as we have witnessed in recent years.

When this fact is realized and the common policy of the central banks is translated into action, we may anticipate some rapid progress in the field of monetary policy and a nearer approach to the time when we can regard our monetary system as fully abreast of our productive organization.

With leadership from such an authoritative source, perhaps others in authority may feel impelled to explore the possibilities of maintaining purchasing power as a better level than the present one. More rapid progress is surely needed toward the time when the monetary system may be regarded as abreast of modern industry's capacity to produce.

The system of restricting the supply of purchasing power to a barter economy has become inadequate to meet the needs of this middle period of the twentieth century. Recurring periods of trade depression and unemployment could be eliminated by a scientific readjustment of the monetary system.

There need, at least, no longer be dire poverty in a world of abundance. The problem of production has been solved. The problem of purchasing power can be solved.

Civilized man may still be several centuries away from controlling the weather, from eliminating earthquakes, storms and volcanic eruptions. But the catastrophies of trade depression, with the menace of war or revolution lurking behind, are entirely manmade. They are capable of being corrected by intelligence. The monetary system can be readjusted, as Mr. McKenna says, to be brought "fully abreast of our productive organization."

Poe's Relativity Ideas

Indianapolis, Ind.—An original letter, written by Edgar Allan Poe on Feb. 29, 1848, in which he voiced concepts indicating that he held concepts of time, space and matter similar to those propounded by Prof. Albert Einstein, in possession of Dr. Albert E. Sterne, of the Indiana University School of Medicine.

Professor Einstein's visit to the United States, resulting in renewed popular interest in his complicated theories of relativity, prompted Dr. Sterne to bring to public notice the letter which, he said, has intrigued him since he first obtained it 20 years ago.

The letter was written in New York City and addressed to Miss Isabel Binghamton, N.Y., although the name "Irbey has been crossed out and "Isabel" substituted in the address, indicating that Poe was mistaken in the spelling of the name of the person to whom he was writing.

The letter reads:

"A press of business has hitherto prevented me from replying to your letter of the 16th inst.

"The Vestiges of Creation' I have not yet seen; and it is always with reluctance that I commence opinions of books from reviews of them. The extracts of the work, which have fallen my way, abound in inaccuracies of fact—still these may not materially affect the general argument. One thing is certain, that the objections of the scientific men—men, I mean, who cultivate the physical sciences to the exclusion, in a greater or less degree, of the mathematics, of metaphysics and of logic—are generally invalid except in respect of scientific details. Of all persons in the world, they are at the same time the most bigoted and the least capable of using general principles. They pin down the facts which they bring to light in the course of their experiments. And these are the men who chiefly write the criticisms against all efforts at generalization, denouncing these efforts as speculative and theoretical.

"The notice of my lecture, which appeared in the New World, was written by some one grossly incompetent to the task which he undertook. No idea of what I said can be gleaned from either that or any other of the newspaper notices—with the exception perhaps of the Express—where the critique was written by a gentleman of much scientific acquirement—Mr. E. A. Hopkins of Vermont. I enclose you his report—which, however, is inaccurate in numerous particulars. He gives my general conception so, at least, as not to caricature it.

"I have not published the lectures but when I do so, will have the pleasure of mailing you a copy. In the meantime, permit me to state, succinctly, my principal results.

"General proposition; Because nothing was, therefore all things are.

"1. An inspection of the universality of gravitation—of the fact that each particle tends not to any one particle generally, but to every other particle—suggests perfect totality, or absolute unity, as the source of the universal gravitation.

"2. Gravity is but the mode in which is manifested the tendency of all things to return into their original unity.

"3. I show that the law of the repulsive, i.e., the law of gravity—but a necessary result of the necessary and sole possible mode of expansion attributable to a finite quantity of matter through a limited space.

"4. Were the universe of stars concrete—annihilated from the universe of space—unlimited, no worlds could exist.

"5. I show that unity is nothingness.

"6. All matter, springing from unity, sprang from nothingness, i.e., was created.

"7. All will return to unity, i.e., to nothingness.

"I would be obliged to you if you would let me know how far these ideas are coincident with those of the Vestiges.'

"The signature, "Edgar A. Poe," follows. A postcript requests the return of "the printed slip as soon as you have done with it." The "printed slip" apparently is a prospectus of the Styles, a literary magazine edited by Poe, to which the letter is attached.

Dr. Sterne is both a student of Einstein and as admirer of Poe. When interviewed regarding the letter, which he includes among his most prized possession, he pointed out that while the letter is remarkable in its entirety for the clearness of thought expressed and the language in which it is couched, the close point of agreement contact with Einstein's is attained in the first two and Poe's results."

"In a partial analysis of the Einstein principle—for few men understand it fully—is found the theory of relativity to which the theory of limitation of space is suggested by Poe is applicable," he said.

"Einstein limits time and space. In the fourth tenet voiced by Poe there seems to be a contact with Einstein's general theory of relativity in the unlimited time.

"The fact must be kept in mind that the tenets stated by Poe belong entirely to the field of speculative philosophy. They cannot be included in the realm of science, for science embraces only facts which have been demonstrated facts. However, Poe's concepts and conclusions certainly are very suggestive of Einstein and would seem to foreshadow his findings.

"Poe, although he enjoyed a scientific training in his youth, was in no sense a scientist, much less a physicist of the type of Professor Einstein. But nevertheless this letter reveals a profound philosophic and speculative aptitude on Poe's part. His criticism in the body of the letter of men of purely scientific attainment, in which he charges them with neglecting metaphysics and the realm of pure logic, is a criticism that would be expected from a man of Poe's artistic nature and speculative bent."

Dr. Ste ne stated that he had never been able to find a copy of the lecture to which Poe referred and did not believe it even had been published. "The Vestiges of Creation" was published in 1845 by Harper Brothers and created considerable discussion at that time.

The letter owned by Dr. Sterne is attached to the title-page of the first volume of a set of books entitled "Works of E. A. Poe," published in 1850. Edmond Clarence Stedman and George Edward Woodberry, authorities on Poe and editors of the volumes vouch for its authenticity in a signed statement.

"CANNED" ANSWERS TO SCRIBE'S QUERY

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 26—A timid knock sounded at the door of Bud Abbott, journalist, and a bright, expectant face a Winter colony society weekly, was ushered to the room.

"I'm the society editor," "where do you get the ideas for your comic strips, think them up, or—

The operation brought no start of surprise to the cartoonist. But his response amazed the girl reporter.

He walked to a phonograph, took a record, adjusted the needle and returned to his seat.

"Ah," said the record started, "where do you get the ideas for the comic strips," and so on.

The record was an interview, answering all the questions the girl reporter had in mind.

PAID DEFENDER HAS BEEN ENDORSED

Toronto, Jan. 24—Miss Grace Runnalls, General Secretary of the Association of this city, thoroughly endorses the word of Magistrate Jones regarding the appointment of public defenders." A resolution was passed by her Association asking the Attorney General to make effective the Canadian Bar Association resolution of 1929.

Hundreds of people visit the Magistrate's rooms each week in search of advice of one kind or another, admitted the speaker. "Many come to your office; they are afraid of your charges. They have no money," but the women's organization started about the luncheon table. "If you could see them and hear their stories you would be convinced that it is not fair. You lawyers are all doing some charity work, but that is just tickling the surface. If you have not got a paid lawyers, you will get nowhere," he admitted, pointing out that the best system, in his opinion, was to have a paid person in each district and management with volunteers to help.

Advice to Lovelorn

SHE TURNS AWAY HER HEAD
DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A couple of months ago I was introduced to a young man and he took me out a couple of times, but I found him very "slow." Do you think that's because he doesn't care for me very much, or is it his way? Last time we went out we had a violent quarrel and he said "good-bye." When we see each other on the street now, I just turn my head and pretend not to see him. Still he looks and smiles as if he wants to speak. What shall I do?

PATRICIA?

If you turn away your head, how do you expect the boy to speak to you, my dear Patricia? Would you like him to run round on the other side and try to speak to you from that angle, and don't you "think that sort of "marathon" might create considerable attention in the street? Be sensible. Next time you see the boy, speak to him. Cut out the coquetry. As to no being slow—what do you mean, that he's dull and stupid, or that he is not what is called "fast?" If the latter, I'm glad for you sake that you don't find him thrilling.

AN UNEQUAL "BARGAIN"
DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-four years old and have been married four years, and have a darling son sixteen months old. When we were first married my husband and I used to go everywhere together, but since the baby came he goes alone. Is it because he doesn't want to be bothered with the baby, or is he tired of me? Every day is the same with me, but when he isn't working he visits. I think he should watch the baby while I go out occasionally, but he won't do that. He goes to shows and I never see one. He goes to dances and I stay home and mind the child. We do not live alone, but room and board. Do you think if we lived by ourselves he would be with me more? Can you give me some advice so he could see my side of life?

BROKEN HEARTED.

You have my very sincere sympathy in your troubles which seem very real to me. These days almost any man with a sense of fair play is willing to mind the baby occasionally while his wife has a breathing spell—goes to a movie or pays a friendly little visit to a neighbor. All work and no play is as bad for Jill as it is for Jack. Perhaps boarding does take from your husband a sense of responsibility which having a little home might restore. The experiment seems worth trying—anything and everything is worth trying when it's a case of marriage failing and a little child not having the right sort of home in which to develop. Hasn't he any pride in his little son? Almost every normal man has an abiding affection for the child who bears his name.

POTATO BALL SOUP

Peel three large potatoes and grate. Press through thin cloth into bowl; drain off water and add the starch left in bowl and 1 tablespoon of flour to the grated potato. Add salt and pepper to taste. Form into small balls, drop into salted boiling water and boil 30 minutes. Heat sufficient milk to serve; drain the water for the balls and turn into heated milk, to which a piece of butter has been added. The potato ball may also be added to a clear meat or chicken soup.

Fashionably Speaking
By Lucille

DEAR READERS:

Printed fabrics with all their colourful charm are once more to the fore and Belleville shops are showing frocks of this material in styles that are fascinating. When winter afternoon dresses that have done duty all season long begin to be monotonous and it seems to early to plan the right shade for a spring dress, one of these smart printed affairs fit in very nicely.

It is noticed that the design is small, usually taking the form of a sprig of flowers or of geometric dots and that it is printed on darker grounds. The cowl neckline has a new appeal when it is seen on a printed dress, for then the frock needs no other trimming. The neckline now following the cowl outline has other unusual treatments to make it form the chief style note of the dress.

Longer skirts are seen in the printed dresses so that they are a deal in colour with the fur coat. Sometimes the dress is fashioned entirely of the figured material, often the printed part forms only the waist, with the skirt in a shade matching exactly the ground color of the print. One such dress had the waist set in pointed effect with a cowl neckline to finish it.

Perhaps you have seen the dresses of a lighter print with which there is a coat of a dark blending shade. This is going to be quite the thing for late winter wear, for ensembles are as fashionable as ever. The coat, either of silk or flat wool goes under the glorified name of the Position coat which brings up visions of the post chaise of long ago.

A printed frock is a good addition to your wardrobe at this time of year and you are sure to find plenty of wear for it.

Fashionably yours,
LUCILLE.

THE MYSTERY

He came and took me by the hand
Up to a red rose tree,
He kept His meaning to Himself
But gave a rose to me.

I did not pray Him to lay bare
The mystery to me,
Enough the rose was Heaven to smell,
And His own face to see.

Beauty Box

BY HELEN FOLLETT

Middle-aged women with complexions that are juvenilian are those who look out beauty instead of long years back. They foresaw the danger of wrinkles and sagging tissues, so gave their sacred faces plenty of cold water and generous meals of oily cosmetics. When facial tissues start to toboggan it is not easy to make them see the light and reform. With careful treatment—preventive measures—they will keep firm and colorful, retain the luscious delicacy of youth.

Many skin disorders are the penalty of not being kind to one's tummy, giving it the food that its required for its well-being. The digestive organs are strengthened by physical exercise, taken in the fresh air. Appetite is increased, circulation is improved, sleep is more restful, and food is more completely oxidized in the tissues. A five mile walk each day is a health and beauty rite.

The girl who likes a cold shower, but who doesn't get a good circulatory reaction should take a cupful of hot water first. Blood vessels and arteries will respond more readily. The cold shower is tonic and refreshing, but it doesn't cleanse the skin of oil and sweat deposits which can only be removed with soap, warm water and friction.

Coiffure designers still insist that the shape of the head must be revealed. Any outstanding coil or bun doesn't get the ok. of fashion. By the same rules, the frock reveals anatomical outlines, even when there are godgets and other arrangements to give fullness to the skirt.

Bath salts are a help to the beauty seeker who suffers from dryness of the skin after the bath, for the reason that they soften the water. When the dryness is sore and sensitive, it is a wise idea to go over the entire skin surface with oil of sweet almonds, or oils devised for this particular purpose.

DIAMOND JUBILEE OF MASONIC LODGE

(By The Canadian Press)

WINNIPEG — Oldest of Masonic Lodges in Western Canada, Prince Rupert's Lodge, A.F. and A.M., today fittingly celebrates its Diamond Jubilee. Sixty years ago the inaugural meet of this pioneer lodge took place in the old Dewar House—now a memory—in this city.

Prince Rupert's Lodge was formed by members of the historic Wolseley expedition, of Red River days. The first master was Rev. R. Stewart Patieson, who came to old Port Garry as a chaplain with the expedition. Mr Patterson died at his home in England four years ago and a tablet to his memory now hangs in the temple.

The oldest surviving member of the Lodge is Sir Daniel H. McMillan, who is number 18 on the register, joining at the second regular meeting, Jan. 16, 1871. The register today bears a total of 1,457 names.

Many tributes were paid to the "Old Timers who contributed so much to the history of the west, at a midnight banquet in honor of the occasion.

London, Jan. 24—There is to be no fishing on Sundays at Rayleigh, Essex, so the Rayleigh Urban Council has decided, notwithstanding that two clergymen have strongly urged the Council to permit it. They are members of the council. The vote however was 8 to 7 against the proposal.

WOMAN SUCCESSFUL AS KENYA FARMER

(By The Canadian Press)

LONDON — "Can a woman farm in Kenya?" She can, and she does. "Successfully?" Just as well, and sometimes just as badly as a man does, for farming is not a matter of sex at all. It's a matter of temperament; of land sense, says a writer in Overseas.

Comes the eternal question, "How can a woman manage the labor?" And after eighteen years of experience of Kenya on years of war and peace comes the unhesitating answer "Where small gangs are concerned, anything up to fifty men, she finds it quite easy, and often does it with less irritation than does a man." The woman manager on the estate of a woman employer who is often away, said in an interview:

"A man can run his farm successfully in lots of different ways, through head-men if he likes, or in any way that suits him; he need scarcely know his laborers if he doesn't wish, but a woman hasn't a hope that way. Some of the workers here are married, without being actually squatters; that is, they have their wives here either in their castle and their goats, and all the rest of the family paraphernalia. The thing to do is to make them thoroughly comfortable, take an interest in their youngsters or anything else trouble with any of these particular men, I go down and have a talk to their wives, or the wife of the man chiefly concerned. Women may be chattels out here, but they know what they are well off, and they let their menfolk know it too. These are the men that can always be relied on. Where a white man can manage through his head-man, as his fathers have managed through their N.C.O.'s for generations, a woman must be entirely individualistic, and keep each individual loyal to herself. For if the whole tech turns against a white man he can still hold his own. He has the strength and the prestige to do it. A woman is different. And, of course, every employer must expect a spot of trouble some time or other from his employees, and what I have to do is to localize it by making sure that when trouble arises with one, the others are standing loyally by me, or are, any way, remaining tactfully neutral. It works all right as long as you treat each boy as an entirely separate entity, and of course you cannot do it

The Tug-of-War of CANADIAN INDUSTRY

VICTORY!

Fired with unquenchable faith in Canada's destiny, the constructive elements of Canadian business life are slowly but surely gaining victory over the forces of Indecision, Inertia, Inefficiency, Delay, False Rumor, Foolish Hoarding and Fear.

With taut muscles and tightened belts Courage, Foresight, Good Advertising, Competent Management, Honest Values, Wise Spending and Faith have taken an unyielding grip on the tug-of-war rope.

Every ounce of energy is summoned to the contest. This is a struggle in which no Canadian is neutral.

It affects the welfare of everyone. Which side are YOU on?

NOW—All Together for "Better Business!"

The daily newspapers of Canada believe in the future of this country.

No substitute has yet been devised to take the place of good newspaper advertising.

Experiments may be made in devious channels, but they lack the sales effectiveness that the daily newspaper always has delivered, and is delivering to advertisers to-day.

CHARGE LIQUOR SHORT-CIRCUITED BACK INTO CANADA BY SMUGGLERS

Harry Low and Captain Geo. Downey Held by the Police

CARS RE-SHIPPED

Arrests are Culmination of Several Weeks of Investigation

Ottawa, Jan. 27—Officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police moved yesterday against leaders of an alleged liquor smuggling ring and arrested Harry Low in Windsor yesterday afternoon and Captain George Downey in Cornwall last night. J. Ross Byrne, barrister of Liverpool, N.S., was arrested Saturday at Sault Ste. Marie. At the same time warrants were out for the arrest of the proprietor of a warehouse at Liverpool, N.S.

The men are charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government and on the basis of information in the possession of the department further charges of attempting to bribe officers in the discharge of their duties may be laid.

The object of the alleged conspiracy was to avoid the payment of excise and other taxes on liquor by bringing back into Ontario liquor already shipped out to St. Pierre Miquelon. After arrival at the French islands the liquor was allegedly brought to Nova Scotia and loaded on cars for shipment by rail to Ontario. The liquor was billed as fish and the cases packed in the car were mixed with cases of fish.

The arrests are the culmination of several weeks of investigative work by officers of the National Revenue Preventive service and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The seizure of a carload of liquor at Truro, N.S., before Christmas enabled the officers to trace the route by which the alleged smugglers attempted to get the liquor to Ontario.

The liquor was removed from the car and it was allowed to proceed to Toronto where a man arranged for its being forwarded to Windsor. It was only "unofficially" officials had occasion to suspicion and opened the car to find it empty.

JORDAN, CLARKE WERE ELECTED

Two Successful Candidates in Hungerford Take Seats in County Council

George Jordan, deputy reeve of Hungerford, last year; Dalton Clarke, a member of the municipal council for that township, were elected reeve and Deputy Reeve yesterday in a keenly contested election. They were opposed by T. H. Moore and P. O. Blakely, neither of whom had municipal experience. The figures given by Silas Prickett, township clerk, are not official and it was stated by the clerk that majorities for the two may be considerably increased when the official returns are obtained. Mr. Jordan has sat in county council for the past two years but Dalton Clarke will be a new member to the council body. Both elected representatives of Hungerford Township are Liberal in politics. MATE GAVE HIS VERSION OF THE FATAL SHOOTING

Wesley Anderson Says Three Shots Fired and All Took Effect

SEALS REMOVED

Bottle of Alleged Contraband Was Found by Searching Party

New York, Jan. 27.—Capt. Randolph Ridgely, Commander of the 10th Naval Division of the Coastguard, said he left sure today that Karl Schmidt, master-at-arms and commander of the Gar which fired on and captured the Canadian diesel vessel Josephine K and fatally wounded her skipper Capt. William Scott was sober. He has a clear record it is said, and was seen about six hours before the occurrence by his superiors.

New York, Jan. 27.—The coastguard officer in charge of the coastguard cutter 145 when it shelled and mortally wounded Capt. William J. Chiett of the Canadian motor vessel Josephine K last Saturday night, was intoxicated when he boarded the rum runner according to First Mate Wesley Anderson, Newfoundland, who today is nominally in charge of the seized vessel.

Anderson told the Canadian Press the officer was K. Schmidt, whom the New York papers have stated is the man in command and "unofficially" known as Schmidt.

New York, Jan. 27.—Wesley Anderson, first mate of the Josephine K., Canadian motor vessel fired on Saturday night by coast Guard cutter off Amagansett, Long Island, was mortally wounded today and the Canadian Press he is positive only three shots were fired by the two United States boat and all three took effect. No blank shots were fired in his opinion.

U. S. Coast Guard Base, Clifton, Staten Island, Jan. 27.—A bottle of champagne found on the contraband ship of the Canadian motorship Josephine K, was found here yesterday afternoon by an official searching party in the hold of the U. S. coast guard cutter 180, the boat which brought to shore the dead body of Captain Chiett. Chiett, mortally wounded Saturday by a coast guard shell.

The discovery occasioned an immediate order to clear the docks of newspapermen and to challenge any civilian entering the base, as the search ordinarily a routine matter, was renewed with vigor.

The cutter 145, from which the fatal shots were fired, was to be researched upon its return from the federal inquiry into the shooting, it was understood.

Chief Boatswain's Mate James F. Axelrod, skipper of cutter 180, refused to comment. He has a good record and long service that includes a number of spectacular seizures and rescues.

And he refused to draw a reversal on coast guards of the cutter 145 in an attempt to stop them from stealing bottles of the seized liquor, according to the story which guardsmen who participated in the capture of the gasoline boat yesterday.

"I'll shoot the bottle out of any man's hand that grabs it," they said, he warned. "And it might miss the bottle and hit somebody; so lay off."

One coast guardsman was struck they said, and Axel knocked him to the deck unconscious. They thought this guardsman had "planted" the bottle found on the cutter 180, and that there was no more of the contraband liquor stolen.

He has been chairman of Bridges for twelve years and when the chairmanship was amalgamated with that of roads in 1925, he took on the extra duty and has performed a distinct service to the council on this important committee.

He knows the county road system better than any member of the council and keeps well posted on the maintenance that is necessary. He has been appointed permanently on faced roads and it is likely the council at their session this January, will recommend that the permanent system of roads be inaugurated in this county. Mr. Moore has been offered the chairmanship but turned it down the honor.

NUNS INJURED IN MONTREAL FIRE

Montreal, Jan. 27.—Four hundred school girls walked safely out of Ste. Helene School today, thanks to the quick action of the sisters of the congregation of Notre Dame, three of whom were badly burned in trying to quench the flames. The top floor of the four-storey building was badly damaged before the flames had been extinguished.

Sister Marie Seraphie suffered burns about the face and hands and was in a serious condition last night. Sister Marie Sainte Hodore de Canterbury suffered burns on the hand, and Sister Sainte Colombe suffered a lacerated hand from breaking a window to gain the alarm.

The fire started in the Christmas crib of large replica of the crib of Bethlehem, set up at Christmas time and usually removed at the end of January.

CHURCHILL ASSAILS PREMIER AND LABOR PARTY ON INDIAN POLICY

Baldwin Repudiates Statements — Major Sensation of the Sitting

London, Jan. 27—When Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill last night attacked Premier MacDonald's Conservatives's India policy during debate on the Round-Table Conference report, he was severely rebuked and his views promptly repudiated by his party leader, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin.

The rift provided the major sensation of yesterday's sitting of the House of Commons; it swiftly succeeded the earlier sensation created by the bitter invective of Mr. Churchill's denunciation of the proposal for a constitution for India.

Mr. Baldwin's repudiation of Mr. Churchill was as unsecured as Mr. Churchill's denunciation was bitter.

"Agitation in India will continue." Mr. Churchill said. "But it will no longer be confined to street riots. It will invade the heart and brain of the Government of India. The struggle will proceed steadily toward the sever-

RAILWAY HEADS WILL CONFER ON FRUIT TERMINAL

Possibility of Union Terminal Centred on Economic Efficiency Basis

TORONTO, Jan. 27—In an endeavour to reconcile the two railways on the projected union fruit terminal here, Hon. Wesley Gordon, Minister of Agriculture, sent invitations yesterday to Sir Henry Thornton and E. W. Beatty, presidents of the C.N.R. and C.P.R. respectively, to meet his office at Queen's Park on February 5.

Two representatives of the Toronto fruit jobbers' association, merchants also are being invited. Col. Kennedy himself will undertake to represent the interests of the growers and the Toronto public, a duty for which he feels especially fitted by his farming experience and his previous investigations into marketing, made at the Government's request.

By thus bringing together all the parties interested, Colonel Kennedy hopes to effect a settlement of differences between the two railways and between the railways and the jobbers. If this is accomplished the conference will result in Toronto getting the up-to-date efficient market which has been for years a distinct demand of fruit and vegetable growers throughout the province as well as of the Toronto public.

Bright Little Chap Sees Robin and Loves Nature

Mother Nature has a little devotee Eugene Shortis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Shortis, 42 Great St. James Street. He is about six years of age and is already a close student of nature and has sympathy for robins and other birds and has knowledge of flowers.

Today this little chap appeared at the door of the Ontario Intelligencer and modestly asked: "Do you charge anything to say something about Mother nature?" He went on to tell that he had seen a robin near the river bank a couple of days ago and had picked two bunchrent of pussy willows in bloom, as evidence of which he brought one as a gift to the newspaper office. Eugene was told that the story he brought was real news to the people and would not cost him anything to have published.

He is observant and a lover of nature and in him the birds and flowers have a true friend.

Hibernating Tendency In Building to End Here

Prospects are good for building. At least many people and organizations have plans which will probably materialize in the near future. An architect told of having prepared specifications for a number of important buildings in the district, which will proceed, but forward with the slightest incentive of improving conditions and the signs of spring.

"But why is there so little building done here in the winter?" an architect asked West Ontario Intelligencer. "Why the hibernating mentality in regard to building? Why do we wait till the grass starts to grow?" And he went on to state that winter construction is carried on in Western Ontario without delay. Wind or storm, while in this portion of the province there is little winter building.

There is, however, a sign that the feeling in Eastern Ontario is turning in favor of all-year construction. Throughout the country is growing the sentiment through the use of Hydro electric power, through good roads and other agencies. The sentiment of the province from one end to the other

CHAS. THOMPSON IS LIKELY CHOICE AS NEW WARDEN

STAUNCH CONSERVATIVE

President Madoc Cheese Company and a Successful Farmer

It was expected that when Hastings County Council convened this afternoon, that Charles W. Thompson Reeve of Madoc Township would be elected Warden for the coming year. Mr. Thompson has been mod-ed for the post for some time past and his expected elevation to the post will be a popular one. Mr. Thompson was a conscientious choice of the Conservative caucus and since it is that party's turn to name a man for the chair, it was believed there would be no opposition from the ranks of the other members of that august body.

The new Warden brings to the chair keen executive ability, tempered with a kindly disposition and he is a man highly respected by all his confreres in council. He has served on all the important committees of the council, and has a grasp of the County business. Last year he served as chairman of the Old Age Pension Board, the business being in first class shape for his successor.

The new Warden entered municipal life in his adopted township in 1911.

SCRAP BOOK REVEALS INTERESTING HISTORY OF OLD-TIME BELLEVILLE

IS WELL KNOWN

Son is Now Touring Ontario, a Successful Magician

Belleville's handsome and well equipped public library, one of the many monuments to the memory of Senator Harry Corby who saved Belleville the necessity of spending if Andrew Carnegie, the Laird of Skibo for one of his model libraries scattered so plentifully over the land as the result of profits made by Dour Andrew in the steel business, is far removed from its humble beginnings the "Mechanic's Institute" which may be remembered by old timers.

Memories of the old Mechanic's Institute were awakened by a perusal of an old scrap book brought to the editorial office by Bert Johnson, erstwhile resident of Belleville, now a coast as a magician whose both hands were always quicker than many eyes. The scrap book was started by his father, H. M. Johnson, once a resident of Belleville, connected with the Mechanic's Institute and conductor of a gymnasium where the young folks were taught how to make their bodies strong and supple. A. W. Johnson was an interesting character, claimed the general all-round athletic champion ship of the world and had many medals and parchments to prove it. In his day in Belleville Chief of Police MacKinnon was a great athlete and was never beaten at pulling the shot. Duncan Ross was another local athlete of continental wide renown, and with E. W. Johnston the trio made athletic history in Canada and the United States, sponsoring and taking part in athletic events in many towns and cities.

E. W. Johnston conducted a hotel at Lindsay at one time and the scrap book contains one leaf of the guest register with the autographs of Madame Janauschek and her company which included the well known actor Tyrone Power who is still going strong in the movies. Madame Janauschek toured Ontario about the year 1880 and appeared in Belleville. E. W. Johnston was the son of father of Bert Johnston, present owner of the Johnston scrap book which is full of interesting memorabilia of days long ago. Bert Johnston will be remembered for his magic show which toured Canada for years, and went to west. Now Bert has transferred his wand and magic lore to his son, who is touring Ontario with his own company and meeting with great success.

Bert Johnston, the original magician, takes great store by his father's own scrapbook, especially since the death of his father a few years ago in Hamilton, and he likes to visit Belleville where his father once lived and spent many happy days.

He has been chairman of Bridges for twelve years and when the chairmanship was amalgamated with that of roads in 1925, he took on the extra duty and has performed a distinct service to the council on this important committee.

He knows the county road system better than any member of the council and keeps well posted on the maintenance that is necessary. He has been a staunch supporter of permanently surfaced roads and it is likely the council at their session this January, will recommend that the permanent system of roads be inaugurated in this township. Mr. Moore has been offered the [illegible] but turned down the honor.

NUNS INJURED IN MONTREAL FIRE

Montreal, Jan. 27.—Four hundred school girls walked safely out of Ste. Helene School today, thanks to the heroism of the sisters of the congregation of Notre Dame, three of whom were badly burned in trying to subdue the flames. The top floor of the four-storey building was badly damaged before the flames had been extinguished.

Sister Sainte Seraphie suffered burns about the face and hands and was in a serious condition last night. Sister Superior Sainte Honore de Canterbury suffered burns on one hand, and Sister Sainte Colombe suffered a lacerated hand from breaking a window to give the alarm.

The fire started in the Christmas crib of large replica of the crib of Bethlehem, set up at Christmas time and usually removed at the end of January.

CHURCHILL ASSAILS PREMIER AND LABOR PARTY ON INDIAN POLICY

Baldwin Repudiates Statements — Major Sensation of the Sitting

London, Jan. 27.—When Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill last night attacked Premier MacDonald Government's India policy during debate on the Round-Table Conference report, he was severely rebuffed and his views sharply repudiated by his party leader, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin.

The sitt provided the major sensation of yesterday's sitting of the House of Commons; it swiftly succeeded the earlier sensation created by the bitter invective of Mr. Churchill's denunciation of the proposal for a constitution for India.

Mr. Baldwin's repudiation of Mr. Churchill was as measured as Mr. Churchill's denunciation was bitter.

"Agitation in India will continue," Mr. Churchill said. "But it will no longer be confined to street riots. It will invade the heart and brain of the Government of India. The struggle will proceed steadily toward the sever-

RAILWAY HEADS WILL CONFER ON FRUIT TERMINAL

Col. T. L. Kennedy Hopes to Effect Settlement with Jobbers

ARE UNANIMOUS

Possibility of a Union Terminal Operated on an Efficiency Basis

TORONTO, Jan. 27—In an endeavour to reconcile the two railways on the projected union fruit terminal here, Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, sent invitations yesterday to Sir Henry Thornton and E. W. Beatty, presidents of the C.N.R. and C.P.R. to attend a conference at his office at Queen's Park on February 5.

Two representatives of the Toronto fruit jobbers and commission merchants also are being invited. Col. Kennedy himself will undertake to represent the interests of the growers and the Toronto public, a duty for which he feels especially fitted by his farming experience and his previous investigations into marketing made at the Government's request.

By thus bringing together all the parties interested Colonel Kennedy hopes to effect settlement of differences between the two railways and between the railways and the jobbers. With a compromise, the conference will result in Toronto getting the up-to-date efficient market which has been the unanswered, the insistent demand of fruit and vegetable growers throughout the province as well as of the Toronto public.

Some weeks ago it was believed that

OPIUM SECRETED IN SHIP'S MAST

New York, Jan. 27.—A knock on the mast of what did not ring true was responsible for the holding by customs officers today of the British freighter Raby Castle of Liverpool, with 300 pounds of alleged opium valued at $120,000. A rigorous and detailed search will reveal more opium, it is believed.

MAYOR SUPPORTS IMPROVEMENT PLAN

Joins Colborne Majority to Carry Waterworks Proposal

Mayor Reid and Mrs. Reid returned last night from a trip to Windsor, Detroit and Toronto. They stopped over yesterday at Colborne where the ratepayers were voting on a waterworks proposition. Mayor Reid says that the plan was voted for and the improvements and saw the proposal carried by eight votes. Last year the same proposition met defeat by two votes.

TAX PAYMENTS ARE AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

Trenton, Jan. 27 (Special to Ontario Intelligencer)—In the Municipal Arena, Tax Collector W. H. Waldorf reports payments are being ahead of last year. "At the present time unpaid taxes on the books, Last year Trenton has approximately $35000.00 at this time there were over $40000.00" said the collector.

Bright Little Chap Sees Robin and Loves Nature

Mother Nature has a little devotee Eugene Shortis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Shortis, 42 Great St. James Street. He is about six years of age and is already a close student of nature and has sympathy for robins and other birds and has knowledge of flowers.

Today this little chap appeared at the door of the Ontario Intelligencer and modestly asked: "Do you charge anything to say something about Mother nature?" He went on to tell that he had seen a robin near the river bank a couple of days ago and had picked two bunchest of pussy willows in bloom, as evidence of which he brought one as a gift to the newspaper office. Eugene was told that the story he brought was real news to the people and would not cost him anything to have published.

He is observant and a lover of nature and in him the birds and flowers have a true friend.

Hibernating Tendency In Building to End Here

Prospects are good for building. At least many people and organizations have plans which will propably materialize in the near future. An architect told of having prepared specifications for a number of important buildings in the district, which will proceed early in the spring, as soon as conditions are favourable. Another indication of improving conditions and the signs of spring.

"But why is there so little building done here in the winter?" this architect asked of Ontario Intelligencer. "Why the hibernating mentality in regard to building? Why do we wait till the grass starts to grow?" And he went on to state that winter construction is carried on in Western Ontario without let-up for cold or storm, while in this portion of the province there is little winter building.

There is, however, a sign that the feeling in Eastern Ontario is turning in favor of all-year construction. Throughout the country is growing the sentiment through the use of Hydro electric power, through good roads and other agencies. The sentiment of the province from one end to the other is growing so that all parts of Ontario will feel a unity in regard to winter building.

Builders look for the day not far distant when there will be no "hibernation" as to building in the winter months of the year. That will be a better day for everybody and generally for all trades and professions. It will eliminate, the architect told the newspaperman, much of the seasonal inactivity.

PHYSICIAN DENIES DETAIL OF REPORT

Cause of Death of Mrs. Mary Davis of Trenton, Acute Endocarditis

Absolute denial of the details of the story of the death of Mrs. Mary Agnes Davis, of Trenton, as published in last evening's issue was given today by Dr. McQuade, of Trenton, the attending physician, when the alleged cause of death as acute endocarditis. The report stated erroneously that the heart had been greatly enlarged and that it burst with a report which could be heard. This was denied by the doctor in conversation with the reporter today.

CHAS. THOMPSON IS LIKELY CHOICE AS NEW WARDEN

STAUNCH CONSERVATIVE

President Madoc Cheese Company and a Successful Farmer

It was expected that when Hastings County Council convened this afternoon, that Charles W. Thompson Reeve of Madoc Township would be elected Warden for the coming year. Mr. Thompson has been mooted ed for the post for some time past and his expected elevation to the post will be a popular one, as Mr. Thompson was the unanimous choice of the Conservative caucus and since it is that party's turn to name a man for the chair, it is believed there would be no opposition from the ranks of the other members of that august body.

CHAS. W. THOMPSON

The new Warden belongs to the chair keen executive ability, tempered with a kindly disposition and he is a man highly respected by all his confreres in council. He has served on all the important committees of the council, and has a grasp of the County business. Last year he served as chairman of the Old Age Pension Board, the business being if first class shape for his successor.

The new Warden entered municipal life in his adopted township in 1911.

SCRAP BOOK REVEALS INTERESTING HISTORY OF OLD-TIME BELLEVILLE

IS WELL KNOWN

Son is Now Touring Ontario, a Successful Magician

Belleville's handsome and well equipped public library, one of the many monuments to the memory of Senator Harry Corby who saved Belleville the necessity of appealing to Andrew Carnegie, the Laird of Skibo, for one of his model libraries scattered so plentifully over the land as the result of profits made by Dour Andrew in the steel business, is far removed from its humble beginnings when the "Mechanic's Institute," which may be remembered by old timers, was a feature of the old Mechanic's Institute were awakened by a perusal of an old scrap book brought to the reading public by Bert Johnson, entertainer well known from coast to coast as a magician whose both hands were always quicker than many eyes. The scrap book was started by his father, E. M. Johnson, once a resident of Belleville, connected with the Mechanic's Institute and conductor of a gymnasium where the young folks were taught how to make their bodies supple and vigorous. The scrap book was an interesting character, containing the general all-round athletic championship of the world and had many medals and parchments to prove it. In his day in Belleville Chief of Police McKinnon was a great athlete and was never bested at putting the shot. Duncan Ross was another local athlete of prominence in the town, and with E. W. Johnston the trio made athletic history in Canada and the United States, mastering and taking part in athletic events in many towns and cities.

E. W. Johnston conducted a hotel at Lindsay at one time and the scrap book contains one leaf of the guest register with the autographs of Madame Albanichet by which company which included the well known actor Tyrone Power who is still going strong in the movies. Madame Janauschek toured Ontario about the year 1880 and appeared in Belleville. E. W. Johnston was the father of Bert Johnston, present owner of the Johnston scrap book which is full of interesting reminiscences of long ago. Bert Johnston will be remembered for his magic show which toured Ontario for years from coast to coast. Now Bert has transferred his wand and magic lore to his son, who is touring Ontario with his own company and meeting with great success.

Bert Johnston, the original magician, takes great interest in his father's own scrapbook, especially since the death of his father a few years ago in Hamilton where he went to visit Belleville where his father once lived and spent many happy days.

CUT WOOD ON AIR CAMP

With a desire to help the needy people in Trenton and vicinity, in the important matter of keeping their homes warm during the winter, and acting in co-operation with Mr. W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., and Mayor C. W. Lott, Mr. W. R. Tummon, M.P., has made arrangements for the cutting of a large quantity of second growth hardwood on Air Camp area, to provide firing for those unable to obtain it in the ordinary way. Mayor Lott, of Trenton, received a letter from the Deputy Minister of National Defense, Col. C. J. Desbarats, informing him that the Department was willing to have the trees cut off such area as would be designated by the Resident Engineer, Mr. W. B. Wilson, for distribution under the supervision of Mayor Lott, and the Chief of Police, acting for the Relief Committee. It is understood that the wood be cut and brought into town, and piled on a lot, kindly provided by Mr. B. W. Powers, where it will be ready to supply any needy one with firing.

DELIGHTFUL PARTY

A delightful time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Gray, Donald street last night, when a number of friends gathered for a euchre and a dance. The ladies winning prizes were Mrs. R. White, Miss Ghrina and Miss Brown, gentlemen Mr. Ingram, Wesley Gray and Mr. Paul. Refreshments by Ingram and Morgan gave a number of Scotch selections as it was "Bobbie Burns night", while Misses Christie Muldrum and Annie Morgan contributed dances. Helen and T. Byrnes supplied the music for the dancing which completed a most enjoyable evening.

SANDING ROADS

After melting yesterday, it froze slightly last night and a thin coating of ice covered the roads, making driving dangerous. Early this morning the city employees were putting sand and ashes on the east Bridge street hill and on Victoria Avenue. Before these were laid it was practically impossible to drive a car up the icy inclines.

ORANGE EUCHRE

The euchre and dance of the L.O.L. and L.O.B.A. held in the Orange Hall last night was a success from every standpoint. Rummy and euchre were played in the forepart of the evening to be followed by dancing. Refreshments were served late in the evening —The prize winners at euchre were: Ladies 1st—Miss Ethie Lloyd; 2nd, Mrs. E. Kerr; 3rd Mrs. S. Turner. Men's 1st, Adam Palmer; 2nd Henry Smith; 3rd William McKenna. Rummy winners included: Ladies 1st, Mrs. Binkley; 2nd Mrs. J. Hanna.

TABERNACLE Y.P. MET

The Young People's League of Tabernacle Church held their organization meeting for the year in the church parlours last evening. The following executive was elected: President K. Bird; Christian Stewardship, Jessie Smith; Missionary Department, Ethel Herron; Citizenship, A. Dowell; Social and Literary, Gladys Emerson; Secretary, Rachel Fox; Treasurer, A. Gaurden.

CAR REPORTED STOLEN

A car reported stolen from Cobourg on January 25th, was recovered today on West Bridge street by the local police and Chief Rose of Cobourg notified. This car was abandoned on West Bridge street some time yesterday afternoon, and as no one came for the motor, the police were notified and upon investigation found that it had been stolen. The car was removed to the police station by means of a tow as the gasoline tank was empty.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED

In commemoration of the birthday of Mrs. A. E. Baldwin, a party was held last evening at the Palatial home of the family, 14 Yeomans Street, and it proved to be a most enjoyable function to the invited guests. Mrs Baldwin was the recipient of many useful gifts. In the early part of the evening progressive euchre was indulged in, and the prize winners were as follows: Ladies, Mrs. T. Gill 1st; Mrs. B Mills 2nd; Mrs. R. Angel 3rd and Mrs. W. P. Price consolation. Gents, H. Reid 1st; W. J. Price 2nd; P. Bishop 3rd and F. Bryne consolation.

At the conclusion of the competitions a dainty lunch was partaken of after which dancing was indulged in. During the evening Mr. Jack Toomey gave a recitation which was highly appreciated as was also songs rendered by Mr. Baldwin. All present voted Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin an ideal host and hostess.

TODAY'S TEMPERATURES

Wild Geese in Waters of Bay

Eight Canada Geese Swimming in Open Water Near the Bay Bridge

Belleville folk have a feeling for the wild life guests of this city. A recent appeal through this paper for aid to carry on the work of feeding the Canada geese and ducks at the sanctuary has brought a response from Mr. C. A. C. Weir of one hundred pounds of corn and of hays it was given in the Bellevile Seed Company.

President Walter Turner of the Hastings branch of the Fish and Game League told the reporter today that eight Canada geese were seen yesterday in the open water of the bay near the Fairmere end of the bay bridge. Mr. Ralph Boulter called his attention to the presence of the geese and asked if he had any geese flying at the sanctuary. Mr. Turner replied that he had two flying but not clipt, and this morning he went to the sanctuary to see if there were any signs of the geese flying off the sanctuary grounds, but there were no signs. Mr. Turner stated that he believes these geese remained here through the influence of the sanctuary and is just what he and those interested in the sanctuary have been expecting to develop. He claims that the sanctuary will catch the attentions of hunting wild fowl in this part and will tend to keep the wild geese and ducks in this vicinity

CORRECT LENSES IMPERATIVE FOR GOOD EYE SIGHT

Mr. Edmund W. Worth, manager of the local branch of the American Optical Company, was the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Y's Men held in the Y.M.C.A. last night. He spoke on "the optical industry's contribution to modern society."

"The industry can be said to have had its beginning back in the middle ages, as lenses have been dug out of mud which were fashioned out of rough quartz or crystal," he said. Coming down to modern times, Mr. Worth observed that children in schools are under severe eye-strain and he deplored the fact that young men are forced to study at home at nights when their resistance after a hard day in school is least.

"The relationship between good sight and industrial efficiency is bound to acquire increasing importance as time goes on. We can readily figure the value of a good pair of eyes at $1,000 as an item of factory equipment, but in reality they are worth a great deal more than that."

Continuing, Mr. Worth said that the securing of corrected lenses had meant that thousands have been saved years to their wage earning period.

Turning to another angle, Mr. Worth said that no only is good eye sight imperative in factories, but buyers for large establishments must be prepared to distinguish between superior and inferior goods. "The eyes are the most valuable as well as the most complicated piece of machinery in any factory and they must be protected."

In this regard he mentioned the use of goggles in welding shops in order to safeguard the eyes.

With the aid of optical glasses the existence of many kinds of obscure bacteria which otherwise could not be has been detected. Without optical glasses medical science would have made little if any notable progress during the past decade and the annual toll taken by disease would be greater. Engineers would be ignorant of the structure of metals, while food pollution would be incompletely understood. It is with the aid of the chromatic lense system in microscopes and telescopes that all this research has become possible. Imagine if you can, a world without field glasses, telescopes and Atlantic liners without optical instruments. How much would we know of astronomy without the marvellous lenses in the gigantic telescopes and what is the use of a submarines without a periscope?"

In closing he spoke of the great benefits conferred upon mankind by the optical industry.

VESTRY MEETINGS

The Annual Vestry Meeting of St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, was held in the Guild Rooms on Tuesday evening, January 20th, with the Rector, the Rev. P. Gedley Reynolds in the chair. The financial statements with regard to the Church, the Guild, and the Sunday School were presented and adopted.

The yearly reports showed an increase in Church attendance, and also in Communicants. The Sunday School was also reported to have for the year a new furnace has been put in the Rectory and also the Rectory roof has been re-shingled. Some minor repairs were also done to the church fabric, and the new bell erected.

Mr. Harry Bleasdell was re-elected as Rector's Warden, and Mr. Robt. Belshaw as People's Warden. Mr. G. S. Wilkinson was elected as Lay Delegate to the Synod. Mr. T. T. Naylor also again consented to act as Vestry Clerk.

The Rector thanked the Officers for their assistance during the past year, also the Organist and Choir for their valuable help in the services of the Church.

The hearty thanks of the congregation were expressed to Rev. and Mrs. Reynolds for their untiring efforts in the parish. The meeting closed with the benediction.

The Ladies' Guild of the Church of St. John the Baptist held a very pleasant meeting with the Rector, Rev. Eughre at the home of Mrs. Frank Smith on Wednesday evening. The attendance was very fair on account of so many other interests. The Ladies' Prize was won by Mrs. W. E. Conger and the Gentleman's Prize by Mr. Geo. Springhatn. The consolation prizes went to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hart. A dainty lunch was served at the close of the evening. The ladies plan to hold the next at the home of Mrs. E. C. Tufts on Wednesday evening, February 4th.

CHIMNEY BLAZE

A Chimney blaze at the residence of Mr. Geo. Coulson on Elgin Street was the cause of a Fire Alarm on Monday evening. The fire was soon under control and little damage reported.

One of the most successful Congregational meetings ever held in Trinity United Church was that of Tuesday evening last. There was a good attendance and a hearty interest taken in all the proceedings. After devotional exercises had been conducted by the Pastor, Dr. W. G. Rivers, the meeting was organized by the appointment of the minister as chairman, and Mr. Percy Holland as Secretary. The minutes of the last Congregational Meeting were read and adopted. Mr. Rivers then reported that during the year 1930 he had baptized one adult and twelve children; he had performed five marriage ceremonies and had 14 funerals.

Mr. Jas. A. Caskey reported for the Session that there had been a gain in membership of eight during the year; seven were received on profession of faith and thirteen by certificate, while eight were removed by Certificate and four by death.

In the absence of Mr. Jas. Keene, Supt., Mrs. Huffman reported for the Sunday School that the boys have been organized into Trail Rangers and Knights of King Arthur and other activities, and show a fine attendance at both Sunday School and Church worship. The School has done well in 1930 both from the standpoint of attendance and financial support.

The Young People's League also reported a good year with Mr. H. C. Johnston as President. The meetings have been well maintained in spite of interruptions and about $200.00 has been raised, over $190.00 being given to support Missionaries in China and Canada.

The Young Worshippers' League has also a very good report to give so far as attendance upon Morning Worship is concerned.

The President of the Woman's Missionary Society, Mrs. S. J. Bayley, stated that the allocate of $325 had been raised, and $48.00 contributed to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund, while two large bales valued at $70.00 and $100.00 respectively had been sent to the needy. The meetings of the Society are full of interest and education as well as spiritual inspiration.

The Mission Band was represented by Master Douglas Hough, who spoke well of the work of the Band which has raised over $60.00 this year. But the money contributed is only a part of the value of the Band; the training of the boys and girls to take part in meetings and to take an interest in boys and girls in other lands where the Gospel is not yet preached means a great deal to them. Mrs. W. H. Bailey and Mrs. J. Rutherford, with other helpers, superintend the Mission Band.

The Treasurer of the Church, Mr. W. H. McNain, had a splendid report to give of the financial year just closed. A larger amount was raised this year than for many years, and that in spite of the difficult conditions of this period. Emphasis was placed upon the need of a more general and regular use of the weekly-offering envelopes.

The thought was dwelt upon by Mr. T. E. Burnside, Chairman of the Board of Stewards, and by several

A MILLION FAT FOLKS CAN'T BE WRONG

And that's a low estimate of the number taking Kruschen to keep down superfluous fat.

When you take vitalising Kruschen Salts for a few days that old indolent arm-chair feeling deserts you — it doesn't matter how fat you are—the urge for activity has got you—you're "stepping lively."

And last of all you like this activity — you walk a couple of miles and enjoy it, you thought you'd never dance again, but you find you're getting as spry as ever — the old zingy, bubbling, feeling reaches from your feet.

Kruschen is a combination of the six salts Nature has already put into your body to keep you healthy. If you were not for these vital salts you could not live.

One bottle is enough to prove to you that Kruschen will make you feel younger — years younger — therefore you'll enjoy every minute of it.

A half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water every morning is all you need to keep healthy—keep your stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys in splendid action—free your system from harmful toxins and acids.

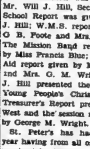
other officials who engaged in the discussion. Hearty appreciation of the work of Mr. McNain was expressed, and he was re-elected as Church Treasurer, and Messrs. Geo. White and W. E. Connor as Auditors.

On motion of Mr. Wm. McMechan and Mr. T. E. Burnside a hearty vote of thanks and appreciation was tendered to Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Rivers for their untiring efforts on behalf of the congregation. The motion was carried enthusiastically by all present standing and applauding Mr. and Mrs. Rivers. Each spoke feelingly in appreciation of the kindness and co-operation of the people in the work of the Church.

A motion of appreciation of the work of Miss Ramsay as Organist, and the Choirs was proposed by Mr. Colin Ross, Chairman of the Music Committee, who made special mention of the Junior Choir which is adding to the interest in the services.

Mrs. J. W. Hulin, Envelope Steward, reported that up-to-date about $975 has been contributed to the Missionary and Maintenance fund. This is somewhat less than last year, but is an encouraging contribution for the year.

The Stewards elected for 1931, as reported by the elders who acted as tellers, are: Messrs. T. E. Burnside, R. F. Bristol, S. Fox, J. Rutherford, W. A. Wyper, C. I. Ross, J. B. Hough, J. Trotter, G. F. Maybee, G. S. White, P. Holland and J. W. Hulin.



Splendid contributions to the evening's enjoyment were made by Miss L. M. Ramsay and Mrs. J. W. Hulin, who rendered vocal solos in their usual pleasing style, and the Misses Helen and Kathleen Lidstrom, and Mr. Harry Dooley, who delighted the assembly with their instrumental numbers.

After a social half-hour, during which refreshments were served, the Doxology and Benediction brought this successful meeting to a close.

The Annual Meeting of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church was held in the Vestry Room on Wednesday evening with a large number present. Rev. T. G. Marshall was Chairman and Mr. Will J. Hill, Secretary. Sabbath School Report was given by Mr. W. J. Hill. W.M.S. report given by Mrs. G B. Foote and Mrs. C. E. Wright. The Mission Band report was given by Mrs. Francis Bine; and the Ladies Aid report given by Mrs. Thos. Bine and Mrs. G. M. Wright. Mrs. W. J. Hill presented the report of the Young Peoples Christian Endeavor. Treasurer's Report presented by Geo. West and the session report presented by George M. Wright.

St. Peter's has had a wonderful year having from all organizations approximately $3500.00, having of this amount laid away about $600.00. All societies are in a healthy condition. The membership is 165 and the congregation had four deaths in the year 1930: Mrs. David Ward, Mrs. John Barton, Mrs. William Kilpatrick and Mrs. Thomas Campbell.

ACID after meals

GET RID of your dread of pain after eating. End without fear of "indigestion," sour stomach, disagreeable gas or headaches.

When your food ferments, "disagrees," lies like a lump in your stomach, it's a sign of too much acid. You need not resort to crude methods—take instead an anti-acid that will correct the condition. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

A spoonful of this pleasant-tasting, creamy fluid neutralizes many times its volume in acid. It restores the proper alkaline balance to an acid-soaked stomach and bowels—assists these organs to function as they should.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is what you need when a bad breath, coated tongue, headache, nausea or illness indicates an over-acid condition. Take a spoonful today and for several days and see how it sweetens the system. You won't be nearly so liable to colds or sickness. All drug stores in the Dominion sell it in 50c bottles.

Genuine Milk of Magnesia is always a liquid—never a tablet. Look for the name Phillips on the bottle.

ROTARIANS PAY THEIR TRIBUTES TO ROBERT BURNS

Scottish Atmosphere at Weekly Meeting of Local Service Club

The birthday of Robert Burns, whom Scots and others the world over delight to honour on his natal day, was commemorated by Rotary Rotary Club Monday in a special program dedicated to Scotland's immortal bard. Scotch tunes by Pipe Major Bankier, Leo Rigzi, Jamieson Bone, MacKenzie Robertson, Jack Lill, Jock Thomson, Bernard Robertson and other Scots and near Scots, contributed a congenial Scottish atmosphere, and speaker of day was a MacDonald of Scots MacDonalds, who despite the fact that he was introduced by Huntingdon Irishman, Owen Heriot, did well by our Bobbie. James Macdonald, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Picton was the guest speaker, and he spoke feelingly of the debt Scotland and the world owes Robert Burns for his splendid verses depicting Scottish life, and aspirations, poems that were sacred and revered as the destiny of freemen. Burns lived 37½ years ago and his life and actions according with the times. Mr. Macdonald he was a sinner but what a bonnie sinner was Bobbie, neither better nor worse than the sinners of that day and ge, but subject to criticism on account of his great talent which placed him out as one apart from the crowd. Burns was born in humble circumstances and suffered privation and misery, rising to comparative affluence when appointed an excmenter at the munificent salary of seventy-five pounds the year, a lot of money in those folk in those days. Illustrating his talk with quotations from the poems of Burns the speaker depicted a lowland home as Burns knew, who even if he was a sinner was a very lovable sinner, and indeed not a sinner at all but a great guid man of his day and generation.

Jack Lill voiced Rotary appreciation of the excellent address by his customary witty manner and Ed Worth added an English blessing. So that all in all a Scottish night at Rotary was an unqualified success.

BURNY ANNIVERSARY AT GRENVILLE LODGE

The annual meeting of Grenville Lodge A.F. and A.M., Toronto held, with many distinguished visitors, a memorable night on Saturday, the 25th Burns' anniversary, when the two sons of Grand Master Dargivel were initiated by him in his home Lodge, of which High Commissioner Howard Ferguson is a member. No less than 130 Past and Present Grand Lodge Officers were present. Grenville Lodge took advantage of the occasion to present to the Deputy Grand Master, Walter S. Herrington, K.C., of Napanee, a splendid gold jewel service consisting of four candlesticks and a central bowl, all sterling silver, in recognition of his fine and scholarly work in writing the history of Grand Lodge. He is universally known as the historian of the Bay of Quinte. W.M. Geo. Young, Secretary of the Grand Secretary, W. M. Logan, made the presentation on behalf of Grand Lodge.

The consignment was billed to the address of a fictitious person in Toronto, but it was intercepted in transit at Truro and taken back to Halifax by the preventive police for the suspicion of railway officials in the Windsor yards. They broke the seals and were replaced on the car and it was allowed to go forward. It reached Toronto and the man there arranged for its being stored in the Customs warehouse. Great credit is given the preventive service for having found the origin of the cargo and also its destination.

AUXILIARY HELD ANNUAL MEETING

Miss Frances Lazier is President for the Ensuing Year

St. Thomas' Branch of the Girls' W.A. held their annual meeting last night in the Parish Hall with a large percentage of their twenty-five members attending the meeting. The meeting opened with prayers and a short business period was held before the new officers were elected. For the coming year Miss Frances Lazier was elected President, Miss Phyllis Davis, Vice President; Miss Olive Reavie, Secretary; Miss Bernice Arbuckle, Treasurer. Delegates to the Annual meeting, Miss Lillian Hall and Miss Ena Potter. Mrs. Lyons was re-elected leader of the group as were the Junior Leaders and the past year's Miss Amey Walbridge and Mrs. J. W. Davison. Mrs. F. C. Anderson was present to address the girls and she did so in a most interesting manner, taking missions as her theme and describing conditions in California, the unkempt homes of the Nepi Indians and the Pueblos and the great work they can yet be done to bring the full meaning of Christianity to these people. A vote of thanks to Mrs. Anderson's address the retiring officers provided refreshments for the group and a happy social half hour or so was spent over the teacups.

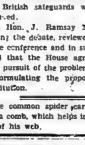
ance of every tie."

"If this had happened to be a day of silence for Mr. Churchill, I would not have intervened," said Mr. Baldwin, his words playing upon Gandhi's weekly "day of silence." A previous speaker having referred to the loss of the American colonies, Mr. Baldwin continued:

"If George the Third had been endowed with the language of Edmund Burke, he would have made just such a speech as has Mr. Churchill.

Will Work for Federation

Mr. Baldwin left no doubt as to his party's co-operative attitude from the views of Mr. Churchill when he declared further that any Conservative Government which he might lead would consider it a duty to implement as far as possible, what has been done at the Round-Table Conference and would work for a federal constitution for India.



Col. Lane-Fox, a member of the Indian Statutory Commission, said: "Mr. Churchill completely misconceives the difficulties of the situation. His unwise speech may well help to wither the olive branch which the Indian delegates are taking back to India. Mr. Churchill admitted that he spoke only for himself. The official party view had previously been set forth by Sir Samuel Hoare who unstintingly approved the Round-Table decisions provided that British safeguards were rigidly preserved.

Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald, opening the debate, reviewed the work of the conference and in summing up, asked that the House agree to continue pursuit of the problem presented by formulating the proposed Indian constitution.

Canada's Atlantic Fisheries

On the Atlantic coast of Canada the cod and lobster fisheries nearly equal each other in importance, although the value of the production of cod usually value of the production of cod lobster. However, in 1929, the lobster industry was second on the list of commercial fishes, with cod third and halibut fourth. Salmon of course, as on the Pacific coast, headed the list.

Canadian Gas Utilization

The sales of manufactured gas in Canada during 1929 for domestic purposes totalled 17,832,815 thousand cubic feet; for industrial purposes natural gas consumed for similar purposes amounted approximately to 16,000,000 thousand cubic feet, while industrial concerns used 12,000,000 thousand cubic feet of natural gas.

DARRAGH STARRED FOR WOODSTOCK IN GAME WITH BRANTS

Brantford, Jan. 27.—Woodstock intermediates finished their O.H.A. schedule here last night with a 6-1 victory over Grantford. The Red and White piled in a three-goal lead in the first frame, but after that had to work for their bacon. Brants held them to one goal in the second session and scored the next one themselves, the group leaders coming back with two more to raise the total to six.

The game was wildly exciting, the Brants using N. Kipp, of the junior team on the defence, with Amos and the pair were not sparing with the old bodycheck.

The winners played hard and fast and the two goals on Evens to Darragh combinations in the first period being just about the best scored here this season.

MARKHAM GAIN ONE GOAL LEAD

LINDSAY, Jan. 27.—With a flying start of two goals in the first period, and displaying greater speed than the locals, the Markham intermediates took a one-goal lead back to Markham on the section play off when they took Lindsay Ven by a 3-2 score in the closest contest of the year, played before a capacity crowd at the local arena last night. The visitors were on with every shot, while the locals were off color in their shooting, and, in the last period especially, played all over the Markham team, only to miss on their scoring attempts. Time after time they were in on the nets for what looked like sure tallies only to have tough luck rob them.

In the first canto Markham had a two-goal edge with the second break-ing even with a goal for each team. In the final frame the Lindsay team swarmed all over the visitors to score their last goal, and were outlucked on many other occasions. The first goal by Reesor and the last by Prentice for Markham were beautiful plays, when they slated right in on McClory who had no chance to save. The other Markham counter was of a decidedly fluky nature, when Hare, a defence-man, uncovered by the Lindsay defence in the corner, let one go from an almost impossible angle to beat McClory, who was coming out to cover him.

Although there are many counter attractions in the city tonight, it is expected that a large number will attend the hockey game at the Arena, where the championship of the group is at stake. Kingston Frontenacs will be the visitors and Belleville must win the game and Stan Burgoyne is trotting out a good squad to combat the Limestone squad. Should Belleville win and Trenton defeat Kingston in Trenton Belleville and Trenton will be tied. The team has been practicing faithfully for the game and hope to redeem the loss they sustained in Kingston. Bankard is ready for the goalie's job while Ingram and Green should provide a hard hitting defence. The Canning Twins and Buck will compose one front line with Davis being the pivot for the other line. The other two men will not be chosen until before game time. Kingston have a smart team and it was a surprise when Trenton turned the tables on them. The night is warm and the ice is in good condition and a large crowd should be on hand.

The District Cup competition to be held in Cobourg today was called off late last night on account of slow ice. The competition calls for two degrees of frost when the game starts but this was thought impossible with mild weather prevailing. The curling competition will likely be held on Thursday or Friday of this week. The rinks that were to have represented Belleville will likely have another practice game before they take on the best in the district in the roaring game.

Basketball is becoming a major sport in the city and every week a larger following is being made. The Y's Men's team rep'senting Belleville in the intermediate section is going great guns at the present time and look on their way to repeat their success of last year when they moved into the semi-finals before going out. This year the team has been strengthened and the boys to date have won all their games, one being on a foreign floor. On Wednesday night they tackle Napanee on the "Y" floor and "Al" Walters, manager and Ralph Mordern, coach, believe the team will come out on the right side of the score. Owing to the small accommodation the club has a hard time meeting their expenses but if the fans will fill the "Y" on Wednesday night, the boys will be more than thankful.

Queen's juniors almost turned the trick against Kingston last night, when the Frontenacs were extended to win by 4-3. Tomorrow night the local juniors travel to Kingston to battle the Cadets from the Military College and have to win to stand at least a chance to enter the play-off. The big game of the week will be the game on Friday night when Kingston and Gananoque meet in the Summer Town. If the Frontenacs win the game, the locals will have but a slim chance to get in. Nevertheless the juniors are going to Kingston to redeem themselves in the eyes of the fans and show that they can win a game away from home.

GUELPH BEATEN IN RAGGED GAME

Guelph, Jan. 27.—Stratford Nationals handed the Guelph Maple Leafs the first defeat of the season on local ice when they pulled out a 4-3 win here last evening before the smallest crowd of the season. It was a lucky break for the regular fans who stayed away, for the Leafs gave a ragged exhibition and handed the verdict to the Nationals on loose play.

The first two periods produced the most ragged hockey seen in this city in the last two years of pro puck clashing and the fans howled for action in vain. The last period was somewhat more interesting when the home team went in on the attack in an attempt to undo the damage their loose defensive work hit created earlier in the tussle.

The Leafs were unable to do anything right, it seemed, although two of their three goals were the result of smart plays. But it was defensively that the club looked bad and was really bad enough to give away the game. Ironstone, in goal, had an off night and besides fanning on a shot from centre ice, was slow in clearing. but in this latter respect he was not alone, as the defence was ever worse and three of the four National goals were the result of miserable work on loose pucks.

In the Ladies' Afternoon league the Ramblers took all four points from the Athletics, but they had to step on it all the way to do it, as these Athletes are coming along in great style. However when the Ramblers are in form they are a hard team for anybody to beat. High bowlers were Mrs. Lauder for the Ramblers and Mrs. Madden for the Athletics.

Two Bush League games were rolled last night, Stephens Adamson annexed three points and the Alerts one point in the first, while in the second game the Wild Cats took four points from the Ontario Intell, and how! But it is safe bet this is the last their best game this season. It is hoped so. All the teams appear to be getting better as the league should be a hot one right down the stretch. Some nice singles were set up last night as the scores will show.

PETES' VICTORY TIED THE GROUP

Bowmanville, Jan. 27—Peterboro intermediates scored an easy 4-2 victory over Bowmanville in the final scheduled O.H.A. fixture here last night. The win for the Petes tied up the second place and the two teams will have to play off a sudden death game for the right to meet Oshawa in the play-offs.

The locals had little trouble defeating this same team in Peterboro two weeks ago, and with this in mind let them run away with the game last night.

The first period saw the visitors have things pretty much their own way and while the locals made a few brilliant plays the Petes did the scoring and carried of the honors of the period.

Maudsley opened the scoring for the visitors after the minutes play on an easy shot, the puck rolling into the net. Calladine nettde the second when the Bowmanville goalman tripped trying to save, and the period with Petes leading 2 to 0.

The locals played a little better hockey in the second period but neither team made much headway on the soft ice. The visitors added another goal to their score when Maudsley netted on a clean shot from the blue line.

The final stanza was the only one in which the locals showed any form and then it was only after Peterboro had scored their fourth tally. Utronki doing the shooting. Piper opened the scoring for the locals towards the end and from then on the Bowmanville team kept up a barrage on the visitor's net. Jackman added the second two minutes from the end, and several close shots featured the dying moments of the game. Final score Peterboro 4, Bowmanville 2.

Peterboro—Goal Gillespie; defence, Hackey and Lebarr; centre, Maudsley; wings, Hatton and Creighton; subs, Jarvis, Calladine and Utronki.

Bowmanville—Goal James; defence Hooper and Cameron; centre, Candler; wings, Brimning and Piper; subs, Chartran, Jackman and Rundle.

He was born in Elsevir Township fifty-eight years ago. He served in Madoc town council until 1914, when he was elected as Deputy Reeve of Madoc Township. He sat in County Council until 1926 and then retired. In 1928 he returned to the County Council as Reeve and has been a member since that time. His home is only a short distance from the village of Madoc, and he is one of the most successful farmers in the district. He has always taken a keen interest in the dairy business, and since 1907 has served on president of the Madoc Cheese Company. In his younger life he married Miss Florence Countryman, and the union has been blessed with four children, Reed, a teacher at Wooler, Jennie, John and Allen all at home. Warden Thompson is an adherent of the United Church and fraternally is a member of the Orange Order. In politics he is a staunch Conservative.

25TH ANNIVERSARY WAS MARKED IN HAPPY FASHION

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Law Were Recipients of Numerous Gifts

On Saturday evening, about 100 relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Law, to celebrate with Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Law, College St., the 25th anniversary of their wedding day. The remarkable esteem for the happy couple was shown in the beautiful gifts they received from their many friends. Mr. Law is a member of the Thursday Social Club, a subject decorated cake from W. Taylor, and Mrs. Law, Mrs. J. Taylor, who called upon to make a presentation and read a note of congratulation and good wishes for many happy years to come. Mr. and Mrs. Law received gifts Daughters of England. The following friends journey into city to be present, and Mrs. and Mrs. Law, Mrs. Bonisteel, and Mrs. J. H. Bonisteel, Mrs. James Hill, Mrs. Mallett, Mrs. Hill Taylor, Mrs. Abel, Mrs. J. Bonisteel, ton. Cards were played in the early part of the evening, euchre and bridge being the games enjoyed. The winners of the euchre parties were as follows, guests 1st Mr. Batchelor, 2nd Mrs. Batchelor, 3rd Mrs. Bonisteel; bridge 1st, Mrs. A. Law, 2nd Mrs. Law, 3rd, Mrs. Grant, Bonisteel, 4th Mrs. J. Breeder and Miss M. Brophy. Tea was served for bridge players, and these were won by Mr. Jacks and Miss Mitchell. A dainty supper was served by a committee of ladies, members of Daughters of England, and friends. Mr. Ross Taylor gave two humorous recitations which were well received as were two songs sung by Mrs. Forman. Mr. Jack Desmond then rendered a number of the Mole Theatre was at the piano for dancing which was brought to a close a most enjoyable evening.

JOHN CHARLES PAXTER

All that was mortal of the late John Charles Paxter was laid to rest yesterday afternoon in Belleville cemetery, many attending the funeral, both at the church and the grave, representatives of the civic bodies, fraternal life, Belleville Agricultural Society and the Masonic order, of which the deceased was a valued member since its inception, were present to pay their last respects in a highly appreciated manner. The late Mr. Paxter was a citizen of Belleville all his life. A wealth of floral tributes testified to the esteem in which he was universally held and came from different bodies and intimate friends. A short service was held at the home on Monday at, after which the cortege proceeded to Christ Church, where the Rector, Rev. Canon Clarke, assisted by Rev. A. L. Geen, conducted a simple but impressive service. The full burial service was read at the grave. "Lead Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me" sung by the surpliced choir and congregation. The floral tributes were carried from the church and taken for interment in Belleville cemetery, the two members of the family in the first car to the graveside. The bearers were Messrs. William Thompson, Richard Snell, Richard E. Colling, Charles J. Symons and C. I. White.

WILLIAM ASHLEY

Floral tributes to the late William Ashley were:—Pillow of roses, Mother and Mrs. Thrasher; Sweet Mother's Auxiliary; Heart, Belleville Order Ancient Hibernians; Cross, Wreath, Hydro Power Dept. Staff; Wreaths, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer and Jack, Hydro Metre Dept. Staff; Maintenance of Way No. 61; Sprays, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. R. Mayne; Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Peat, Miss Evelyn Cassidy; Mr. and Mrs. Lakefield and Jean; Mr. and Mrs. Shorey and Russell; Miss Irene Woodley, Mr. Kenneth Smith, The Gaels of the Prince Chap.; Mr. and Mrs. Thrasher and Evelyn; The girls at the office, Mr. Albert White, Belleville Hydro Electric System staff; Hollowray Street Y.P.A.; Mr. and O. B. Smith, Mr. George Cass, Douglas and Mrs. Griffs, Mr. Walter Harden and Mr. and Mrs. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. John Collins and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mallett and family, Mrs. A. Kelly.

MRS. EVA ELIZABETH GREEN

After a lingering illness, Mrs. Eva Elizabeth Green, aged twenty-four, passed away at her home on the 9th concession of Thurlow. She is survived by her husband, Joshua Green.

MRS. RACHEL PHILLIPS

The funeral of the late Mrs. Rachel Phillips took place from the residence of her son, Mr. Harry Phillips, High-lower Church street off their hands.

settlements elected by the Dominion Government had virtually succeeded in getting the C.N.R. to agree with the C.P.R. on the construction of a joint terminal. This intimation, however, has proven premature. C.N.R. Unwilling

Since it now controls considerably better than half the fruit and vegetable freight business, the C.N.R. is unwilling to enter any pact with its competitor for fear of endangering that proportion. The C.P.R. still thing has been agreeable to a union terminal being set up on something the basis on the Union station.

Col. Ashley, however, has had a widespread expression of opinion from the growers during the past month that they are not satisfied with the country and municipal organizations have made it virtually unanimous decision for a union terminal operated by the C.N.R. As has been said, the growers, after all, are the people who give the railways the freight business. It is felt that their opinion may carry weight with the C.N.R.

It important as it may be for the C.N.R. to retain the good will of the growers, it is very improbable that the publicly owned system may have to be convinced on another point before it will accept final union. The possibility of a union terminal, if planned and operated on a properly efficient basis, means that the consumption of fruits and vegetables in Toronto will thereby improving business for everyone. The railways included.

Col. Kennedy had this argument before the Toronto commission men with some success at a conference a week ago. Hitherto the commission merchants and jobbers had been opposed to a union terminal. About a third of the dealers hoped that if the railways did operate a terminal that the other of the roads would take their present wholesome properties around

CHRIST CHURCH IN FLOURISHING FINANCIAL STATE

Splendid Reports at Annual Vestry Meeting — Same Wardens Named

Harmonious undertakings, strict application to the task assigned, and satisfactory progress, was the keynote of the annual vestry meeting of Christ Church, attended by many of the congregation held last night in the Parish Hall of the Church with Rev. C. E. Clarke, the rector, presiding as chairman. M. J. Vanner was appointed vestry clerk for the occasion and at the conclusion of the meeting, O. H. Scott on behalf of the vestry seconded by James Reid, moved a hearty vote of thanks to the Rector, all societies in connection with the church, and to all who in any way contributed to the successful year just brought to a close. Rev. Clarke in a very fitting manner congratulated all, especially George E. Watkins, who acted as Rector's Warden last year for the splendid service, he had rendered to his church.

All organizations of the church reported either through the secretary or president, and each society showed a healthy state of affairs. Everyone showed a balance on the right side of the ledger, which was a remarkable thing considering the hard times that all businesses have of financing in this period of depression. George Watkins reported that the debt on the church property had been reduced nearly $1,500.00 besides paying the operating expenses of the church. He explained that the property assets were figured at $60,000.00, a conservative estimate, but some allowance would have to be made this year for much needed repair especially to the rectory. The Sunday budget would have to be increased slightly to meet these expenses but not sufficient to cramp any member of the congregation. He also explained, that the mission fund was down from last year as many of the congregation did not use the mission side of their envelopes.

W. H. Dowsett was elected Rector's Warden by the Rector and after an election between J. B. Ives and George Watkins for People's Warden, the latter was the unanimous choice. O. H. Scott was appointed Lay Delegate to Synod and Frank Mills was elected Warder of St. George's Church. A resolution was passed increasing the executive from eight to sixteen members with eight ex-officio members and the complete executive for the ensuing year will be Rev. C. E. Clarke, Morris Lewis, W. H. Dowsett, George E. Watkins, Frank Mills, O. H. Scott, George H. Stokes, G. B. Smith, ex-officio, also Harold Armstrong, H. J. Carter, J. B. Ives, William Reynolds, R. D. Snell, A. A. Backus, Thomas Marshall, E. Sherry, H. D. Rowe, A. R. Symons, Fred Chamberlain, E. Smith, T. Crozier, James Reid, E. Bone and M. J. Vanner. The aldermen will be elected by the incoming executive at their first meeting according to a resolution that was passed by the meeting. The different societies that reported were the Christ Church Sunday School, St. George's Sunday School, A.Y.P.A., Women's Auxiliary, Little Helpers, Junior Auxiliary, Choir St. George's Guild, St. George's Boys' Mothers, Christ Church Scout Mothers, Altar Guild and the various Scout Troops of St. George's and Christ Church and also Christ Church Parish Guild. Each and everyone reporting showed creditable balances and considerable work done during the year. The choir had 80 per cent. attendance during the year with Robert McCoy having a perfect attendance with Mrs. James Reid, highest for the women members. John Clarke led the boy members of the choir. The Sunday School work was a pleasing feature of the reports, showing the school well up in attendance and finances with the children and teachers taking a particular pride in the institutions.

The six auditors, three were appointed to audit the books of the various organizations of the church, O. H. Scott, G. B. Smith, M. J. Vanner, R. A. Backus, H. D. Rowe, and Fred Chamberlain, were again appointed for the ensuing year. The meeting was closed with benediction by the rector.

Radio Fans Corner

Reception was much better last night than it has been in recent weeks and it was a welcome change for the fans. We won't be able to count on decent weather conditions for some time to come by all accounts so we are liable to get all sorts of reception, pleasant prospect isn't it, fans?

x x x

Got another friendly letter from a fan in Madoc Junction the other day and the program of the Sisters of the Skillet gets another boost. I tuned in on it recently myself and found it a good laugh inducer, if you know what I mean. Edna Hopper is recommended by this fan, too, the program is heard just before the blasters of the Skillet. Another one is mentioned, too, the Bagpipe Reed Girls but I can't find what station it comes over.

x x x

The Rex Cole Mountaineers will be the first program from WEAF that we'll take an interest in tonight and that will be at 5.45 and at 8.30 the Black and Gold Room orchestra under the direction of Ludwig Laurier. The Blackstone Plantation program with Phil Saxelroon and Frank Crumit will be heard at 8.00 o'clock and if we will just hang on to that station until 8.30 we'll be right in line for the "Pride" which translated into the language of the radio fan means Coon-Sanders orchestra plus pep.

The Happy Bakers put on their little act of gladness at 9.30 followed at ten by Al Jolson and his boys. Duke Ellington at 11.00 gives us a taste of what the smart orchestras will be playing this week and Vincent Lopez takes up the cudgels at 11.30 and Jack Albin at midnight puts the crust on the pie.

Here's a program from WJZ tonight at 8.00 that sounds keen. Paul White man's Painters. Just for curiosity's sake let's listen in. Ruth Etting in once more guest artist on the housebold program heard at 9.00 and the Landt Trio and White try their hand at 10.45. Phil Spitalny at midnight.

REAL TREAT FOR THEATRE FANS

Theatrical fans of Belleville are promised a rare treat in the near future for one day only, January 30, when the Midnight Maids, a famous aggregation of thirty-five musical comedy and vaudeville stars, play the Capitol Theatre. The Midnight Maids is presented under the direction of Frank Wakefield, who directed the company during its long and successful engagement at the Grand Opera House in Hamilton. After fulfilling a few short stands outside the company will resume their engagement in Hamilton early in February.

There is entertainment to suit every taste in this show; hilarious comedy and comedy skits deftly presented by nimble and clever comedians such, as Letty Levine, Mel Mevitn, Paul Workman, songs that are new, smart and spicy, offered by such lovely and talented performers as Marion Wakefield, Rosanna Slade, Florence Orsini, Babette, the Lewis Sisters, Eva Chaffin, and Bunny Whitlock, ever a favorite, with all who have ever witnessed his smooth performances.

There is abundant and luxurious scenery to please the eye a chorus of beautiful and talented girls, gorgeously costumed, and all of them able singers and dancers. There will be two shows, matinee will commence at 2.30 and evening show at 8.15. This will be a real treat to the Belleville audience as it is the first musical revue to come to this town in several months. The Midnight Maids have been breaking the records of business through Canada.

ADEN EXPERIENCE SHOWS AIR POWER HAS UNIQUE MERIT

(By The Canadian Press)

LONDON — Concrete proof of the value of "air control" is found in a lecture given recently before the Royal United Service Institution by Squadron Leader Hon. R. A. Cochrane on the work of the Royal Air in Aden.

Before the Air Force took charge the Imam of Zeidi, which a trained army of 6,000 men, 30 guns, four aeroplanes and 10,00 Arab irregular troops, drew so close to Aden that leading inhabitants of the district nearby were forced to withdraw within the defences of the city. Some of them remained there as refugees for several years, unable to return to their own territory because of the threat of the invader.

At that time the British force in Aden consisted of one British infantry battalion, one Indian battalion, the Aden troop of camelry, and one flight of the Royal Air Force. With this force the British were unable to contemplate attacking the Imam.

In April, 1928, defence of the territory was handed over to the R. A. F. One more bombing squadron was sent to Aden, attended by a section of R. A. F. armoured cars. The Aden troop was disbanded, the Indian battalion sent back to India and local levies were trained to take the place of the British contingent.

The Royal Air Force began immediately the task of driving the Imam out of the Yemen protectorate. Warnings were dropped from aircraft that the Imam, knowing that ground forces could not dislodge him from the strong by built stone towns and villages, failed to appreciate the change caused by the introduction of aircraft and disregarded the warnings.

Bombing began. Not much material damage was done to the towns but the Imam's military activities stopped suddenly. In many villages his garrisons took refuge in neighboring hills. There they were safe from bombing but machine-gun fire from aircraft made their lives uncomfortable. At the end of three weeks of bombing the main objectives of the expedition were gained. A single reinforcement of Zeidi irelliness was dealt with instantly by air power; the Imam withdrew to his own land and forbade further raids on British territory.

British casualties were one officer killed and a mechanic crashed. The only cost to the government of the expedition was the value of bombs and ammunition—worth about £4000. No Zeidi raid has occurred since 1928. In January, 1929, trouble broke out in another part of the British protectorate but before the end of the month the Royal Air Force took effective action which ended in the refractory tribe paying compensation.

British prestige is now high in the protectorate but before the end of the month corts and prepare landing grounds near the large towns. Intelligence and political officers travel by aeroplane to visit tribes which were inaccessible till the aircraft arrived in the country, making journeys over difficult terrain in a very few hours which would occupy days on the ground.

Imports into Paraguay from the United States last year were valued at nearly $20,000,000.

The BEST Gray Hair Remedy is Home Made

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, small box of Orlex Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It will gradually, darken streaked, faded or gray hair and make it soft and glossy. Orlex will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

HEAD OF THE HOUSE EXTINCT IN ENGLAND

(By The Canadian Press)

VANCOUVER — A Vancouver lady, recently returned from a long stay in England, writes in the local Press some of her observations.

The "head of the house" no longer exists in the Old Country. Many of us remember that all play ceased as soon as father came in. "Run and get father's slippers." "Has anyone seen father's glasses?" "Now run off to bed and don't disturb father." Unfortunately, the mother did not realize that her lot was hard. Lord Dewer had the right idea of marriage when he wittily described it as a committee of two with power to add to their number. The family committee idea is growing.

The women's institutes have done a wonderful work, thanks first to Mrs. Watt, O.B.E., of British Columbia, I suppose the three greatest blessings of the age to the rural-dwellers have been the wireless, the motor-car, and connecting them up with the smaller towns and the women's institutes. A Townswoman's guild, perhaps, the most recent successful innovation, but are "organized all over England in towns with a population of 4000 and over. Their programme embraces the home crafts of the institute work and the distinctly local and parliamentary of the women citizens of the larger communities. These have proved very successful and have now started in Scotland.

EARLY DATE FOR N. B. LEGISLATURE

(By The Canadian Press)

FREDERICTON, N.B. — When the New Brunswick legislature opens here on February 12, it will convene on the earliest date set for a legislative open ing in this province since 1906, when the house assembled on February 5. A factor in selection of the opening date this year, is the unusually early day on which Easter falls, Good Friday being April 3, with a consequently early Easter season.

The province's fiscal year closes on October 31, and as the financial statement for the year is not published until late in January, it would be impossible to have the legislature meet much earlier than the date selected for the annual meeting of the Jewish. The suggestion has been made that the fiscal year close on September 30, in order that the legislature might meet earlier each year.

The forthcoming session will be the first of the seventeenth legislature, elected last June when Premier J. B. M. Baxter's government was returned with 31 members to the Liberal opposition's 17. The standing at dissolution had been Conservatives 25, Opposition 11, vacant 2.

The new legislature includes thirteen members who did not sit in the last house and who will be taking their places in the assembly chamber for the first time.

ARROWS BEAT CHAMPIONS

Providence, R.I., Jan. 26—The Philadelphia Arrows, celebrated the raising of the Rhode Island Reds' championship pennant here last night by winning, 3 to 1 over the Canadian-American Ulitals. It was the first defeat the Arrows have handed the Reds this season. Both teams scored in the first period and the Arrows pushed in two more tallies in the second. Then the visitors played a tight defensive game, repulsing the Reds' four and five-man attacks. Anderson, Andrews and King scored for Philadelphia and Hart for Providence.

BRITISH MOTOR BOAT WAS FIRED UPON

NEW LONDON, Conn., Jan. 26.—With a full load of liquor, the British motor boat Temsicodun from St. John's, Nfld., was captured today in Fort Pond Bay, by coast guard patrol boat CG-288, after a one pound shell tore through fuel tank aboard the rum vessel and caused the engine room to be flooded with gasoline.

CHINA REPAIRS DAMAGE, READY FOR OTHER WARS

SHANGHAI — Chinese politicians who flaunted the rebel standard have fled into Shansi Province leaving the Nanking government confronted with the task of repairing the damage carried by the 1930 civil war. The fact that the rebel chiefs may be plotting for new conflict for next spring forces the nationalists to accomplish within a few months what would ordinarily take several years to complete.

Much happened to Nanking after General Pen Hsi-Shan, "model governor" of Shansi, started early this year the campaign against Chiang Kay-Shek that nearly succeeded. Business went to smash, for one thing, and communism gained such a foothold that its position in some sections is well nigh impregnable.

More than a thousand miles of telegraph and telephone lines must be put back in commission. Railroads bombed and torn up, must be restored to running order and the tax collecting system is in bad need of a shaking up.

At present the dots are all against another uprising next March but Nanking cannot afford to be caught unprepared. While Yen Hsi-Shan is not likely to go to war again unless he is forced to, Wang Ching-Wei, an important factor in most of China's rebellions, has already announced that he hopes to go on fighting.

Dissolving the communists is considerable of an undertaking. Central and southern China were overrun by the Reds and their hands grew stronger as the Nationalist forces became weaker through the battles of last year. The war in the north compelled Chiang Kai-Shek to withdraw his garrisons from Hunan, Kwangtung, Kwangsi and Fukien provinces and the disturbing reports reaching travelers in those sections describe a situation that foreigners can scarcely comprehend.

Few towns escaped the ferocity of the freebooters. Pillage, torture and wholesale slaughter have been rampant and whole villages have been razed, leaving scores of thousands of Chinese homeless and hopeless. One of the most appalling consequences of the communist activities was the loss of crops. The Reds destroyed grain fields, slaughtered or drove away cattle and completely ruined all livestock and the government is striving to rout the Reds this winter, thousands of fields will not be planted next spring.

ADD HEALTH TO HOT BREADS

Hot breads are tempting. But often they lack roughage. The absence of bulk from foods often results in constipation.

But now you can have hot breads with roughage. Simply add a cupful of Kellogg's All-Bran to the recipe. This delicious cereal furnishes the bulk needed to assure proper elimination. You will find many appetizing recipes on the red-and-green All-Bran package.

Equally tempting as a ready-to-eat cereal with milk or cream. Two tablespoonfuls daily are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In severe cases, use with each meal.

All-Bran also furnishes needed iron for the body. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

1 egg
¾ cup milk or cream
Raspberry juice or syrup

For afternoon tea, there is nothing nicer than these same Raspberry Biscuits, shaped dainty with a tiny cutter—split, buttered and served piping hot, with a cup of perfect tea!

Miss Caldwell says: "Magic Baking Powder is easy to use because its uniform, high quality never varies. I use and recommend Magic because my experience has proven that it always gives consistently better baking results."

Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Cut the hard, cold shortening into them with a knife, using a quick, short, chopping motion or reduce the hard cold fat to tiny particles with a pastry blender or a steel-pronged fork. When the mixture resembles a very coarse meal, add the liquid, mixing quickly and lightly. Turn out the dough on a slightly floured board; pat it down lightly or roll it to a thickness of about one inch. Shape with a small cutter or cut in squares with a floured knife.

Dip the small lumps of sugar into syrup from canned or fresh raspberries . . . Press a lump into each biscuit . . . forcing it well down into the dough so that it will not run down the sides when melted.

Place the biscuits on a greased pan or baking sheet and bake in a very hot oven, 450° F., 12 to 15 minutes.

SECOND THURLOW

2nd Line Thurlow, Jan. 27 (By Mail)—An all day meeting of the 2nd Line Meadow's aid was held at the home of Mrs. Wes. Gray on Wednesday and was largely attended. The men were invited, several being present. Dinner was served between 12 and 1, and was by no means lacking in any respect. Two quilts were quilted, after which all were called to order by the Pres., Mrs. J. Donaldson and the regular meeting carried on, and opened by singing Old Lang Syne and repeating the Lord's Prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Sec. Mrs. A. Morden and adopted. Several business matters were discussed and the meeting closed by singing, God Save the King."

Mr. and Mrs. C. Chambers and Mary of Shilaing visited at Mrs. Chambers sister Mrs. F. Haight on Friday.

ATTEMPTED TO "CUT-IN"

A "cut-in" motorist was sentenced in Western Ontario to one year's imprisonment for his connection with an accident which caused the death of a man on the highway who was riding a motorcycle.

The tragedy is that a seemingly good citizen does act in such a way in the operation of his car as to endanger the life or cause the death of another equally good citizen who has a right on the highway.

As soon as the drivers of cars recognize the same rights for others as they themselves expect to have accorded them, the sooner will there be fewer deaths by accidents and the fewer men will then be sent to prison for terms of various duration for negligence as to the death of others. Life is so precious that it ought to be saved even if the laws must be made a dozen times more strict. The law must protect persons on the highway from the careless and from themselves even if necessary.

FRUIT FOR RUDY

There is guessing as to why men do not seem to care so much for the prince of comedy Rudy Vallee, who was met with a little unpleasantness last Thursday with the tossing of three overripe grapefruit from the balcony to the stage. No one can condone this kind of treatment of any performer but without justifying the throwers of the projectiles, one may ask why this occurred. One paper asks if Rudy possesses such a fine talent that only the women and girls can appreciate it, and if the men may be simply jealous of his crooning. Hamilton Spectator remarks that he is a good saxophone player but not the best saxaphone tooter in the world, that he has a voice of peculiar timber but is a singer who recognizes his limitations and contents himself with humming and crooning which do not make any demands upon the larynx, and that he has managed to stow away his first million dollars. The Spectator says Rudy is a showman of a marked degree but adds that the presentation of fruit is the worst kind of publicity for any artist. a few repetitions of which many an artist would not be able to survive.

MOVIES AND PUBLICITY

Movie folk for some reason appear to enjoy publicity and yet some of it must at least not be enjoyable. The press and the magazines of course play up the movie stars so that people get, I imagine, to know them better than they do their neighbors. Besides it is so harmless a pastime to be introduced to the secrets and hearts of the "stars," in a way that few other humans allow their best friends to penetrate. Publicity and intimacy are one of the sources of the appeal of the star of course and at no time did the stage ever have so many million followers as the screen has.

Stars in the movies must be talked of. It might seem at first glance a healthier sign if the public were as anxious to worship actors and actresses of the legitimate stage whose ability is undoubted but who possesses some reserve and so not wear make-ups that tell on their sleeve, but it is doubtful if it would be to the benefit of their profession or their high standard of art in that who plays in a movie is always a not the greatest artist unless underneath this apparent acquiescence with the audience are iron nerve and the will to make the audience drink in something of real art from the production.

Either robins are getting acclimatized to the north or they have some ability to forecast mild days and nights ahead or they are quite wrong. For the second .one has been seen in Eastern Ontario, the first one at Belleville and the second one at Kingston. The latter is not sure whether the weather is going to be robin-like. If it is not, then robins must be changing their habits or these two have stayed behind and made a mistake.

Back of the present depression seems to be a fear that something may come upon the world as a result of the Great War, something perhaps in the nature of another conflict though the feeling has hardly yet taken such form as to envision another war. A hint by Mr. Roger Babson, statistician, that war may be in the offing between Italy and France with Russia and Germany supporting Italy and England and Japan working with France, caused a slight flurry yesterday among those who frequent the market boardrooms. But this is just an opinion.

If every ill wind blew in a thaw as did Friday's east wind, such would be more welcome, though the chill east wind is never a welcome visitors for somehow it strikes to the marrow.

Winter brings its benefits as well as its drawbacks. It is the creator of sports and it makes ice which can be harvested for the use of the summer population. Ice harvesting is no small industry at Belleville, where hundreds upon hundreds of tons must every year be taken of the bay's surface to satisfy the demand for the coming months.

Municipal ownership of Hydro distribution has been justified by the financial results at Campbellford. An increase in the yearly revenue of over ten thousand dollars since 1921 from domestic and commercial power consumption has been reported there, in spite of much lowered rates. This indicates the greater use of electricity.

LITTLE HIGH PORCH

I hear the tat-a tap, tap of feet,
The plop-a plop plop of hoofs that beat,
The shi-sah-a-woo-oo, wish as motors pass,
The chip-a click, click that moves the grass,
The calls of wares along the street;
But sanctuary is complete.

Some windows, when nobody sees,
Look out into the breeze-stirred trees;
Where birds swing gaily while they sing
Their hearts out; then on silent wing
Glide swiftly to their sheltered nest
To gloat and thrill, to love and rest.

He makes their happiness, and mine
Is tangling-in his song, and vine
That wreathes my high swung perch,
Of new adventures thinking we are,
As I grope upward for His care.

The distant sounds, with greening hills and trees
Fling out their challenge on the bloomful breeze.

The tender fragrance fills my heart
And bids the chill and storms depart.
It calls to life and love to always care
And homeward from earth's discords wing.

Possessed of talking hard times would be better employed mending their fences and machinery, getting everything tuned up and ready for the rush later on. Remember everything is cheaper now. labor, material, etc., and in the absence of rush conditions can be done much better work done. By and by folks will want their automobiles tuned up for next season, they will be painting and papering and fixing about the home and business place, lots of little and big jobs will suggest themselves. Everybody will get a spring fever at the same time and want their work done at once, and they will wait, as usual, their turn and chafe at the delay. Forethought and preparation will get busy now and there will be employment for many men and no more talk of hard times or depression. Don't let us doze, let's wake up and keep going.

WICKERSHAM REPORT on prohibition and law enforcement in the U.S.A. brings to a close an intensive study of these questions over a three year period. The report is one of those adjustable ones in which wet and dry forces can take equal comfort, the commission being on record as there wasn't a clear majority for anything. and it took nearly three hundred pages and a couple of hundred thousand words to do it. Raymond Rogers notes the adverse effect the report will have upon unemployment by lamenting the fact that 234 stenographers who have been compiling the report for three years will be out of a job, but he says if Congress reads it throught that will mean an extra session which will give some work.

One of the New York evening papers not many years ago went in heavily for sporting events, and at considerable expense installed a direct wire from Harvard Stadium where the Yale football game was to be played, to the office. Also they dispatched to cover the affair their best writer, hitherto above reproach.

The game was the hardest fought in years, with the two teams battling each other all over the field, but never crossing each other's line. No word came from the high by paid specialist, and the stay-at-home members of the staff were frantically engaged in rewriting the story from the press association reports.

At last four days after the shouting had died away, came a brief wire, dated not from Boston, but from Montreal. It read:

"Very tame. No story."—American Legion Monthly.

EUROPEAN PEACE

The appearance, if not reality, of a dangerous intrigue between Rome, Berlin and Moscow has alarmed Central Europe. Fear is the worst of counsellors. Europe has seen wide, modern depots. The only path of safety is for the great peace-loving Powers of the world to declare unanimously that they will stand against any and every perturber of the peace and will lend their support to any victim of aggression.—Review of Reviews, London.

QUEBEC'S HEALTH REVOLUTION

Nearly half of Quebec's rural population is now covered by county health unit plan of health management, according to a despatch from Quebec City, which appeared recently. A public health official is quoted as calling this development "a health revolution," which it really is. But it is a revolution to which the rest of Canada must soon submit itself, according to qualified medical opinion, for new measures of rural health management is inadequate. They ask why rural Canada should have a typhoid fever death rate many times as high as the rates of most cities, and say that the answer is simple and obvious. Cities always have safe milk and food are safe-guarded by excellent public health departments. The so-called healthy rural districts do not do so well, and so rural death rates from typhoid and other diseases are high. This means loss of life. Haphazard village practitioners are being sacrificed to national indifference and national penny-pinching.—Cornwall Freeholder.

OSHAWA FACES IT

What Oshawa needs is a constructive policy, a policy that can see just a little bit farther ahead than the mere necessity of meeting the needs of the greatest need today, and for the years to come, is an addition to its industrial structure. To put it bluntly Oshawa needs more places where its citizens can find work. Oshawa needs more and more industries, industries that provide jobs that will take care of the surplus population which is at the present time unable to find employment. That is the problem which confronts Oshawa today. The solution of it rests in the hands of the people of Oshawa. They need to be educated to the importance of it, because it is only as they are willing to do their share to bring industries here that the city will be able to take care of its workers. Let us have a dozen more factories established and avoid giving employment to hundreds, possibly thousands, of men and women, and there will be no occasion to worry about the tax rate. We as Oshawans need to be awakened out of the spirit of complacency that is with reference to the locating of new industries.—Oshawa Times.

DEMOCRACY OF LIBRARY SHELF

Not even the autograph of so eminent an author as Bernard Kipling makes a set of his novels worth $150 to the Toronto Public Library. The volumes were given by Kipling to the City of the books for the primary purpose of the Library, which is to provide them as widely as possible for reading and the arts. Nor is the work of the Library furthered by the fact that the volumes were presented and bought by a famous bookbinder. The announcement that the books will be kept on display is appreciated by all who known to Kipling lovers at any special exhibitions the Board may arrange, is a departure in the right direction in general that the outside of a book is of less importance than the inside. It is democracy of the library shelf. If the addition to the Library, represented by this little extravagance, is to be preserved from the wear and tear that is the lot of the humble library book, it is to be presumed that it will be with a "Hands off" sign. And it cannot be believed that such an injunction on the works of Rudyard Kipling can ever be with the approval of Kingling lover.—Toronto Telegram.

PAVLOVA

The Russians have been responsible for more than one beautiful thing during the past few twenty years. They revolution lord the dance. Anna Pavlova will ever be remembered as an inspiration to her people and as one of the great reforms which Pavlova and her sister, Serge Diaghilef, brought to being. But it was Diaghilef and Pavlova who swept aside the old artificiality and stilted formality of the ballet and created a new era of the dance. Pavlova will be affectionately remembered by millions. She brought an extraordinary lyrical quality to her work, and danced as if she experienced every pang and ecstasy she depicted in rhythmic movement. Who

BONZO

Burns, Poet of Humanity

Each year in January, Scotland and Scotsmen the world over pay homage to the memory of Robert Burns, but this homage is not confined to Scotsmen: but it participated in by all English-speaking peoples and many of other kindreds and tongues. Why should this be so, and why are national boundaries so obliterated as far as the existence of this particular poet is concerned? The reason for this is not far to seek, and the answer though will be given in one word, viz. —"humanity." Burns is nothing, if he is not human, and indeed intensely human, in the entire range of his sympathies; and that quality of his nature constitutes the cementing influence which has bound him to successive generations for wellnigh a century and a half. We may think those thoughts, many of us, and dream dreams—as of some far-off event—of mankind one day clasping hands in brotherly love, but none has enshrined that sentiment in such simple, yet matchless lines—

For 'a that and 'a that
It's coming yet for a' that.

That man to man, the world o'er,
Shall brothers be for a' that.

The two-roomed clay cottage, built by Burns's father in the village of Alloway, and in which the poet was born, is still preserved, and is visited yearly by thousands of tourists from all parts of the world. His father originally a gardener, and later a farmer, in a small way had a hard struggle with poverty, but succeeded in sending his children to school, and although Robert had to assist in the labors of the farm, yet by the age of sixteen, he had acquired the elements of what might be considered a fairly good education for that time.

In estimating Burns's influence, he must be compared with himself. Burns in deeper must be read with Burns in the lyrical wave of hope; Burns humorous must be interpreted by Burns serious; Burns tuneful must be forcefully acquiescent; Burns the Jacobite by Burns the Democrat. A consideration of the poet in all his aspects and moods will lead one to the conclusion that all instinct for thoughtfulness is the "miraculous" or inexplicable element in him, which has made him at once a ready reckoner in mundane ethics, and a joy for ever. Whenever Burns seemed to become particular to the universal, in humor, in sentiment, and in reflection, he became the poet of humanity wherever English. Thus it is that Burns's mission of achievement—his preeminence as a poet—means the triumphant assertion, on the part of Scotland, of its rights in British and world literature.

In Scottish poetry, Burns takes the pre-eminent place. He is the supreme artist, to whom all others are subsidiary. All local Scottish verse, from the early sixteenth century, even from the day of Dunbar and the makkers, may be said to presuppose Burns; it all expands to him, or withdraws from him. Burns is not merely the national poet of Scotland; he is, in a certain sense, the country itself: all elements of Scotland life and manners, all peculiarities of Scottish temperament and convictions are there—somewhere or other in Burns's singing-robes.

Sir Walter Scott, who, when a boy of fifteen, saw Burns, has recorded for us a very fine description of him:—

"His person was robust, his manner rustic, not clownish. There was a strong expression of shrewdness in his lineaments; his eye alone indicated the poetic temperament and character, and brightly glowed when he spoke with feeling and interest. I never saw such an eye in a human head, not even in that of Byron."

Occasional, fragmentary, and unsystematized as most of Burns's poems are, they bear the guinea-stamp of unmistakable poetic genius of the strongest and universal kind. About his expression, there is a laconic pith and racy vigor which strike to the very marrow of the proper consciousness.

Though Burns had no university education, he had by nature that which enabled him to appeal to the very heart of the people. Every poor man felt himself an inch or two taller" on "Is there for honest poverty."

The masculinity of his wit, the open-handed candour of his utterance, the generosity of his whole nature, make the personality of this peasant-bard exceptionally near and dear to us.

Love of the poor, and popular freedom, these were passions with Burns, and his "Cotter's Saturday Night" will remain an undying picture of Scotland's peasant-aristocracy:—

From scenes like these, old Scotia's grandeur springs,
That make her lov'd at home, revered abroad:
Princes and lords are but the breath of kings,
"An honest man's the noblest work of God."

Nature ever enthralled him. On turning up a mountain daisy, with his plow, his thought is thus expressed:—

Wee, modest, crimson-tipped flow'r,
Thou's met me in an evil hour;
For I maun crush among the stour
Thy slender stem.

And closely interwined with her, few of nature was his tender pity for animals. Even the little mouse is worthy of his notice.

Wee, sleekit, cowrin', timrous beastie,
Oh, what a panic's in thy breastie!

Burns expressed, with conscious power and precision, that which thousands of men, who labor and delve on the earth, had felt obscurely and confusedly for centuries past. Conscious his ploughman with Thomson, his woodman with Cowper's, his blacksmith with Longfellow's, and we might multiply distinct instances knowledge is from the sympathetic imagination of the enlightened and cultured bard.

To his countrymen, nay to the world, Burns has left the heritage of an unequaled song-craft. His lyre has been the gamut of the emotions, from the whisper of affection to the fiery-filled chant of war and liberty. In the realm of song he is supreme, and simplicity been so truly wedded. The simple, almost rustic lines are suffused with a lofty genius which compels the tears of both simple and learned. So intimate is the combination of artlessness and genius in the songs of Burns, that in no poet is it so difficult to trace the true quality in finest genius: in none is so elusive. It is enwoven in the very fibre of the verse, from which it cannot be separated. "Auld Lang Syne" as a song belongs not only to Scotland, but to the English-speaking world.

Burns was a great poet, a great lover of humanity, and a great satirual man, and as has been said, "his faults were the faults of his qualities." His wondrous charity was the keynote of all his work. It is related of the late Dr. Robert Wallace, a minister of the Church of Scotland, and at one time editor of the Scotsman, that when he was a student at St. Andrews University, the professor of Rhetoric and Belles Lettres asked the class: "Who introduced Christianity into Scotland?" Quick as a flash came the answer, from young Wallace—"Robert Burns, sir." Was that not, after all, a modicum of truth in the reply? Burns and his words will ever strike home, to the heart of humanity:—

Who made the heart, 'tis He alone
Decidedly can try us,
He knows each chord, its various tone,
Each spring, its various bias:
Then at the balance, let's be mute,
We never can adjust it;
What's done, we partly may compute,
But know not what's resisted.

Look Out for Rickets

By Leo's E. Bloch, M.D., Ph.D
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Rachitis—generally known as Rickets—is a disease of childhood. It is marked especially by changes in the bones—a kind of softening—and is due to nutritional disturbances.

Usually the disease does not appear before six months or beyond the age of two, although in cold, city districts it may be lacking in fat and protein.

Because most prepared baby foods are rich in starches and sugars when we make a child look deceptively healthy.

It must not be thought, however, that the baby who is fat and well fed is sure to contract Rachitis. If the milk formula is correct and the diet supervised by a physician, no special trouble need be feared. Mother's milk is best, of course. Modified cow's milk next best. Sweetened condensed milk is the worst because it is poor in fat and proteins.

The acute symptoms of Rickets are stomach disturbances, a poor appetite, vomiting perhaps, and diarrhea. Because the child is not getting proper nourishment the weight is less than it should be.

A frequent early sign of the disorder is sweating of the head. The whole body also may perspire and, noticeably at night during sleep, which is restless. Thus children frequently kick off the bedclothes and toss about while the perspiration may be so marked as to wet or soak the pillow. Even convulsions may occur.

The changes in the bones are the signs that, beyond all question, settle the case. In the so-called "beading of the ribs" is the first thing noted. This consists of a line of nodules or elevations where the ribs and bone meet toward the ends of the ribs in front of the chest.

Other characteristics are enlargement of the head, with elevations or bosses on each side of the forehead and at the back of the skull, giving the head a square-shaped appearance. A bow-legged condition, due to the weight of the body, usually is also often met with. The opposite, a knock-kneed condition, may be present instead.

In fact, if the rickets is severe or remains undiscovered, almost every bone in the body may be distored by the disease.

Besides the general nervousness, crabby children often become fundamentally, and sometimes such dullness is so marked that the child is referred for feeble-mindedness.

Rickets is never cured of and by itself, but it undermines the system and is often a big factor in the contraction of such diseases as tuberculosis.

Treatment consists in remedyiit the lack of fat or protein, or both, in the diet, and in the intelligent management of the emotions, from the whisper of affection to the fiery-filled chant of war and liberty. In the realm of song he is supreme, and simplicity been so truly wedded. The simple, almost rustic lines are suffused with a lofty genius which compels the tears of both simple and learned. So intimate is the combination of artlessness and genius in the songs of Burns, that in no poet is it so difficult to trace the true quality in finest genius: in none is so elusive. It is enwoven in the very fibre of the verse, from which it cannot be separated. "Auld Lang Syne" as a song belongs not only to Scotland, but to the English-speaking world.

Burns was a great poet, a great lover of humanity, and a great satirual man, and as has been said, "his faults were the faults of his qualities." His wondrous charity was the keynote of all his work. It is related of the late Dr. Robert Wallace, a minister of the Church of Scotland, and at one time editor of the Scotsman,

Children suffering from worms soon show the symptoms, and any mother can detect the presence of these parasites by the writhings and fretting of the child. Until expelled and the system cleared of them, the child cannot be healthy. Miller's Worm Powders are prompt and efficient, not only for the eradication of worms, but also as a tonic up for children that are run down in consequence.

Two colonization officials from Palestine have been studying irrigation methods in California. Miller's view is adopting a practicable system in Palestine.

MARSHMALLOWS TO HELP YOU ENTERTAIN

By Hannah Wing

With a box of marshmallows in the house you have the start for many delicious dishes that are surprisingly easy to make. Try out these suggestions and become the envy of your friends.

MARSHMALLOW LEMON TOAST

One-quarter cup of cream, one grated lemon peel, three eggs, six marshmallows, twelve slices of thin cut bread.

Whip the cream into the eggs until quite light.

Cut each marshmallow into four slices. Spread three on six slices of bread. Divide the grated lemon peel over the marshmallows and then cover each with the remaining six slices of bread.

To hold this together insert a toothpick at each end, dip this into the cream and egg, and fry slowly in butter. Remove toothpicks and serve.

FROZEN STRAWBERRIES AND MARSHMALLOWS

One cup sugar, one quart strawberries, one-quarter cup cold water, three quarters cup boiling water, two tablespoons gelatine, two cups whipped cream, fifteen marshmallows.

Mix sugar, water and strawberries and boil five minutes; add the gelatine which has been soaked in the cold water and stir until dissolved. Chill. Add whipped cream and marshmallows which have been cut in quarters. Freeze.

TEDDY BEAR CAVE SALAD

Pit and stuff each of two large dates with half marshmallows. Into each of three marshmallows press a pink nut meat and broil in the oven. Arrange lettuce leaves to resemble open cave. Place stuffed dates and toasted marshmallows inside the cave. Drest with fresh orange juice.

MARSHMALLOW CROWN

Cut a two inch slice from a round loaf of Boston brown bread. Hollow out center. Fill with whipped thick apple sauce. Arrange marshmallows on their sides, around the top edge of the bread, to resemble crown. Heat and brown in a slow oven. Serve warm.

PEAR MARLOW

Eighteen marshmallows, 4 tablespoons pear juice, 3 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 cup crushed canned pears, 3 tablespoons syrup from preserved ginger, 1-2 pint whipped cream.

Steam the marshmallows in pear juice over hot water until marshmallows are melted. Add the crushed fruit, ginger syrup and lemon juice; cool. When quite cold and slightly sweetened fold in portions with the stiffly beaten cream. Pour into trays and freeze.

THE MASTER-POETS

He the great World-Musician at whose stroke
The stars of morning into music broke;
He from whose being infinite are caught
All harmonies of light, and sound and thought—
Once in each age to keep, the world in tune
His melody a note—sublime, not late, nor soon.
A deathless soul—music and passion's birth—
Vibrates across the discord of the earth
And sets the world aright.
On these are they
Who on men's hearts with mightiest power can play—
The master-poets of humanity,
Sent down from Heaven to lift men to the sky.

—Richard Watson Gilder.

The Hostess Suggests

Cranberry Bread Pudding

One pound can cranberry sauce, 3 cups stale bread, diced; 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 quart of milk and salt. Cut cranberry sauce in cubes; into a greased baking dish put in a layer of cubes then of bread and pour over all the eggs, beaten with milk, sugar, vanilla, and salt. Set in oven, 350 deg., moderate, and bake 45 minutes. Serve plain or with a sauce.

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

Dear Readers:

Have you a Girl Guide in your family? Then if she is an ambitious Guide, and most of them are, she will keep steadily climbing, taking test after test. By and by when she comes to her cook's test, and passes it, you are much to be envied for then you have someone in the household with whom it is safe to leave the responsibility of getting the family meal once in awhile.

It is surprising how few girls can cook in this modern age. The fault lies, in many cases at the mother's door, for with every kind of household conveniences at her hand, meals can be arranged so speedily that "opening daughter bow" takes up the feels, far too much time. Preparing mayonnaise, a fancy salad, and sandwich filling is too often the extent of a girl's culinary knowledge. When it comes to the preparation of a really substantial meal, daughter is no help at all.

This is a sad state of affairs. It means that when Mother is ill or is called away, the family's menus are confined to canned goods almost entirely. In time daughter marries and for the first year her husband undergoes that peculiar torture which only young love can withstand, the period when the bride is learning how to cook.

But if the young housekeeper has been a Girl Guide she is ready for any emergency. Mother can go away with the pleasant thought that the meals will be as appetising as those she herself prepares. A Girl Guide cook test is no easy examination. In the first place to pass this test a Guide must be able to light a fire, and that in itself is a knack that comes only with persistent effort. She must be able to cook, fry, bake, boil or stew meat, fish, eggs, or vegetables. She must be able to make soup, to prepare boiled or steamed puddings, pie, apple dumpling, or tea biscuits, make salads, tea, coffee and cocoa. In addition to this the Guide must understand the use of the fireless cooker and the care of cooking utensils. And not only know these things but must be able to make at least eighty percent on examinations on the subject before she is awarded her Cooks badge. How many girls could prepare one half of these dishes?

Such practical knowledge of cookery is just one phase of the education a Girl Guide receives in her ordinary training. Above all things Guiding teaches the girls to be homemakers in the fullest sense of the term, and if it did nothing else this would justify its existence.

Fashionably yours,
Lucille.

Correct Manners

Wedding Dramatic but Not Theatrical

BY MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I turn to you for a few suggestions. Are ring bearers still in vogue? A ring bearer carrying the ring in a lily seems a lovely idea. It is in good taste?

2. What are the best colors for bridesmaids' dresses at this time of the year?

3. It is well for the maid of honor to be dressed in white trimmed with pale colors?

E. C.

1. Ring bearers are not usual at weddings nowadays. And I, for one, am glad. They have always seemed to me a most dreadful, pathetic, theatrical. A wedding, a formal wedding, it is true, should be dramatically planned, its very quality, with the processional and recessional and music and all, is dramatic in its inclination —but it should never sway from the theatrical. The ring bearer, especially if she or he carries the ring in some sensational manner, takes too much attention from where it should be—on the bride.

Yellow is lovely at all times of the year for bridesmaids' dresses and always forms a charming background for the bride's costume. Some shading of green are also delightful and also some shades of red.

3. This usually isn't very effective.

• Buying the Trousseau

BY MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me who is to buy the bride's clothes? Some say the groom and some say the girl's parents.

CONSTANT READER.

Never should the bride's costume be paid for by the groom. This is the height of bad form. The girl's parents pay for her bridal clothes and for her trousseau.

E. B.

The cards should be removed. This is a more exquisite point of view than the garish display of "who sent that"—don't you think so?

Edaine And Her Ideas From Paris

Today's Verse

A Yorkshire Stream at Sunset

Once it danced happily between moss-ed boulders,
Glis-ta-ning, glass-bright,
And boys chased, scurrying trout around its shallows,
Splashing, in wild delight.

Now it slinks hurriedly in poisoned foulness
Past dead tree-stumps.
Begrimed cone walls, ash-paths on shabby wastelands,
Clog heaps and refuse dumps

Yet now pit-boy and mill-girl shyly meeting
In a dim fairyland of westering sunlight
A stream of rippling gold.

BEAUTY BOX

By Helen Follett

The condition of the tissues surrounding the soul windows have a good deal to do with the beauty of the eyes. A number of beauty ills are located thereabouts. For example, brown circles which may be an inheritance, or which may be due to changes in the pigmentation caused by the absorption of waste products in some part of the body. Eyes and grab ulated lids, little sun ray wrinkles all bring their quota of discontent. They can be remedied.

There is something dressy about finger nails bearing a highly veneered surface of blazing rose color. That is why the girl in the stunning exotic robe attending the festive party can get away with them. They look out of place with smocks or sports attire. They also draw attention to hands that are no longer young and soft.

Too little attention is paid to good circulation. It is the sum and substance of health and good looks. It keeps the red rose from bloomin'. It puts roses in the cheeks where they properly belong. It fingerizes the step and stimulates the mind. Girls with feet as cold as frog's toes have complexions the color of pallid. Deep breathing and plenty of vigorous exercise start blood streams promenading.

If the hairbrush is ruinous to the marcel or the water wave, do a lot of combing with the fine part of the comb. Don't dig into the scalp. An abrasion is a menace, inviting stray germs and diseases to enter and start up housekeeping. Brushing and combing remove dust from the tress locks; it is doubtful if they have any effect upon the growth of the hair.

As soon as hangnails form they should be clipped off to prevent further tearing. To avoid them, keep the cuticle about the nail well oiled. Lift it up every day, very gently, with an orange wood stick. Harsh soaps weaken tissues and produce wounds.

They Do Us More Good Than any other Medicine

Says Toronto Man of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mr. McMullen Always Keeps a Box in the House.

Toronto Ont., Jan. 26 (Special)—"What most people want these days is a medicine that will can turn to when perfect confidence in time of need. Mr. McMullen, 341 McRoberts Avenue, Toronto, has found such a remedy — Dodd's Kidney Pills. He writes:—

"We are never without Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house. Whenever we feel out of sorts we take them and find they do us more good than any other medicine. We have used them for six years."

Your health, strength and vitality depend upon the condition of your blood, for it is through the blood that every part of the body is nourished and built up. To enjoy good health the blood must be kept pure. Dodd's Kidney Pills are an excellent blood purifier. They do not affect the Liver or stomach, they are just an effective Kidney medicine.

ST. MARTIN'S NOW REFUGE FOR STRAYS

London, Jan. 24—Readers of "David Copperfield" will remember how on a snowy night, Dan'l Peggotty, returned from his searching after Little Emily, encountered David on the steps of St. Martin's Church. This great church facing Trafalgar Square, (in Copperfield's time Trafalgar Square did not exist), is nowadays conducted on an open-all-hour basis. In the daytime there are frequent services, and in the night-time the spacious crypt gives shelter to many homeless wanderers.

The establishment of St. Martin's as a night refuge came about when the present Dean of Canterbury—he is still known to everybody as "Dick" Sheppard—was rector of St. Martin's. A tragic story was told the Coroner the other day. A woman was found poisoned and dying in the crypt. She had been a patient at a mental hospital in Bristol, and a verdict of Suicide While Insane was recorded. One of the corps of ladies, who do duty nightly in supervising the shelter provided at St. Martin's, told the Coroner that about 120 men and from 15 to 25 women went there every night. They were taken in when they had no money, and food tickets were given to the very hungry which were honored at a neighboring coffee stall. The men were given benches and a cushion in the crypt. The women had wooden cots with cushions and covers, and they could undress if they wished.

St. Martin's in recent years, has also become a favorite church for marriages among people of some social position. The other week a bride-to-be went there in the early hours of her wedding day, and with a few friends laid out a substantial breakfast for the homeless ones who had sheltered in the crypt the night before.

A Prime Dressing for Wounds.—In some factories and workshops carbolic acid is kept for use in cauterizing wounds and cuts sustained by the workmen. For better to keep on hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It is just as quick in action and does not sear the skin or burn the flesh.

MANSION HOUSE IS COURT AND PRISON

London, Jan. 24—The new Lord Mayor of London is—in an official sense—homeless. For the first time since 1753 the Mansion House is without its august tenant and very soon the builders will embark upon a thorough reconditioning of the building. Meanwhile, Alderman Sir Phene and Lady Neal are residing, in necessarily diminished civic state, at the hotel.

Although the Mansion House is bereft of its legitimate tenant and his functions, a large number of culinary undesirable inhabitants have recently made their presence known. These are the rats which, in the last few weeks when the Mansion House was dismantled, have become numerous and aggressive. No doubt the mansion of civic dinner has made it harder for the rats to get a living.

The Mansion House also contains the Court of Justice wherein the Lord Mayor, as Chief Magistrate sits daily. This Court is continuing to function. There is quite a mediaeval touch about the story of how prisoners upon remand have, within the past few weeks, been actively disturbed by rodents scuttling round the cells at night.

Sydney Perks, Architect and Surveyor to the City of London, lecturing recently before the Royal Society of Arts, said the use to which the building was put made the Mansion House perhaps the most remarkable building in the world. He believed it was the only structure now existing which, like the Palace of the Doge at Venice in the Middle Ages, was a residence, a Court of Justice, and a prison. "Looking at the Mansion House," said Mr. Perks, "a thoughtful observer might ask if there had been much improvement in our architecture in 700 years! Has not the spirit of advertisement crept into our designs? A big building seemed to shout 'Look at me, I'm a Bank,' and the next building seemed to say, 'And I don't look next door, look at me, I'm an Insurance office'; and so they compete for publicity. In the meantime the Mansion House seems like an ancient dame, to smile and mush them with its quiet dignity, and show the contempt of the old regime for the nouveaux riche."

GOLDEN DAWN

by PETER B. KYNE

Then, too, Nance had a slow, leisurely walk. She knew how to enter a room, she was sure of herself at all times, without display assurance. To Lenny, the girl, in her abandoned moments, appeared to be amateurish, a bit of a show-off, unreal.

Thus far she had observed the girl only in this show-off phase of her personality. She was amazed, therefore on coming home from office after her conversation with McNamara, to find her a complete changeling. As she entered the house she caught the odor of cooking, and going into the kitchen, she discovered Nance, with one of Lenny's kitchen aprons on her, preparing dinner.

"Good evening, Lenny dear," she saluted her absolutely. "It occurred to me it might be a very great trial to you, coming home night after night from the office, tired, and having to prepare dinner for yourself. I'm sure you're too tired most of the time to prepare more than a very sketchy meal; and that isn't good for you." She smiled. "So I thought I'd have a nice dinner for you."

"Now, I call that real sweet Nance."

"Nance isn't Nance, Lenny. It's Penelope."

"Penelope what?"

"Penelope Catlin. Silly old Lenny, how could you forget?"

"You've placed your finger on my dread secret, Penelope. When I'm tired my memory fails me."

INSTALMENT XVII

Lenny knew that during the day a psychological door had opened and Nance Belden, otherwise personality B, the abnormal, had walked through it and emerged Penelope Catlin or personality A, the normal. Also, she knew now that Penelope Catlin probably had more or less amnesia for her former personality as Nance Belden. Lenny had heard Dr. Burt discuss such rare cases and she glowed with pride in the knowledge that at last he had secured a perfect specimen.

"I decided we wouldn't have broiled lamb chops, Lenny," the girl went on brightly, "so I've made a ragout."

"You mean, in good old Americanese you've concocted an Irish stew."

"You're so amusing, Lenny. A stew, of course. The difference between a stew and a ragout is entirely geographic. A ragout in France, an Irish stew in the United States."

"Have you lived in France?"

"Eight years, Lenny. Went to school in Switzerland and learned French there."

"Are your people French?"

"I think I was there alone." The girl appeared puzzled. "I dont remember my mother, but I had a father. He was such a dear, but he's dead."

"Were you happy there?"

"No. I was perfectly miserable."

"Why?"

"Because my father wasn't with me. We'd been such pals."

"But you must have lived with somebody."

Mmmmee Ibargai nV..'et faw hat

"There was Laurette, the cook, and Babette, the maid."

"Did you graduate?"

"No. I left school when father died. He was killed in a motor accident en route to Europe. I've always had a feeling he was coming over to see his Penelope. He loved me very much, Lenny." He was adorable. He used to tell me that I was all that made his life bearable. Somebody or other who—told me he wasn't my real father that I was a foundling he adopted. I wouldn't believe that at first, but when I read his will I knew it was so."

"What sort of woman was his wife—or did he have one?"

"I haven't the slightest idea, but I remember the will stated very positively that he had settled with her, that she had accepted the settlement in full satisfaction of her dower rights, and he made my income from the trust just sufficient to support me decently until I should come of age. He said in his will that he did this not because of any lack of affection for me, but because if he made me an excessive cl- lowkowski, his divorced wife would have control of it during my minority. He must have despised her."

"Well, if she could have control of your income during your minority, she must have been your adopted mother," the practical Lenny reasoned. "And you must have lived with her following the divorce. That's why you didn't see your father in Europe. You must have been there with your foster mother. Laurette, the cook and Babette, the maid, to run an establishment. Do you remember everything that has happened to you since that day Dan McNamara brought you to Dr. Burt's office?"

"Perfectly."

"Ever have funny thoughts about it?"

The girl stared at her shrewdly. "How strange that you should ask that question, Lenny. I do have funny thoughts. Sometimes I'm horrified at the memory and could die of shame; at other times it seems perfectly all right, but those are the times when I've been nervous and sleepless; sometimes I think there's something wrong with me, because people often refer to me as Nance Belden and to things I've done and which I know very well I haven't done. And yet it seems to me sometimes as if I had—just a wraith of memory, like an old dream. But still I'm strong and healthy."

"But a little given to spells of nervousness?"

"I'm moody." The girl seemed interested in herself to an unusual degree. "Some days I like to do things that are perfectly intolerable to me on other days. Some days I'm so democratic I could go out to dinner with a garbage man.—Other times I can't bear to be with anybody but nice people." She sighed and turned to inspect her savoury ragout. "I wish I knew what I wanted in life and I wish I knew somebody that wanted me. Of course I can pay my way through life, but it's terrible to be lonely, Lenny."

"I feel that Lenny again. "Now, when I decided to cast myself on your hospitality, Lenny, it seemed to me the most natural thing in the world to do. But today I'm covered with confusion. I've deliberately imposed myself upon your peace and privacy."

"Listen here, Penny my dear. You aren't the only lonely woman in this world. Believe it or not, the first spring buttercup isnt a bit more welcome in old Lady Lanzing's house than you are."

The lost one beamed upon her. "I believe that Lenny. Oh, Lenny, when I'm happy I'm so happy and when I'm wretched I'm so wretched."

"You think too much about that nose of yours, my poor child."

The girls hand flew to that organ (automatically, Lenny thought) as if she would hide it. "Isn't it terrible?" she lamented. "I'm so ugly nobody can ever love me."

"Quit that," Lenny commanded in her most ferocious manner. "If I had not found you lovable I wouldn't have you in my house this minute. I'd turn you over to Flynn and Angelloti. By the way," she continued, "how did you get that sock on the beezer?"

Father took me to a baseball game and a long drive flew into the bleachers and struck me on the nose. Lanny you mustn't use slang. It isn't polite."

"I wrap myself around a highball when I'm tired or want to be sociable and I smoke cigarettes," Lanny protested. "I suppose a perfect lady wouldn't do those things, either?"

"A perfect lady may without marring her perfection, old wise-budget. That's a matter of personal liberty, and only becomes distressing when carried to excess. But there's no excuse for a highly intelligent and cultured woman to employ the language of the street."

"I have my human moments," Lanny excused herself meekly.

"I'll set the table in the dining-room. Won't you order some flowers? And Lanny —I'll do something for you some day."

"For instance."

"Well, have you ever been to Europe?"

"Certainly not."

"Then I'll take you."

"I'll accept the nomination. In return I'll do something else for you I'll have that nose of your spoil open, the shattered bone of the bridge scraped out and a cute little piece of pig bile cartilage whittled off one of your spare ribs, and grafted into your funny nose to form a new bridge. Then the doctor will sew your nose to gether again over it—"

"What's the difference between having a nose like a Pekinese and a make shift with a big scar on it, I'd like to know?"

"Oh, there won't be any scar, dearie. The surgeon will cut a strip of epidermis off your forehead, and without detaching it from your forehead, bring the flap down, drape it over your new scarred nose and graft it there. It will grow and cover the scar, and when everything's lovely, that skin connection with your forehead will be severed and the ragged edges trimmed and presently nature will do the rest. Six months after the operation I'll defy anybody but an expert to discover you've got a plastop-made nose."

The girl's eyes shone. "Is it true, Lanny, is it true? It's so hard to believe in miracles."

"Skinny pulls 'em off daily, my dear."

Nance changed the subject. "Here, here, we're gabbling like so many geese. The linen, woman, where's the linen? Off with your hat and coat. While you're getting it I'll run upstairs and get your mules."

"After dinner I must do some more pumping," thought Lanny. "The information will be invaluable to Stephen. Strange case! Total remenia sometimes, only partial amnesia at others. Dreadful mixture."

INSTALMENT XVIII

When Dan McNamara came home about midnight from the regular weekly meeting of the Police Commission, he found his ex-convict guest up and waiting for him. "I had two burglars here to-night, about ten o'clock, Chief," he announced.

The chief sat down and loaded his pipe. "I was expecting them, my boy. Did they ask you any questions?"

"No. They just searched the house. I don't think they touched anything except the lip-stick on the bureau over there," he said.

"Did they take the lip-stick?" Dan asked.

"They didn't take it, they looked at it." McNamara sighed. The case was getting a little thick for him when it became complicated with lip-sticks. He went to the telephone and got Stephen Burt out of bed.

"Did a certain party, while a guest at my house, ask you to bring out a lip-stick when you called in the course of your professional duties, Doctor?"

"Oh, yes."

"Thanks. Goodnight." McNamara hung up and went to the room lately occupied by Nance Belden, which the bureau he found a lip-stick. "Vanity is always the undoing of a crook," he sighed and went to bed, greatly troubled in his mind at what was, to him,it incubitable knowledge that Flynn and Angelloti, even though they failed to find their quarry, could be convinced, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that he had harboured an escaped convict in his house.

He passed a sleepless night, but he did some solid thinking, so there was no lost time. He had hoped, by providing this sick convict as an alibi for Doctor Burt's nightly visits, to throw Flynn and Angelloti off the scent—and now the scent was hotter than ever.

"Now, what will they do? They're morally certain she went to Lanny's house the night she escaped and that Lanny got her out of there in the nick of time and took her here. Now that she's escaped them here they may suspect she'll double back to Burt's house. Mudervtion! However, those two dicks will never bother her with out fortifying themselves with a search warrant. They'd be too fraid of me. But with a search warrant and the girl to show for their pains they'll have me foul. I couldn't open my mouth—if they bring the girl into headquarters I'll have to give them a cheer and congratulate them."

AFTER TWENTY YEARS OF CONSTANT RESEARCH

Durability HAS NOT BEEN SACRIFICED TO SPEED IN Moffats THE QUICKEST Cook-Quik DURABLE ELEMENT Element

SPEED, all kinds of it, can always be obtained, and records for speedy boiling of water can easily be broken at any time by laboratory tests. Indeed they can be broken under domestic tests, too.

But Moffats are building elements to last under ordinary domestic conditions: They have not deviated from this policy of speed plus durability in element construction. Moffats will not mislead their users by announcing the breaking of meaningless records for speed, because to provide speed without durability is a useless waste of money. Therefore, in the new Cook-Quik Element you have the highest speed science and ingenuity can produce without minimizing in any way whatever the wonderful durability and service record of Moffats Electric Range Elements.

The introduction of Moffats Cook-Quik Element is not the result of a sudden discovery of some new means of construction, but is the result of over twenty years' patient research and investigation in the Moffat Laboratory. Many, many hours, even days and weeks, have been consumed in studying very minor points of construction which ordinarily would be overlooked by people less thorough than Moffats Limited, yet this carefulness has been worth while because the sum total of it all is an element that is what Moffats declare it to be, namely: the quickest durable element made.

All Moffats Electric Ranges now leaving the factory are equipped with one Cook-Quik Element.

Remember there are over 130,000 Moffats Gold Medal Electric Ranges in daily use in all parts of the British Empire, and many parts of the world.

Indeed, there are more Moffats Ranges sold within the British Empire than any other make of range—a sure sign that you buy the best when you purchase a Moffats Gold Medal Electric Range.

MOFFATS LIMITED, WESTON, ONTARIO

The "A.B.C." of the Cook-Quik Element

A. The new element will boil water faster than any element previously made by Moffats, and compares with any other on the market for speed.

B. Speed is the result of light weight, therefore requiring fewer heat units for initial heating. Now top plate and patented beads also facilitate speedy cooking.

C. Long life is assured by use of patented alloy for top plate, which will not corrode or disintegrate with constant use. The high grade 1700-watt coils also operate efficiently at very low temperatures.

D. Service will rarely be needed on the new Cook-Quik Element, but if a necessity does arise, the element may be serviced without destroying any part of the element. Cleanliness is also a big factor with the new element.

E. Safe operation at the lowest possible cost is further guaranteed by the air and porcelain insulation features of the new element which prevent leakage of power whether the element is red hot or cold. This is a vast improvement over the cement or powder insulated element.

DURABLE ROAD SYSTEM FAVORED BY THE COUNCIL

R. M. Fellows, District Engineer, Interviews Council in Matter

DEBENTURE DEBT

Canada Cement Officials Were Heard at the Session Today

A number of deputations waited upon the county council at their first session today, chief being R. "Roy" Fellows, county road engineer from the Department of Highways. Mr. Fellows explained the road programme for the coming year and hoped the county council would see fit to spend $100,000 on permanent roads this year. Every township ratrenches in these times, how are the municipalities going to take care of these roads dependent on a road building programme?" asked Mr. Fellows. The Ontario Government is not retrenching but is planning to build roads, as material and labor is the cheapest it has been in years. The members of the county council were supplied with a chart of all the roads in the county and the cost of maintenance per mile clearly given. This county has spent considerable money each year for maintenance and generally speaking they are no better in the following year."

The discussion resolved itself into whether the council should commit itself to a debenture debt or pay for the roads as they go, but all were agreed that the county should inaugurate a system of permanent roads.

Assembly Insurance

R. White from the Globe Indemnity Company, addressed the council stating that the risk was good last year and that the company had seen fit to reduce the premium from $80 to $720.00. On motion of Mr. Mitchell the offer was accepted and the Globe Indemnity Company would carry the insurance again next year.

Harold Legate, superintendent of the Canada Cement Company and Jos. Frost, engineer, from Marlbank, addressed the council soliciting some of the business should a road programme be carried out. Mr. Legate thanked the council for Point Anne roads and stated that the Cement company was as much interested in the affairs of the county as any taxpayer, the company being the second largest taxpayer. "There is an assessment of $780,000 on the plant with between 215 to 230 men employed the year around" he said, "dependents at 1200." There has been spent over four million dollars in salaries and the payroll at the present time is nearly $400,000 per year. The employees are over 90 per cent. Canadian and directly benefits the people employed and indirectly the whole county. If the county sees fit to build certain permanent roads it can be done with a 100 per cent. Hastings product. It was thought that the plant would be closed for at least three months this year but the fifth officer, consisting of the two bridges built in Belleville, the filtration plant, the Point Anne road and a section of pavement in Prince Edward County, the result being that the plant will not be closed one day this year." The speaker asked the council to consider te plant if they intended to build any roads this year.

DISEASES AND CURES IN EARLY AGES

Toronto, Jan. 28. — If you had a toothache you see generously of cucumber.

If your ailment was night blindness you scratched the head of your hen with a comb and washed your face in wine. These were only two of the "diseases and cures" described by Hon. Justice Riddell when he addressed the Women's Canadian Club on "Dietetics in the Middle Ages". At the outset of his discourse he explained that much attention had been paid to diet in Greece and Rome in the Middle Ages, but later it had become a lost art until the development of the microscope brought re-awakened interest.

Falling hair—a common ailment of every age—was believed to be due to contact with a salamander. An excellent cure—in the Middle Ages—for cataract was "scratch the back of the head with a comb every day and wash the feet often." For night blindness or inability to see in the darkness sufferers were advised to "scratch the back of the head with a comb and wash the face in wine."

APPLY FOR EXTENSION OF TIME IN PLAN TO BUILD ST. LAWRENCE BRIDGE

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Jan. 28—Notice is given here of the intention of the St. Lawrence River Bridge Company to apply to Parliament at the approaching session for an Act extending the time for obtaining the necessary approval for the construction of a bridge across the St. Lawrence River, authorized at the session of 1928, and enlarging the scope of its powers of amalgamation by empowering it to unite with any public authority, body or commission constituted under the laws of Canada, the State of New York or the United States or any state thereof. The application for an extension of time and for enlargement of its powers is interesting in view of the investigation of the International Bridge situation approaching completion by New York State Bridge Commission appointed by Governor Roosevelt and its desire, as recently expressed in conference with the Minister of Public Works and departmental officials at Ottawa, to co-operate with Canada in the construction of a bridge across the St. Lawrence.

SHELL COMPANY PLAN TO BUILD GASOLINE DEPOT

Acquire Buildings at North Front and Moira Sts. Announced Today

STANDARD TYPE

Will be Replica of Station on West Bridge St. —Scenic Improvement

Three properties the Mikel property, Clarke property and the Donahue property at the corner of North Front and Moira Street East, have been purchased by the Shell Gas Company of Canada and it is understood the construction of a modern service station of the standard type put up by the company will begin with the opening up of spring. Announcement to this effect has been made much interested in the conference between the Prime Minister and President Hoover, when doubtless such problems as the St. Lawrence waterways development will come up.

The opinion is current that the appointment of the new Minister to Washington will be made shortly after the Premier returns from that city.

LOOP-HOLE FOUND IN THE POLL TAX ACT

(By The Canadian Press)

LIGHTENBURG — Thousands of natives are no longer paying their poll tax, it is asserted, but are taking advantage of a defect in the Act passed in 1925 under which the tax was levied. The defect has been brought to light as a result of a decision of Magistrate Bosman, who has ruled that the onus for proving that a native has not paid his tax rests on the native and not on the police to prove that he has done so.

Thus it is that in order to secure a conviction it would be necessary to subpoena every revenue officer in the Union of South Africa, which of course could not be done. In some cases natives have pleaded guilty to failure to pay have been convicted, but in other cases magistrates have held that a plea of guilty is not sufficient to justify a conviction, and in the absence of evidence from the Crown, have acquitted the accused.

Police raids for poll tax have ceased, and it is estimated that as a result thousands of pounds are being lost to the revenue of the province. Formerly the only method by means of which the tax could be collected at the moment was through the methods of raids, and as these are no longer held, the majority of the 20,000 natives on the fields have not paid their tax for the current year. It is urged that the law should be so altered as to place the onus on the natives and not on the Crown.

LOCAL FAMILIES ARE SUSTAINED BY HAND-OUT FROM SOUP KITCHEN

It has been a fairly easy winter for those who are out of work in the city and for those who have only had employment at odd times. The weather has, for the most part, been mild which means saving in fuel. It has been impossible with the exception of one or two days, to wear a sprinkle or fall coat all winter, or even just a heavy sweater.

But there is one thing that is necessary, warm or cold weather, and that is food. The man must be satisfied—and it is here where the now famous "soup kitchen" at the police station has done a world of good. Not only the vagrants, hoboes, and "bums" who flit through and depend on lodging houses are fed, but needy families in the city have been literally kept alive by this kitchen.

It is stated this morning that between twenty and thirty families have been fed fairly regularly at the kitchen. Absolutely in necessity, faith in human nature has been kept alive in these hungry days and they at least have not had to go hungry. Some have come into the station for one meal and have never been seen since. The soup is served, with a steaming cup of tea or coffee, is certainly substantial and helps to keep body and soul together day by day.

PREMIER CONFERS WITH PRES. HOOVER

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 28.—Premier R. B. Bennett will leave for Washington tomorrow morning via New York. While the primary object of his visit is to examine the Canadian Legation in the United States which was much interested will be centred on the conference between the Prime Minister and President Hoover, when doubtless such problems as the St. Lawrence waterways development will come up.

The opinion is current that the appointment of the new Minister to Washington will be made shortly after the Premier returns from that city.

PRINCE PROCEEDS TO EXPOSITION

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan 28—CP— The Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, who reached here this morning aboard the steamship Cropsea on their way to Buenos Aires where the heir will open the Pan-American Trade exposition next March.

They were to come ashore for a brief visit and resume their journey this afternoon with Havanna, Cuba, as the next port. It was the first time since 1920 that Bermuda had seen the heir to the throne.

DRASTIC CHANGE IN MILK BY-LAW MAY BE ENACTED

Board of Health Proposes Legislation in Regard to Pasteurized Milk

OBSOLETE PLANTS

J. V. Doyle is Elected Chairman for the Ensuing Year —Dairyman Inspection

Milk and cream to be sold in Belleville in the future after a date set by the council in a by-law which is proposed, will be pasteurized milk and cream only. There will be no certified milk and cream offered or permitted to be sold as yesterday afternoon, the Board of Health of the city recommended the resolution passed last year to be forwarded to the council in regard to the milk supply to permit sale of pasteurized milk and cream only. Certification of milk would prove to be very expensive and the Board of Commissioners of the department for it would mean that a veterinary would have to visit the herds which supply the dairies, there would be regular inspection of the cows, stables and milk utensils and other necessary arrangements would have to be carried out which would greatly add to the cost of milk. As a result it was felt that certified milk would probably twenty-five cents a quart rather than at a prohibitive price. On the other hand milk from tuberculin tested herd would only guarantee against bovine tuberculosis but not against the spread of other diseases, such as typhoid.

Pasteurization Only Needed

A communication of the Board of Health stated today to the Ontario Legislature that pasteurization does cover all these contingencies and recommended that one city which decided to allow pasteurized and certified milk to be sold, found the latter fell into disfavor in their milk from certified herds.

The explains why the amendment was approved by the local Board of Health. It was moved by Dr. G. S. Cronk, M. O. H., seconded by H. Basil Smith.

The foregoing resolution of the city council relating to the sale of pasteurized and certified milk and cream in the city of Belleville, be amended by striking out any reference to certified and that the request be granted for the sale of pasteurized milk and cream only."

The resolution was carried.

On motion of Mr. Harold Bateman, seconded by Dr. G. S. Cronk, it was decided:

"That the Board recommend to the city council that in the preparation of the new by-law for the sale of milk and cream be pasteurized, the said by-law shall provide all pasteurizing plants to conform to all sanitary requirements, be subject to the inspection and approval of the Provincial Department of Health before milk and cream are allowed to be sold from said plants."

Mr. Bateman suggested to the chairperter today that this resolution seeks to prevent the installation of obsolete plants in any dairies for such would soon have to be replaced for ineffiiency and to conform with provincial regulations.

It is thought pasteurized milk may be sold here about June 1st.

At the organization meeting held on Tuesday afternoon, J. V. Doyle was elected chairman, succeeding Mr. Bateman, chairman in 1930. Other members present were Mr. Bateman, H. Bateman, Medical Officer G. S. Cronk and Inspector Hall. Representing Mr. A. P. Sullman, a member of the board had been called away to Toronto.

KI-Y HOCKEY

The Tigers and Black Hawks met in their schedule Midget League game at Simpson's rink last night. The Tigers had a little heavy on account of the falling snow and puck carrying was very difficult. Exhibition of hockey was therefore not so good, but the boys gave their best under the difficult conditions. The Tigers had a little edge on the Black Hawks winning the game with a score of 2-0. Bill Dorais and Ralph Morgan each scored one counter for their team.

BILLIARD EXPERTS MEET IN EMPIRE TOURNAMENT FINAL

The Empire billiard tournament which has been in progress in England for the last two months has now reached the final stages and Tom Newman (left), England's finest player, on "plain cannons" will meet Walter Lindrum (right), Australian champion and the greatest exponent of English billiards in the world at the present time, for the Gold Cup, emblematic of the billiard championship of the British Empire. Tom Newman whose good form has enabled him to beat Dr. S. English champion, in the semi-final, will receive a 7,000 point start from the Australian, which is considered to make the result a close one.

Father Sat With Hosts Son Among the Guests

It was a real get-together banquet last night at Hotel Quinte for the members of one family. With the entertaining city council and the Chamber of Commerce sat Alderman George Sprackett, who was elected last December to a seat in the civic body for his first year as a member of the council—while among their guests, the members of the county council, sat Reeve James Sprackett of Tudor and Cashel. This story would not be complete without mention of the fact stated that Reeve Sprackett is the son of Alderman Sprackett. Reeve James Sprackett has served the northern municipality and has had the benefit of the experience of his father as a member of the township council of one of the northern municipalities.

RUMOUR SAYS JOSEPHINE K. OWNED BY UNITED STATES' INTERESTS

Probe Shooting of Canadian Captain Off the Atlantic Coast

Washington, Jan. 28—A "suspicion" that the rum-runner Josephine K was owned in the United States has been communicated to the State Department by the United States Consulate at Yarmouth, N.S.

Department officials said the consulate's report was based on rumors in Yarmouth that the vessel was owned by the same ring that is chargeed with the Canadian registered rum runner "I'm Alone," sunk in March, 1929, in the Gulf of Mexico, with loss of life.

New York, Jan. 28—Testimony that Boatswain Schmidt of the C. G. 145 was intoxicated when he boarded the Canadian power boat Josephine K, following its capture Saturday and that he continued to drink during the night in the forecastle of the Josephine K was given before the coastguard inquiry today by members of the guard inquiry today by members of the coastguard and Inspectors.

New York, Jan. 28—A Board of Inquiry, investigating the shooting of the Canadian rum runner Josephine K., by coastguard was informed today that Schmidt, the boatswain who ended vengeance for the killing of the master, Capt. William P. Cluett, who was slain by a coastguard shell.

The threat, the board was told came from Alfred Cluett, a cook on board the Josephine K., and a brother of the captain. Testimony was given by Bennett Walker, cook of the coastguard.

Washington, Jan. 28—When informed of the Washington report, Mr. Lewis at Yarmouth denied having made a report or being in any way involved in the affair. The Liverpool Shipping Company of Halifax is the official owner of the Josephine K.

DIED IN TORONTO

Word was received in the city today that "Bobby" Hawthorne, three and one half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hawthorne, 19 Dundas avenue, Toronto, had passed away in the hospital for Sick Children yesterday afternoon. The little boy was suffering from a malignant tumor of the brain. Mr. Hawthorne for some time was stationed at the Belleville General Hospital as an X-ray specialist. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon. The little boy leaves to mourn his loss his parents and one sister, Helen.

VAGARIES OF WEATHER FELT HERE WITH SUNSHINE, SNOW AND FRIGIDITY

"The most changeable winter ever seen in Belleville" is the consensus of opinion of old-timers who have lived in this vicinity all their lives. "Warm one day and freezing next—skating today and a pool of water tomorrow. Besides that, it is most unhealthy, conducive to colds and sore throats."

This has been amply borne out during the past week or so. Yesterday was a mild, springlike day. It even drizzled a little early in the afternoon. But as the shades of night began to fall so did the mercury and before midnight the thermometer was registering zero—and below. It started snowing shortly before one o'clock and it was not until after the crocuses start to bloom.

Annual Chamber of Commerce Dinner Marked by Same Co-operative Spirit

New developments of government, particularly in the sphere of public welfare were emphasized at the eleventh annual get-together banquet tended by the city council and chamber of commerce of this city to the County Council of Hastings last night at Hotel Quinte. With the influences of social legislation pervading the farthest recesses of this province, it was fitting than an entire program should be given over to the work which has been brought so much to the attention of the city and county councils in the past year, and which, if brought in mind the Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of the Department of, Public Welfare in charge of operations of Ontario appeared as the guest speaker before the assembly, which filled the dining room.

W. C. MIKEL WAS LEAGUE SPEAKER, TRACES LOYALISM

Delivered Splendid Lecture Before Ottawa La Bonne Entente League

W. C. Mikel, K.C., of Belleville, Vice-President of the United Empire Loyalists Association of Canada, in addressing the La Bonne Entente League, at the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, stated that it was the action of the French-Canadians and the United Empire Loyalists that made Canada the British Empire.

"When the Continental Congress of representatives from the Thirteen Colonies in rebellion against the British Crown, met at Philadelphia and decided on July 4, 1776, to separate from the British Empire, the Province of Quebec was not represented at this Congress. Quebec had been invited to send representatives, but refused to participate in such a convention.

When the Revolutionary War started a hostile army from the Rebellious colonies invaded Montreal and the surrounding territory but even that did not terrorize the French-Canadians into joining the rebel colonies. Again, when the United States of America declared war on Canada, June 18, 1812, a strong effort was made by the United States to induce Quebec to join with the United States, but Quebec remained loyal.

Who Are The Loyalists.

As the new Government of the United States failed to earn the Treaty of Paris, authorising the restoration to the Loyalists of their property taken from the British Government decided to make compensation to the Loyalists, and appointed Commissioners to investigate their claims, which Commission divided the Loyalists into six classes or groups, as follows:

1. Those who had rendered services to Great Britain.

2. Those who had borne arms against the Revolution.

3. Destitute Loyalists.

4. Loyalists resident in Great Britain.

5. "Those who took oaths of allegiance to American States, but afterwards joined the British.

6. Those who took arms with the Americans and later joined the English army and navy.

Order-in-Council.

When Lord Dorchester was Governor-General of Canada, and Commander-in-Chief of the British forces in America he obtained the passage of an Order-in-Council on November 9, 1789, conferring an hereditary "Mark of Honour" upon those Loyalists who joined the Royal Standard in America prior to the Treaty of Separation in 1783, and also directed it should be made of their names "to the end that their posterity may be discriminated from future settlers as proper objects for distinguished benefits and privileges." This "Mark of Honour" was the first and only hereditary title conferred by the Canadian Government.

Parliament Statute, Chapter 146.

On the 17th of May, 1914, a Statute was passed by the Dominion Parliament on the application of the Hon. Sir Allan Aylesworth and others incorporating the United Empire Loyalists Association of Canada. The test of membership in this Association is as follows: "Descendant, of those families who during the American revolutionary war of 1775 to 1783 manifested their homes in retaining their loyalty to the British Crown."

Mr. Mikel stated that a new set of by-laws is being prepared by the Association, and an opportunity would be offered Loyalists all over the country to form branches under this Statute.

The original ink pen was a camel's hair brush and even today hundreds of these pens are in daily use in this country.

Mr. Felix Allore, who underwent an operation at Toronto General Hospital, returned to his home yesterday.

Mrs. J. E. Foley of Chicago, is visiting her sisters, Mrs. Herbert Connell and Mrs. P. H. Gill of this city.

Mrs. Thomas Holland was hostess at the card party of the Women of Moose Jaw Legion yesterday afternoon when tables of euchre were in play and the prizes were won as follows—Mrs. Chamberlain, Mrs. Gilbert; second, Mrs. Raynor consolation. The rummy prize was awarded to Mrs. William Parry.

About thirty members of the Executive Trixie boys of Holloway Street enjoyed a sleigh drive last evening, accompanied by their teacher, Mr. F. Wilson. After the drive the young people returned to the church where an interesting travelogue of Alaska was given, after which refreshments were served.

Last evening many friends gathered to congratulate and celebrate with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hanna at their home, East Moira Street, on the occasion of the thirtieth anniversary of their wedding. Cards were played and lovely prizes were awarded. Mr. Sam Dyer sang two solos with Mr. Bixley presiding at the piano. A dainty lunch was served and Mr. Hanna thanked in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Hanna many happy years. Mrs. Morgan and Mrs. Bixley poured tea and Misses Annie Boules presented a gift to the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Hanna were married January 27, 1901. Mrs. Hanna was formerly Miss Luella Heisne; of Syracuse, N.Y.

The following item in the social column of Friday's New York Times will be of interest to many Belleville residents: "Mr. and Mrs. William Duncan Pocker, of Hartford, have received a cable announcing the marriage yesterday of their daughter, Miss Ruth Pocker, to Duncan P. Ferguson in London, where the bride had been studying singing. The couple will reside here, arriving a month hence. They will pass the summer in Quebec. Mrs. Ferguson was graduated from Smith College in 1922. Mr. Ferguson, who was graduated from Harvard, is a son of Dr. and Mrs. John Calvin Ferguson of Shanghai, China. His father is American Adviser to the Chinese Government." Dr. John Calvin Ferguson and Mrs. Ferguson are residents of Albert College, their father being at one time pastor of the Bridge Street church. Mr. F. Sherman, formerly of this city, is a sister of Dr. Ferguson and an aunt of Duncan F. Ferguson.

OBITUARY

CHARLES CARR

As the last echo of the volley from the rifles of the firing party has died in the cold air, all that was mortal of the late Charles Carr, secretary of Post No. 2, Canadian Legion, was laid to rest in the Belleville cemetery yesterday morning.

The firing party was composed of Company Quartermaster Sergeant Fothwell (in charge), Sergt. Winters, Sergt. Croft, Sergt. Pratt, Pte. Clarke, Pte. Tompkins, Pte. Pierce, Pte. Lawbell, Pte. Reynolds, Pte. Norton, Bugler Lessels sounded the Last Post. This party was escorted from the late graveside where a military funeral was given the war veteran. Services were conducted in the Legion Hall by the Rev. John Lyons of St. Thomas Church, assisted by the Rev. A. L. Geen, Chaplain of the Legion. The casket was draped with the Union Jack and it was covered deep with narrow Legion stars and out on to the street, the crowd which had gathered to pay a last tribute to one of His Majesty's defenders during the World War reverently removed their hats.

The many flowers which had been sent not only by members of the Legion but also by a host of friends in the city testified to the esteem in which the late Mr. Carr had been held. The bearers were J. McGuire, Jas. Horton, W. Milton, Robert Simpson and J. Lavin.

The name of Miss Ivy Carr, a daughter, was inadvertently omitted from the obituary on Monday.

SEALS HERD AT BATTLE HARBOR

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 24—The possibility of securing information of value to the seal-hunters when they go "north to the ice" in early March, is seen here in reports from Battle Harbor, Labrador, of profitable seal-hunting in December. The mail steamer Sagona, arriving at Curling from the Labrador port reported that on one day between two and three hundred seals had been taken at Battle Harbor.

It is believed that a study of the mammals taken at that settlement in December might establish facts relative to the number of seals going through the Straits of Belle Isle to the Gulf, and that conditions existing at the time might be an important element in determining the course the seals take in the vicinity of the Straits. The question is raised as to whether these seals have a herd that always migrates through the Strait, and whether the numbers governed by conditions existing when the herd is in that vicinity.

RECEIVES PARCEL AFTER LONG DELAY

(By The Canadian Press)

WINNIPEG — To receive a parcel posted to him fifteen years ago was the novel experience recently received by Pipe Major Alex Cameron, of Transcona.

Fifteen years ago a small tin box of cigarettes was mailed to Mr. Cameron, then serving in Flanders with the famous Black Watch regiment. After many months of travel through numerous base post offices in wartorn France and Flanders the parcel eventually was returned to W. Connor, the original sender.

Treasured as a souvenir, the tin box was sent by Mr. Connor and laid away among his valuables in an old cupboard. It remained forgotten until one day last week when Mr. Connor had occasion to do some diligent searching in the dark recesses of the cupboard. Mr. Connor lost no time getting in touch with the pipe major and the cigarettes, undamaged, were handed over plus the necessary ceremony.

BLAME FIRE BUGS FOR HOLOCAUST

Buena Ventura, Colombia, Jan. 27—Two persons were believed to have died today in flames which destroyed the commercial district of this Pacific port, with a loss of $5,000,000.

The fire, which police are convinced was of incendiary origin, wrought great destruction and practically wiped out the main section of Colombia's greatest Pacific port.

The only important commercial structures still standing are the new $4,000,000 concrete wharf recently accepted by the Government and the new Hotel Estacion.

The Customs house, one of the largest in Colombia, was destroyed. Officials estimated that it had contained imports worth $1,500,000.

The Banco London and the Royal Bank of Canada burned to the ground but their cash and securities were believed safe in fireproof vaults.

KNIGHTHOOD IN NEWFOUNDLAND

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 24—The knighthood conferred on Hon. Tasker Cook, for many year's Mayor of St. John's in the New Year's honors list, brought the number of living knights in Newfoundland to eleven. Rt. Hon. Sir William Lloyd and Rt. Hon. Sir Richard Squires, are Knight Commanders of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. Knights of the British Empire include Sir John Crosbie, Sir William Coaker and Sir John Bennett. Membe s of the order of Knight, Bachelor are Sir William Horwood, Sir Edgar Bowring, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, Sir Marmaduke Winter, Sir Alfred Morine and Sir Thasker Cook. He is referring to the honor conferred on Newfoundland's latest knight a commentator has been at pains to clarify the precedence of the various orders. The principal order of chivalry is the Garter, and of the thirty-seven members, only one, Sir Austin Chamberlain, is not a peer. The same is true for the Order of the Thistle, reserved for Scottish aristocrats. The third order is that of St. Patrick, reserved for Irish peers. After these comes the Order of the Bath, which does confer knighthood, but is confined to a distinguished company of twenty-four members.

Of the orders of knighthood most commonly distributed the ranking order is: The Most Honorable Order of the Bath, instituted in 1399; The Most Exalted Order of the Star of India, instituted in 1861; The Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, instituted in 1818; The Most Distinguished Order of the Indian Empire instituted in 1877; The Most Excellent Order of the British Empire instituted in 1917; the Royal Victorian Order and the Knights Bachelor.

WEDDINGS

LEWIS—COLE

On Monday evening, January 26, at seven o'clock, a quiet but pretty wedding took place in the Milford United Church parsonage, with the Rev. S. F. Dixon, officiating, when Edna K. Cole, elder daughter, of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Cole, Milford, became the bride of Tom Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Lewis of Belleville.

The bride wore a very becoming dress of old rose lace and tulle, made on long princess lines with shoes and hat in contrasting shade. She carried a shower bouquet of Killarney roses and was gowned in a long, pink, flowered chiffon dress with shoes and hat to match.

The groom was supported by Orliff Lloyd of Belleville.

After the ceremony the young couple left for a trip by motor.

SIDNEY LIBERAL PARTY ORGANIZED

Mr. J. A. Lott is Elected President — Splendid Program Given

One of the largest Liberal meetings in the township of Sidney was held in the Frankford Community Hall on the evening of January 26th. The meeting was called for reorganization and a social evening as well. Mr. J. A. Lott, president, was duly elected chairman for the evening.

The first part of the program was the chairman's address followed by a summary report of the recent Liberal convention in Toronto, given by Mrs. (Col.) Vanderwater and M. B. Snow. Special mention was made of the popularity and ability of the new chosen leader, Mr. M. F. Hepburn, the attitude of the Liberal party toward the temperance issue and the heavy burden of taxation through provincial administration, the development and cost of electric power to rural municipalities.

The second part was the reorganization with the following officers elected:

President—Mr. J. A. Lott.
First Vice-President—Miss Keitha Lloyd.
Second Vice-President—Mr. Walter Harder.
Secretary-Treasurer—M. B. Snow.

Poll Chairmen—Wm. Davis, D. A. Davis.
Glen Ross—Percy Utman.
Sandford—E. Rousseau.
Gilbert's—Stanley Spafford.
Avondale—Fred Denyes.
Hamilton's—Walter Hamilton.
Stirling—Mrs. C. McGee.
Town Hall—J. McPherson.

A musical program was then put on consisting of many numbers by the boys from overseas. Solo by Miss M. Lloyd; duet, Mr. F. Knight and Mr. Magee; solo, Mrs. (Col) Vanderwater; reading by Mrs. Hepburn; a trapper by the ladies. The meeting then closed with the National Anthem and three rousing cheers for the new leader.

LEAGUE AGAINST SMOKING FORMED

Boston, Mass., Jan. 24—Organizing the Women's Independence League, dedicated to a defence of women's right to smoke cigarettes, 400 in the Museum of Fine Arts School, one of the largest institutions of its kind in Massachusetts, battle was declared against the newly formed Anti-smoking League for Women.

The new organization has not as yet caused any alarm at Wellesley and other girls colleges. Mrs. Mary C. Young, dean of residence at Wellesley, made a statement saying:

"Out here at Wellesley the smokers have made their regulations and there is no Alumnae Hall, on the shores of Lake Waban and in village tea rooms, though not in dormitories or on the streets, the non-smokers are not bothered, so all are satisfied. We do not believe any moral question is involved, for any morals, it is simply a matter of individual taste. It seems to us that a league to stop women from smoking is long overdue."

Similar opinions were expressed at Radcliffe, Smith College and other educational institutions for girls.

BELLEVILLE INTERMEDIATES GAIN PLAY-OFF POSITION BY DEFEATING KINGSTON FRONTENACS BY 4-2

Game Was Slow and Uninteresting in Early Stages but Pepped up in Latter Periods—Henry and Jack Canning Between Them Scored All Goals, With Defensemen Giving Passes for Two—Veteran Joe Smith Saved His Team from Bad Drubbing.

Kingston was practically eliminated from the intermediate group race last night at the Belleville Arena when the Quinte team took the Frontenacs into camp by a score of 4 to 2, the periods being 2 to 0, 2 to 1, in a slow and uninteresting contest. Belleville can now use the group or win it according to the outcome of the postponed game between Trenton and Kingston to be played in Trenton. Should Trenton win, Belleville and Trenton will be tied and a playoff will be necessary and if Kingston win the game, Belleville would meet the other section winners for the group championship. It is a funny situation and the fans that thought the intermediates were going no place in particular are beginning to perk up and wish them the best of luck. The hockey played last night was not of the best variety, not by many leagues, but there were patches that had the fairly large crowd on their feet rooting for the boys to bring home the bacon.

New Faces in Lineup

Stan Burgoyne was forced to make a shift in his lineups at the last moment. Ken Davis has not recovered from his sickness and was unable to play and Jimmy Ehler and Jack Conners, two of the juniors were rushed into action and they did not play the worst game of the evening. "Happy" Day was also on hand and although he did work into the game, his old checkbecking had a great deal to do with the win. Henry Canning and his twin brother, Jack, shone on the offensive all evening and they looked the best with them. Their passing was more marked and had a greater effect and they took advantage of the breaks to ram in close for their goals. Each of them notched two goals and Henry was credited with an assist, which is not a bad evening's work. Buskard in goal was a "pip" and some of his saves made the fans hold their breath. He played every shot coolly and was always on top of the play when it was coming in. Even when Kingston was pressing in the latter stages he had his head up in the play and turned in a smart effort. Ingram and Green were hard to pass on the defence and their rushing was of the timely and dangerous. Each of the defencemen were credited with an assist and that kind of hockey brings its results. Harold Buck was sent out to speakership Joe Smith and he also checked him to the King's taste. Joe stated many miles but Buck was always with him and never allowed him to get set for a drive.

Veteran Joe Smith

Speaking of Joe Smith he was easily the best man trotted out by Kingston last night. He was not subbed once during the game and was always in the thick of the fight. He played the game clean but hard and made many more admirers in this city. He goes on like the "brook" and he simply not lay away the blades for a couple of seasons yet. Muchmore and Boyd were the best of the remainder. Worth was not good in the twine and he allowed a couple of soft ones to beat him. The defence was rugged but they could not make headway against the constant potchecking of Ehler and Henry Canning in centre. Belleville used a short passing game that was effective and was paired when the wing men of Kingston roamed from their positions. Gavin, Wells and Woodruff were used sparingly with Gavin a regular pepperpot but he was whistled down to a star by the hefty hodging of Green and Ingram.

The Play

The first period was slow with nothing of consequence to report. The rallies by either team were broken up at centre ice or the puck carrier was chased to the corner before any damage was done. Finally Jack Canning got a break with Ingram and these players made no mistake. Ingram carried up and meeting the defence slid the disc over to Jack and he made it say "uncle" behind North. The Belleville team pressed the attack and Henry Canning came into the picture. Murney Green made one of his frequent rushes to the other end and being flanked by Henry, sided the rubber over and North was caught completely off guard. The second period was Kingston's to a certain extent in that they scored the only goal registered. Smith stayed in behind the Belleville blue line and when one of the local players came out in front of the twine with the disc, Smith promptly hooked it away and gave Buskard no chance at the rebound. Two penalties were handed out in this frame, one to each team and one of them was Muchmore's.

Muchmore was serving a penalty when the third frame opened and Henry Canning gave brother Jack the pass on the uncovered wing and he made no mistake. Late in the rushes and skated close in to North before letting the shot go and it found the unprotected corner of the twine. Gavin put his team back in the running when the second line staged an offensive. Watts gave the pass after carrying the length of the ice pone and Gavin promptly raced in to the game was put in the bag for the locals with only five minutes to play when Muchmore came into the melee play of the night. He carried the rubber from his own blue line and smashed the defence faked a shot. When the defencemen turned Henry dropped thru the opening and caught Joe Smith to pick the corner. Kingston came right back and for some time had the play in Belleville defensive area and the old time but effective custom was the order of the day. Buck was far out to protect the lead. Time was called with Kingston swarming in on the Belleville net. The local players and summary are:

Belleville—Goal, Buskard; defence, Green and Ingram; centre, H. Canning; wings, J. Canning and Buck; subs, Conners, Ehler and Day.

Kingston—Goal, North; defence, McDougall and Meiss; centre, Boyd; wings, Muchmore and Worth; subs, Gavin, Woodruff and Watts.

"Y" Alleys

The game in the Ladies afternoon league resulted in three points for the Arenas and one for the Aviators, in Belleville's new game. High bowlers were Mrs. Canning for the Arenas with Mrs. Newman but one below and Mrs. Lee for the Aviators with Mrs. Scinner only one down. Since re-organizing for the winter series this league is very evenly balanced and appears to be in for a great season.

In a rod bot game in the Teachers inter group series, Albert "B" took three points to King George one. This game was featured by the heavy bowling of Miss Grills 249, Mr. Reekie 219 and Mrs. Hendershot 239.

FRANKFORD LOST OVERTIME GAME IN TRENT LOOP

Madoc Victors in Hard-Fought Struggle in the Talc Village

After two periods of overtime had been played, Madoc finally defeated Frankford in a Trent Valley League fixture in the talc village last night, by a score of 3-2. Horne Johnston broke the dead-lock when he picked up Andrews' well-timed pass in the second twenty minutes of play and whip it into the twine behind Prevost.

For Madoc, Henderson, Andrews and Hyndman did yeoman duty; Henderson being particularly effective, making some fine plays and lugging two goals. Myers, Filkin and Shaw were Frankford's best, Shaw hurling a pretty goal and an assist to his credit. Both goalies, Prevost of Frankford and Hollin of Madoc put up sterling exhibitions.

Leo Barrett of Belleville, handled a splendid game.

First Period

Five minutes after the game commenced, Johnston tested Prevost with a shot from close in, Henderson opening the scoring when he took L'Heureux's pass in front of the net. Bowen came right back and nearly notched one for Frankford. Frankford again missed a wonderful chance to score when there was no one to take McLean's pass from the corner. Shaw breezed the count for Frankford on a pass from Myers.

Second Period

Barkey drew the first penalty of the game for trip. Soon after Barkey came back McGuire missed a nice one from close in. Filion put Prankford one down when he took Shaw's pass to place the disc in the upper right hand corner. Madoc tried hard to tie the tally to no avail.

Third Period

This period opened fast with both teams making some dangerous rushes. Johnston missed a beauty when he had only Hollin to beat. Andrews failed to make a lovely shot only to have Prevost turn its aside. Madoc tied the score when Johnston took Andrews' pass and goal of the game on a single from the blue line. This period was packed full of thrills.

Overtime Period

Soon after this period opened, McLean came so scored when he carried the puck the whole length of the ice. Prevost proved to be a beauty when he shot into Prevost's pads.

Second Overtime Period

This period started with Madoc forcing the play. Johnston put the game on ice when he took Andrews' pass from the corner to score.

The game ended Madoc 3, Frankford 2.

Line-Up

Madoc—Goal, Hollin; R.D., Andrews, L.D., Barkey; C. L'Heureux, R.W., Johnston; Centre, Hyndman; Sub —Watson, Mcon, Henderson.

Frankford—Goal, Prevost, R.D. W. O'Reilly; L.D., J. Borland; C. G. Bowen; R.W. R. Shaw, L.W. McLean, Subs Munn, C. O'Malley, Filion.

SEA FLEAS BEATEN BY PORT COLBORNE

Nationals Lost to the Sailors in an Overtime Battle

Port Colborne, Jan. 28 —Outplaying the National Sea Fleas of Toronto to a narrow extent, Port Colborne's fast senior team last night scored a 3.3 victory and practically gained a place in the O.H.A. senior "A" group. The winning goal was scored by Jack Cuthbert on the rebound from Heximer's shot after 21 minutes of overtime.

The teams played a 1-1 tie during the regular time, there being little to choose. In the first overtime session, Port Colborne scored but the Fleas tied the count during the proceedings. In the third overtime period where the Ports captured the break.

The game was a fast, clean contest, featured by brilliant hockey on the part of both clubs. Not until the extra sixes of overtime when a Donnybrook broke out at the Port Colborne defence did four players, a pair from each club, were banished for the remainder of the game.

The game was played before a packed arena, 3,000 people crowding their way into the rink and the largest on the best played in Port Colborne in some years.

Shannon, Heximer and Morrill were outstanding for the Sailors. They helped Walker hockey led the whole team in checking the Sea Fleas to a standstill. They also played an aggressive game and had their plays working smoothly. The Ports showed last night that their slump of the last three games was only temporary.

Bruce Paul, as usual, was the outstanding performer for the Sea Fleas despite the fact that after the first period, during which he scored on a lone rush, he was watched closely. McMullen, Mercer and Ross Paul played great hockey on the forward line, being only overshadowed by Paul.

It makes all the difference in the world whether we put Truth in the first place or in the second place.—Archbishop Whateley.

Recreation Alleys

The Kiwanis Ladies League got away to a good start when five teams played at the Recreation Alleys yesterday afternoon. This league consists of six teams but some of the players being ill one team could not bowl. Team No. 1 had a little edge on Team No. 2 and won 4 points, Mrs. Lee was high bowler for Team No. 1 with a nice score of 163, 106, 179—450 and for Team No. 2 Mrs. Tice with 115, 152, 129—396.

In the other game Team No. 3 won 3 points from Team No. 4, for Team No. 3 Mrs. Logan was high with 162, 168, 108—438 and for Team No. 4 Mrs. McIntosh with 136, 84, 120—340. Team No. 5 drew a bye and Miss Holway was high with a very nice score of 211, 89, 234—534. Mrs. Smith was next with 136, 168, 138—442.

There is quite a few beginners on these teams and it won't be long before they are right up with the best. The Afternoon Clubs Mrs. Lang's lin was the winner with 272.

The Teco League teams bowled last night and all teams couldn't decide which were the best, all of the teams breaking a points apiece.

In the Pirates vs. Wildcats, Miss A. Hogan was high for the Pirates with 276, 246, 160—682 and W. Baker with 176, 236, 159—571. For the Wildcats, Miss Murphy with 196, 178, 178—552 and Miss Smith with 182, 141, 268—571.

The other game Miss I. Woodley was high for the Masqueraders with 203, 152, 155—510. For the Terrors, Miss A. Browning was high with 160, 174, 168—452 and J. Kirk with 197, 169, 133—499.

ODDFELLOWS OF QUINTE DISTRICT HAD BIG NIGHT

Deputy Grand Sire of Sovereign Grand Lodge, J. Powley, Was Here

MUSICAL PROGRAM

Traced History of Order — Spreading Daily Thru' out the World

A reception was tendered last night to J. Powley, Deputy Grand Sire of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows by members of that Order from the entire district. Representatives from Trenton, Stirling, Madoc and many other centres were present last night to pay tribute to the first Grand Lodge Officer to visit this city. As well, Mr. Powley is but the third Canadian ever to hold office in the Grand Lodge. He came from Trenton.

It was an imposing sight presented in the lodge rooms. Grouped around the table of the Sire had were members of the different communities as the Oddfellows are held. Charity and Benevolence are practised in the different centres in different ways. Oddfellowship has really failed in the performance of its duty. The young men and young women are becoming members and I look for a greater influx of the younger crowd into the Order."

"Oddfellowship," said the speaker, "is not doing the work it used to do, according to some old members. However, I think that we are doing our duty the same to-day as we did thirty or forty years ago perhaps in a different way. Times have changed. Requirements are different today than they were half a century ago."

Oddfellows' Tasks

It is the duty, it was pointed out, of Oddfellows to go into the sick room and cheer up the patient, to relieve the down-hearted, to comfort and console the widow. Oddfellows have never neglected this duty, claimed Mr. Powley.

"Oddfellowship is taking its part in relieving distress caused by the present depression," said the speaker. "The Rebekahs, of Toronto, have a relief organization of any lodge to step into the breach when need arose.

"I believe that the works of good will go on as long as Oddfellowship continues," was the speaker's conclusion. "We are wielding an influence in the community to a much greater extent than we realize. Order of all the kind of doing that work," in conclusion, might I say that Oddfellowship is the handmaiden of the church. We do the practical work that the church finds difficult to perform."

"Oddfellowship is something that can be and should be highly valued by every man and woman connected with the Order."

F. S. Kerr, District Deputy Grand Patriarch, was the chairman for the evening. R. H. Ketcheson, P.D.D.G.P. introduced the speaker of the evening.

A pleasing little program was enacted when a presentation of a beautiful cut-glass vase was made to the Deputy Grand Sire. The following address was read by Brother R. H. Ketcheson.

Address Made

"Brother Joseph Powley, Deputy Grand Sire of the Independent Order of Oddfellows:

"It affords to you at this time the Greetings of the Brothers and Sisters of the Subordinate Lodges, Encampments, Rebekah Millitant and Rebekahs of this district, upon your elevation to this high and important office. It marks the culmination of many years of active and efficient service rendered by you to this great society throughout the jurisdiction of the Sovereign Grand Lodge.

"We feel that it is fitting in yours yet we feel that we share it with you because of our long and intimate association with you.

"Your devotion to the welfare of our Order, and your willingness and readiness to sacrifice and sit and labor in our behalf, has made a deep and lasting impression upon us and no language that I might use could magnify our love and our friendship for you.

"We are not unmindful that you are possibly conscious of the feeling we have for you, but in order that it may become permanent and lasting form, it is my very pleasant duty at this time on behalf of the Brothers and Sisters of this District to present to you this little gift as a token of the esteem we have for you. We trust that I could possibly utter could move fully express our feeling and our devotion to you.

"By the ties of Friendship, you have bound yourself to us. You have endeared you with love, and you have riveted them with the imperial virtue of charity.

"We trust that you may have a successful year, as Deputy Grand Sire, and that you may be spared for one of the most successful years in Oddfellowship during your term of office as Grand Sire.

"Fraternally yours.

A Good Programme

A splendid programme was presented during the evening, after which refreshments were served. Included among other speakers who made brief addresses were: J. S. Kerr, District Deputy Grand Patriarch, Ross Ketcheson, P.D.D.G.P., Percy Ramsden, D.D.G.M., Bro. Reverend Marshall, Bro. Rev. L. A. Green, Sister Neale of the Rebekahs. A vocal solo, with encore, was given by Brother Hector, while Bro. William Bird, of Windsor Lodge, rendered two patriotic solos. Sister Munro, of Trenton, gave two splendid numbers on the piano and Bro. George Cornish delighted everyone with some readings.

KIWANIS QUEENS ARE ENTERTAINED BY LOCAL CLUB

Kiwanian Rev. Johnson of Toronto Was the Speaker of the Evening

At stated intervals throughout the Kiwanis year, the members play host to their wives and sweethearts. Last night at the Queen's Hotel such a function took place and it would not be exaggerating to say that the event was one of the best ever held by the Kiwanis Club in Belleville. A large supper turned out for the affair and after a brilliant programme, the assembled audience listened to an interesting address by Kiwanian Rev. "Bill" Johnson of Toronto on the "Pitfalls and Perils of Modern Civilization". A. Bernard Collins presided in the absence by the president George Code, who is confined to his home through injuries, while Dr. Walter Morgan acted as sergeant-at-arms and James Bankier and Russell Wotten as song leaders. Leo B. Rigby presided at the piano in his usual brilliant and accompanist for the several artists and the community singing.

The galaxy of talent provided by the entertainment committee of which Kiwanian Wotten was chairman. Every member of the committee worked unitringly to provide an evening of entertainment and the last strains of the dance died away, the music being supplied by Charlie Goyer and his Merrymakers, everyone expressed themselves as delighted with the arrangements and the provisions made for the social evening. The programme was given in its unique manner, that of remote control by radio, and for some time the audience was completely baffled as to where the music was coming from. James Bankier and Charles E. Hinton were the announcers and ever the correct time and the weather report was given, but no Amos 'n' Andy. Solos were given by Mrs. Fred Houston, Mrs. Glen McKinnon, Harold Howard, James Bankier. A duet by James Bankier and Ross Hunter, and a cornet solo by "Al" Vonnegut. Each performance was greatly appreciated and encored, but radio will not permit encores.

A presentation of a beautiful cut vase was made to every Kiwanian, Queens present and the members of the Club were supplied with paper hats, which made the banquet hall an attractive scene. The table, dressed with the splendid cuisine of "mine host," John Ryan. Mrs. P. C. MacLaurin, one of the few months and now member to the family circle, was presided over by George Girling with a beautiful luncheon cloth and napkins by the club, which presentation was suitably acknowledged by this gracious man. A presentation was also made to P. C. MacLaurin by Charlie Hazzard on behalf of the club coming into the room and the present was broken, much to the disgust of Charles as well as the fortunate recipient. A roll called and then the distribution of the door prizes, won by Mrs. Howard Bonisteel and Mrs. McCutcheon, Mrs. Lillian Mitel, "Bouncer" Holway, Mrs. Thomas Murray and Bernard Collins. Ernie Pahey announced the date for the ice carnival in the Belleville Arena and Kiwanian Rev. Johnson, the committee in charge promises a bigger and better carnival than last year.

Kiwanian McCutcheon introduced the speaker of the evening, while P. C. MacLaurin expressed Kiwanian appreciation of the inspiring address at the conclusion. Kiwanian "Bill" Johnson is known the length and breadth of the Kiwanis International and last night he spoke on the "Pillars and Perils of Modern Civilization". The speaker stated that civilization simply means character, and there are six pillars upon which civilization rests, the home, school, workshop, sport, politics and religion, the deepest and surest of these pillars is religion.

"The home is the most sacred and ancient institution in the world, and it is the greatest to be sanctified and quite so much as mother, father, son and daughter. The school is the next step in the pathway and we progress up that pathway to civilization.

"It is no disgrace to work," said the speaker, "and there is no philosophy in the world that equals the society of his prowess in some sport. Politics is the science of public administration and there should be religion, loyalty and sacrifice in the political life."

"While these are pillars of civilization there are also perils and the greatest peril to our home life is the divorce and the evils attending. I do not agree with the Pope in all things, but I did heartily agree with his encyclical just issued in every detail. The peril of the school is the prevailing drag of ignorance, while in sport there is the element of professionalism creeping in. The prevailing spirit of materialism is ruining our politics, but religion, that great leveller will make all things right."

MINISTER LAUDS CHILDREN'S AID WORK IN ONT.

Hon. W. G. Martin and His Gracious Wife Were Tendered Reception

Hon. W. G. Martin, "Minister of Public Welfare, and Mrs. Martin were guests of honor at a reception and tea held yesterday afternoon in the Children's Shelter under the auspices of the Children's Aid Society of the city. The guests, which there were a large number, were received by Mrs W. H. Nugent and Miss Aline Harris matron of the Shelter, and on their arrival made a tour of the building.

The party visited the pretty nursery over which two tiny occupants ruled, the bright sun room for the toddlers, the boys' and girls' dormitories, the play rooms for the older children. The visitors were greeted with smiles of delight by the little ones who chatted away in a friendly manner.

When the guests returned to the tea room, Mr. Charles Hynes, president of the Children's Aid Society, made an address of welcome to the distinguished guests. Mayor George A. Reid and James P. Hill, M.P.P., spoke a few words welcoming Hon. Mr. Martin and Mrs. Martin.

Work of C.A.S.

In reply, Mr. Martin spoke in glowing terms of the work of Children's Aid Societies and kindred agencies in their care of those who are spoken of as the neglected, dependent, and under-privileged. In the past period has been one of stress and strain, consequent on the great financial depressions has been the awakening and strengthening of the social consciousness of the people, which is not only of Canada but the whole empire. The heart and soul of the people is touched when men and women place all on the altar of service and sacrifice.

In the appointment of the Ross Commission on social welfare and the development of the work of the Department of Public Welfare to which the Hon. Mr. Martin is the head, it is felt that a study will have been done in the past and to decide the best policy for the future welfare agencies could co-operate and co-ordinate in order to outdistance previous achievements. The Department will really saying to the welfare and service agencies "you have done a great work in the past and undoubtedly that we want you to continue in the progressive of expansion knowing the Province government is backing your efforts to the limit.

"The Ross Commission has as one of its great tasks the work of child welfare, and with the closest and most intimate co-operation it is confident," said the speaker, "we hope that for the thousand children and their parents and families there will down a new day of happiness and well being."

Mrs. W. A. Ponton, president of the Children's Aid Society, thanked the guests with a charming vocal solo after which tea was served.

The tea table, which was centred with Spring flowers, was presided over by Mrs. George A. Reid and Mrs. C. W. Barlow. Tea was served by Miss Marjorie Scantlebury, Miss Marjorie Hynes and Miss Jean Bankier.

Those present during the afternoon were: Mrs. W. G. Martin, Mrs. Martin, Mayor and Mrs. G. A. Reid, Mr. Charles Hanna, president of the Children's Aid Society, Mrs. C. W. Scantlebury, Rev. F.C. BOWERS HEADS SULPHIDE CLUB

Fast Hockey Games are Played in Tweed Town League

Tweed, Jan. 27 By Mail—The regular meeting of the W.A. of St. James' Church was held in the Guild rooms on Thursday, January 15th.

Hymn 291 was sung and Rev. Mr. Wright conducted the opening devotional service.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and accepted, also the January report of Diocesan W.A. Board meeting was read.

A letter of appreciation and thanks for the bale sent to Mackay School was read. A snap shot of Jessie Fleck was enclosed.

The Dorcas work for the coming year was discussed and work will be planned for the coming meeting.

The second chapter of the Study Book was taken by Rev. Mr. Wright.

Owing to other interest the next meeting will be held on February 26 at 2.30 p.m.

Closing service was conducted by Mr. Wright and refreshments were served.

A very enjoyable evening was spent in the I.O.O.F. hall, Thomasburg on Thursday, January 22nd, when the lodge of Thomasburg Lodge had an "old-time barn yard hop dance." The ladies were dressed with sunbonnet and aprons, while the men were straw hats and overalls. A few men were fined a dime for violating the law, which they paid without further costs. Mr. and Mrs. Granby Burlison played the dance music. A beauteous lunch was enjoyed by all which brought to close a very pleasant evening.

The regular annual meeting of the Nichols Chemical Co's employees Association on Wednesday, January 14 at the recreation hall, brought to a close a successful year of the Sulphide chapter. The chairman of the meeting was Mr. W. J. Sutherland, secretary-treasurer, Mr. Cuthbertson, as follows:

President—F. C. Bowers

Vice Pres.—Wm. Credicott.

Sec.-Treas.—Jas. Corbett.

Councillors—C. Allen, A. J. Cuthbertson., F. Dwyer, O. H. Catton, J. Wallace Sr.

The chairmen's and President's addresses were followed by discussion of plans for 1931. Following the business meeting a social evening in the form of dancing, cards and lunch was rendered to the members and their families. The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion and music was supplied by radio, receiving being perfect.

The Y.P.S. meeting of Sulphide was held on Tuesday evening last. The topic "General Joffre of France" was given by Mrs. Jas. Corbet. The life story of this great war veteran proved very interesting. Keith Catton gave a Jack Wallace rendered a duet. Miss Rosamond Surgeyne gave a reading and Margaret Saunders sang the "Twilight Tales." The contest in charge of Mrs. M. Young was won by the Blue party.

Miss Myrtle Goulah of Niagara Falls is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Chas Goulah of Sulphide.

On Wednesday evening Jan. 21st, the High School hockey team defeated the Dominion Foundry team by a score of 5-1. The game was well played by both teams although the play was pretty rough at times.

The High School had the edge on the play throughout, but the Foundry are improving since the last game.

Line-up:—

High School—Goal McCracken, defence McCrea and Mingers, centre McGuire, wings, Adler and Mervyn. Alts. Catton, Rathbone and Terry.

Dominion Foundry—Goal P. Coulthurst, defence McConnachie and Wright, centre R. LeLonde, wings, J. Orr and Simmons, Alts. Orr, Long and LaEarge.

Next Wednesday evening the Trail Rangers defeated the Black Hawks by a score of 5-1. Both teams put up a good game and at times it seemed hard to tell which team was better. McOuiehon scored the goal for the Rangers. G. Simmons and Walter Leal doing the scoring for the Hawks.

Jack Ryan handled the game well and kept the play clean.

Line-up:

Black Hawks—Goal B. Wheeler, defence Herbert Leal and Harry Leal, centre, Gerald Simmons, wings Lorne Sinn and W. Leal. Alt. Hugh Sparrman.

Trail Rangers—Goal Jack Reeves, defence McCrea and Mingers, centre H. Prenat, wings E. Tummon and P. Tummon, Alts. Alexander, McCutchon and Woodcock.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Thomson of Fort William is visiting her sister Miss J. Dewey.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin LaPaim of Detroit, Mich., are visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hatts.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O'Keefe of St. Thomas have spent a few days in town this week.

Mr. Winston O. Gordon was promoted to Manager of Gordon Steel Works Ltd.

Messrs. Max Geraldi, A. Campbell, J. Marchen and F. Rashotte motored to Napanee on Sunday.

Radio Fans Corner

Well, and what did you think of it last night? All right, so-so, or fair, but we've heard better. Noise and fading were much in evidence and it was getting worse instead of better around the second instalment of Amos 'n' Andy.

According to the Globe radio editor Belville can take due credit for having the birthplace of that versatile musician, Rominelli, who is the reigning favourite in musical circles these days. Rominelli remained here until he reached the age of seven taking violin lessons and then left this first public appearance at this age. He's on 9c air at 11.30 to-night and can be heard over Chicago so tune in.

The Happy Bakers put on an smart show during the second half of their program last night did you hear it? The Miniature Minstrel Show and believe me it was good. Do you listen in to Jake and Lena in the morning time? We often do ourselves and one should really tune in on this program. 8 o'clock over the WEAF chain.

The Mountaineers at 5.45 and Uncle Abe and David at 6.45 and at 7.30 Gene Arnold's Sketches and Gypsy Nat Shilkret will be heard in a special program. Bobby Jones will tell us just how and why he plays golf with explanation is possible and the time is 8 o'clock.

The Varieties at 8.15 with Welcome Lewis (and Sammy Herman plus many more real artists and Ben Bernie at 9.30 on to-night and everybody is sure of having a good time. The Old Counsellor at 9 and Olive Palmer and the rest at 9.30. To-night Grantland Rice is interviewing Bob Davis newspaper columnist and the time is 9.30. Vincent Lopez at 11, Jack Albin at 11.30 and Florence Richardson at midnight put the finishing touches on a very good list of programs.

The Smith Brothers at 7.45 from WJZ to-night the Foamers at 8 and the Pleasure hour at 9.30 at 9 o'clock until 9.45 minutes is for Roscoe Heidt and the boys, he's on the air.

A "while lie" is like a little nail in a tyre: it is sure in time to work into the inner tube and cause a blow-out.

MOTORCAR BLOWN FROM THE ROAD

ST. JOHN'S, NFLD. — Comparatively sheltered from high winds, residents of St. John's usually have no reason to fear this element. But several motorists who were on Duckworth avenue during a recent gale can testify that as far as they were concerned it was an ill wind that blew no good. Sweeping down upon the avenue, situated at a higher level than the motorists, open and unprotected by trees or buildings, the wind seized a motor car and indulged in a frolic. The machine was an old model with a high body that lent itself admirably to the pleasure of the gale. Finally the car was lifted and blown off the road, but the occupants escaped with increased respect for the gale.

Usually when a storm raged along the coast, the full force is not felt in this city. 2Nfl Island, looming out of Conception Bay and exposed on all sides, is a particularly windswept region.

DOG TEAMS WILL RACE AT OTTAWA

Ottawa, Jan. M.—Including such noted figures as Emile St. Goddard of the Pas, Manitoba, winner of the Chateau Laurier 2,400 cup in 1926, Leonard Heppala, hero of the Nome serum dash, Mrs. E. P. Ridley, noted woman driver, and Earl Brydon of the Pas, at least ten teams of racing dogs will grip their claws into the smooth-packed plaza in front of the Chateau Laurier when the starting gun is fired in the 1931 100-mile dog derby in Ottawa. The century race is one of many features of Ottawa winter carnival which takes place this year from February 2 to 7, and last year's effort, the first attempt in the capital, has been made at holding such an event, went over so successfully that Ottawa people are eagerly awaiting the next. For the first time this year the Ottawa people will have opportunity to choose some of their own fleet-foots in action, for this year's entries will, it is anticipated, bring two or three local teams which have been quietly training for some time. Whether or not these dogs can withstand the grueling pace which will be set by Heppala and other experienced mushers remains to be seen, but at least the young Lochinvar from the west will find plenty of opposition awaiting him. Too rain will again be run over three days, the first commencing at 38 mile route each day and each of the teams will be required to pass a stiff veterinary test to determine their fitness for the gruelling route before the drivers are allowed to start.

SPECIAL RADIO PROGRAM PLANNED

Montreal, Jan. 28.—How many tenors have sighed to real them deep in the quiet grave or yearned to return to their mountains as they languished behind the prison bars awaiting clinical death How many bands of gipsies have clanged on their anvils to the stirring "Anvil Chorus"

Numberless, year in and year out, but "Il Trovatore" goes on for ever. There is something about its romance and about its melodies that makes it young, and radio listeners in all parts of Canada will be delighted to hear an arrangement of the opera on Thursday evening, when it is broadcast over CNRM chain. The principal parts will be taken by Jean Heasen, soprano; Mme. De Munch, Mezzo; Jack Van Der Streeten, Tenor, Lionel Daunais, Baritone, and Friday Campbell, Bass. The orchestra will be conducted by Henri Miro and there will be a chorus.

PERILOUS TRIP IN FRAIL CANOE

Sydney, N. S., Jan. 24—Jumping forty-five feet from a Paris bridge over the Seine, with a canoe on his back, was the means by which Lieutenant G. H. G. Smyth, R.N.A.S., wartime flyers earned money enabling him to continue his famous canoe trip from Sydney to Rome. Returning here for a brief visit ale and a short rest from the day he paddled out of this port, he recalled how he made the jump that has brought acclaim and recorded the event. Permission for the stunt was at first refused by the Prefect of Police in Paris, but he consented when "assured" that due to precipitous cliffs in Cape Breton the inhabitants there habitually launch their craft by hoisting them to their shoulders and leaping down to the water.

High lights of the voyage included a 52-hour period of waiting at sea for surf to subside at Lubec, Maine, a visit to Monte Carlo as the personal guest of the Prince of Monaco, and a personal interview with Premier Mussolini, who had a special medal struck to commemorate Smyth's arrival at Rome and declared a special holiday during which the Mayor of Rome, with the Royal Guards' band, accompanied the Canadian on his last lap up the Tiber. There in excursion craft decorated with England and Italian flags reading: "Sydney, Canada, to Rome."

On one occasion the canoeist lost everything but his craft in a fruitless effort of 17 hours to cross the English Channel. Finally he took refuge on a lightship.

After his canoe voyage Smyth engaged in prospecting in the Red Lake district near Stone Lookout. Two months ago he went to Bermuda to work on the construction of a new electric railway.

Although an egotist is all "I's," he cannot see himself as others see him.

CLAIM RACKET TO BE PROBED

Boston, Mass., Jan. 24—The fake claim racket, which has increased greatly since the compulsory automobile insurance law was enacted, received its first setback when Boston Elevated Railway Association, acting in response to a public statement by Governor Allen, filed suits against fifteen claim agents for alleged blackmail and conspiracy. At the same time public officials met representatives of leading insurance companies in an effort to weed out of the business those unfit professions members who handle fake accident claims.

Action of the insurance companies and state officials in meeting to discuss methods of fighting the false claim racket was regarded as the culmination that more disbarment proceedings will be instituted as soon as the necessary preliminaries can be completed.

Some of the insurance companies, it was learned, have been investigating their own investigations into the actions of certain lawyers and doctors representing claimants and the data thus accumulated will be used in aiding the State or unscrupulous professional men who depend upon false claims for a living.

Records obtained show that one lawyer, working with a certain doctor, handled as a special medical attorney in year against one insurance company. Other lawyers have had scores of similar cases.

After compiling records for two years, company officials found that lawyers who take cases solicited outside of court, and they are usually forgotten if the companies insist upon having them tried.

London, Jan. 24—Granville Owen Sampson, one time page boy in White's Club, St. James' Street, London, at 16, junior, superintendents writer at the Conservative Club's quarters in St. James' Street, has been bequeathed $2,000,000 by the late Charles Hall.

E. C. Hartopp, who was first secretary of the British Legation in Persia, more than 16 years ago the latter befriended the page boy at White's Club. Later Sampson served as Sir Charles' valet and secretary, going to Bucharest, Athens and Cairo, at the last-named place nursing the knight back to health from a severe illness, "a service I can never repay," Sir Charles stated in his will.

BROODING OF HOLY SPIRIT WAS THEME

Rev. H. L. Turner Opens Series of Revival Meetings Here

Speaking in the Alliance Tabernacle last night, opening a series of special meetings, the Rev. H. L. Turner, of Saskatchewan, spoke of the happy associations he had in Belleville some six or seven years ago.

Rev. Turner was born in Campbellford, was a grandson of the late Rev. Arthur Browning who some years ago was a Methodist minister. Mr. Turner is now General Field Evangelist of the Christian and Missionary Alliance and this week is giving a series of messages on "The Holy Spirit".

Last evening's message was on "The Holy Spirit". The subject of the Holy Spirit was most important.

"No man or woman can enter the Kingdom of God, apart from the brooding of the Holy Spirit," he said. Christ came from the Glory and shed His Blood for man's sins and went back to the Glory and sent the Holy Spirit, enabling man to worship God in the Spirit, which is the only way acceptable with God. The needed today is a mighty brooding of the Spirit to counteract apostacy and the powers of darkness.

Reference from God's Word of the Holy Spirit's brooding over body, mind and Spirit was made.

In the case of Samson, his strength was the result of the brooding spirit given him of God.

In Exodus 31:3, was an illustration of the brooding Spirit's effect on man's mind filling with wisdom and understanding and giving unusual mental ability that is not found in schools. The same God is anxious to brood over, fill and supply Spiritual Power and Wisdom today.

Christian Workers, no matter in what capacity, Sunday School teachers, sick visitors, the brooding of the Spirit enables to do His work in the Power of the Spirit.

Ezekiel by the brooding of the Spirit was enabled to see the Glory of the God of Israel.

One of the secrets of the Holy Ghost is, that, the law of the Spirit superseded the law of sin and victories are won.

Happy is the man who knows the law of the Spirit.

The fact of the brooding Spirit is prophetic in the case of Israel and is the hope of Israel.

The speaker referred to the Spirit of God brooding upon the face of the water in Gen. 1:2 and resulting in order being brought out of confusion. Referring also to the Spirit showing humanity its lost condition also enabling Christians to see their unworthiness apart from Christ and to produce Christian graces.

"Christian as you Pray, He broods. Never cease to pray for unsaved friends and relatives, but do not try to do God's work in the energy of the flesh," said the speaker. "Many only hinder God's work by being over-abnormal. God's two agencies to do His Work, the Word of God and the Spirit of God. Let the Word be backed by the Spirit and the Spirit by the Word. As the Church of God yields to the brooding Spirit so Revival comes."

World's Most Popular Man Unassuming Regular Fellow

Being funny is Will Rogers' business. His pastimes are aviation, polo and golf, but he never plays golf in public, only on his private course that Fred Stone recently laid out on Rogers' vast estate near Beverly Hills, California.

Interesting facts concerning this wit and philosopher of international fame are:

He never smokes.

He has few intimates, moving in a small circle of friends.

He is married and has a family made up of his charming wife, Mary, his daughter and his two sons, Will Jr. and Jimmy.

He was 51 years old on November 4th last.

He chews gum almost constantly.

His does not own a dress suit and refuses to wear one.

He wears the same costume in his pictures that he wears at home and around town.

Refuses to have a telephone in his home.

Has the brakes of his automobile tested every night.

Wears a slouch hat of ancient vintage and a well worn chamois jacket.

His trousers generally need pressing and his shoes look as if they had never been shined.

He writes for 600 or more newspapers and his copy has never been late.

He writes it as soon as he has finished lunch and takes it to the telegraph office himself.

He never takes to train, but goes by airplane, if his destination is more than 100 miles away.

Has written seven books.

He was doing his rope act in a street carnival when he was discovered by Harry Weber, a theatrical agent, who put him in vaudeville.

He carries close to $1,000,000 insurance on his life.

He does not drink and he dislikes social life.

Rogers will be seen and heard in "Lightnin'," Fox Movietone comedy drama, adapted from John Goldeen's great stage success, at the Belle Theatre, Thursday and Friday, matinee daily. He portrays the role of "Lightnin' Bill Jones," the whimsical old tippler, said to be the best characterization he has ever given. He has a new leading woman in this all talking production, She is Louise Dresser, popular screen actress with a background of several years experience on the stage. She portrays the role of Rogers' wife and Helen Cohan, youngest daughter of George M. Cohan, enacts the role of their daughter. Other notables in the cast are Joel McCrea, Sharon Lynn, J. M. Kerrigan, Frank Campeau, Marion Robards, Luke Cosgrave, Ruth Warren, Rex Bell, Walter Percival, Goodee Montgomery, Charlotte Walker and Thomas Jefferson.

The picture was directed by Henry King who made "Hell Harbor," "Stella Dallas," "Tolable David," "The Winning of Barbara Worth" and other outstanding successes of the screen.

LATEST ADDITIONS TO COUNCIL

When County Council convened for their first sitting of the year in the Court Hall, yesterday afternoon, six new members were introduced, it being their first appearance at the County Board. The new members are, Henry Larkin, Deputy Reeve of Tyendinaga, Frank Kelusky, Reeve of Dungannon, Geo. Twa, Reeve of Montesgie and Herschel, Dalton Clarke, Deputy Reeve of Hungerford, Geo Neal, Reeve of Marmora and Lake and Edgar Morrow, Deputy Reeve of Sidney. The new members were welcomed by the incoming Warden and hoped they would form many new friendships and be a credit to the municipalities they represented. Warden Thompson also hoped that the same co-operation would be given by the members that was tendered by those they replaced.

HENRY LARKIN

Henry Larkin was born on the 8th Concession of Tyendinaga and has resided continuously in Hastings County. He has been a successful farmer and always took a keen interest in municipal affairs. He has served in the Municipal Council for the past five years and is conversant with the needs of his municipality and the County at large. Mr. Larkin married early in life and six children in his home has blessed the union. He is a member of the Roman Catholic Church at Shannonville and in politics is a staunch Liberal.

FRANK KELUSKY

Frank Kelusky was born in the northern part of Hastings County and has always been interested in Municipal affairs. For the past six years he has served as a Councillor in Dungannon Township and at the solicitation of many friends contested Ashley Reversship, defeating Fred Adams. Mr. Kelusky conducts a farm a short distance from Bannockburn, is married and has two children. He is a member of the United Church and a Liberal in politics.

GEORGE TWA

George Twa is a young man entering a larger field of municipal service and comes well recommended from the north. He was born in Hastings County but for some time before moving into Montesgie and Herschel resided in Bangor, Wickiow and McClure. Mr. Twa is a blacksmith and resides at Maynooth. He is married, and has two children, both at home. He is also a member of the United Church, fraternally being a member of the Masonic Order and also the Orange. The new Reeve of Montesgie and Herschel served one year in the Township Council, which he represents and two years in Bangor, Wicklow and McClure. His politics are Conservative.

LEE NEAL

Lee, Neal, a member of Marmora and Lake Township Council for the past ten years, is another new member of the County Council. Mr. Neal was born in the Township of Rawdon but has resided in his adopted Township for many years, successfully carrying on farming operations. He has a keen insight into municipal affairs and will bring executive ability to the discharge of service. He is married and has a family of five boys and three girls all at home. Mr. Neal is a member of the Anglican Church and fraternally is a member of Marmora Masonic Lodge. In politics he is a staunch Conservative.

EDGAR MORROW

Another rising young man comes to the County Council in Edgar Morrow, Deputy Reeve of Sidney. He was honored by an acclamation this year by the electors of his Township. Mr. Morrow is a resident on the 8th Concession of Sidney and conducts a large farm. He is married and has two children, both at home. The new member has served for five years and is well versed in the needs for any expenditure that may be of benefit to his Township and he will no doubt give his talents to the larger service of County Council work. Mr. Morrow is a member of the Anglican Church and in politics a Conservative. The new Deputy Reeve of Sidney is active in the Orange Order being a past County Master and also a member of the Black Knights.

DALTON CLARKE

Probably the youngest man to grace the County Council Board is Dalton Clarke, elected Deputy Reeve of Hungerford in Monday's election. Mr. Clarke is a native of Hungerford, is carrying on an extensive manufacturing plant with his father, six miles south of Tweed. The new Deputy Reeve is married and a member of the United Church and fraternally is a member of Tweed Masonic Lodge. In politics he is a Liberal.

WARDEN FAVOURS ECONOMY PROGRAM FOR THIS COUNTY

Opening Session of Council Was Held at Shire Hall Yesterday Afternoon

Charles W. Thompson, Reeve of Madoc Township, became Warden of Hastings County yesterday afternoon at the inaugural meeting of the County Council held in Shire Hall. The political parties were in caucus before the session, and as it was the Conservative nobiinee's turn for the highest honor in the gift of the County, no one was proposed from the Liberal ranks. After the council convened, County Clerk W. H. Nugent called for nominations for Warden and it was moved by R. M. Mitchell reeve of Thurlow and seconded by W. N. Gilroy, reeve of Wallbridge, "that Charles Thompson be the Warden for the ensuing year." As there were no other nominations, the clerk declared Mr. Thompson duly elected, and asked him to leave his seat in the council and come to the dais. While the rise and chain of office were being placed on the new elected warden by the county clerk, the members greeted him with "for he's a jolly good fellow."

Warden Thompson thanked the members most sincerely for the high honor which had been accorded him, and stated that he realized the responsibility he had undertaken, and the standard set by the preceding holders of the office, which must be sustained. He asked for the co-operation of every member of the council in the year's work. "The year past has been unusually trying," said Warden Thompson, "but it has had its bright as well as the dark spots. There was a uniformity of good crops in the county this year but the price was low and there was little demand. As a county, we are on safe ground as the debenture debt is low, and I think the council should practice economy in all its doings during the coming year. There are some expenditures over which we have no control," continued the Warden, "but those expenditures over which we have control, should be kept at the lowest possible figure." Again thanking the members for their trust in him, he signed the Warden's declaration and the 1931 session of the County Council was duly opened.

All the members of the council were in their respective chairs, the county council convened excepting Thomas Montgomery of Stirling and R. B. Wright of Deloro. Mrs. Montgomery is seriously ill and the Reeve of Stirling is in quarantine. William Rodgers moved that a letter be sent to Mr. Montgomery expressing the sympathy of the council, and that the committee on by-laws, Constable Pilchett of Tweed, prepare the letter for signing and means. A letter was received from E. J. Butler K.C., stating that if more satisfactory arrangements were not made with Henry Copeland, who was injured on County property, he would be forced to enter a suit for against the county for unstated damages. At the present time Mr. Copeland is receiving from the Workmen Compensation Board $13.50 per month while the letter from Mr. Butler states he is paying $15.00 per month house rent. The council were of the opinion that the settlement of the Compensation Board was final, but the letter was referred to Ways and Means Committee for further and fuller discussion.

Before the council closed for the afternoon session, Warden Thompson appointed C. W. Malley of Deseronto, Walter Whytock of Madoc and W. N. Gilroy of Coe Hill as a nominating committee for the various committees of the council, the committee to report as early as possible.

Children suffering from worms soon show the symptoms, and any mother can detect the presence of these parasites by the writhings and fretting of the child. Until expelled and the system cleared of them, the child cannot regain its health. Clara Bow, of the golden hair and many lovers is with us again, doing a strenuous part in "Her Wedding Night" at the Belle Theatre. This is an adaptation of the famous stage farce, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" and is a laugh creator from start to finish with Clara getting her own opinion from her supporting staff. "Skeets" Gallagher is funnier than ever, and Charles Ruggles with his sleep specialty is a wow. Starting the week with a big laugh maker Manager George Ferhan has quite a bill of fare for the remainder of the week, rich with variety, and including Will Rogers in the screen version of Frank Bacon's great stage success, "Lightnin'." Another spectacular offering for this week is "Just Imagine" which presents a picture of life on the celestial sphere in 1980 which is truly startling, rapid transit being the big feature of it is today only limited to automobiles doing seventy miles an hour everybody has their own aeroplane capable of doing a few hundred miles an hour in the air lanes which are all policed by aluminated traffic cops in their own special stop and go airhouses. News reels and short comedies also pep up the programs prepared for Belle patrons and Manager Perhan says the programs will be mostly laughs which are wonderful tonics for this time of the year.

INTEREST IN CANADIAN YOUTH SHOULD BE PARAMOUNT

less some organization acts as father to them."

ONTARIO AND CANADA LEAD

Canada is leading the world in what can be done to help those known as physically handicapped, mentally retarded, and those who through some condition at home have not felt the benefit of discipline. Speaking of those confined to institutions for delinquency Mr. Martin said that the danger of bitterness of youths against society because they think they have been unjustly treated impels careful study to prevent the ruin of lives, which can be made a blessing to humanity.

Mr. Martin touched on various branches of work in the department showing how the principle of redemption of lives to usefulness in spite of handicaps of delinquency, of physical and mental handicaps works. The minister opened up a vista of increasing interest in the lives of others and was cheered as he remarked that money spent freely for education, for highways and for improvements and said that no one would object to money spent on the redemption of the young lives of usefulness. "Are we not prepared to spend money to give them a chance in life?" he asked.

ROMANCE OF SOCIAL LAWS

The story of the romance of social legislation with the results which are being achieved because the entire province undertakes to act as friend of those under handicap with the aid and co-operation of every portion of the province which is becoming socially conscious of its duty did not fail on deaf ears. The minister was cheered to the echo as he dealt with the department's activities and its hopes for the future.

Mayor Reid occupied the chair and President E. V. Iliey of the Chamber of Commerce the vice chair. At the head table were Mrs. Reid, Hon. Mr. Martin and Mrs. Martin and members of the executive and their wives. Mr. J. Hill, M.P.P. and Mrs. Hill, County Clerk W. H. Nugent, Mrs. Nugent and others.

WARDEN THOMPSON

The occasion was the first public appearance of Warden Thompson who was elected chief magistrate of Hastings County on the afternoon of Tuesday.

MAYOR'S GREETING

Mayor Reid extended cordial greetings on behalf of the city council and the chamber of commerce to the county council and the guests of the evening including the Hon. W. C. Martin and Mrs. Martin. "I want to congratulate the members of the county council on their election to the offices and I want to congratulate Mr. Thompson, your new warden," remarked the mayor adding that he knew that Hastings would be well governed by the able body of legislators in session at Shire Hall. The mayor went on to state that the city had made progress during the past year and that the improvements included two new bridges, the lighting of the city and the purification of the water supply which is to be accomplished in two months' time when the filter will be in operation.

NO REDS ALLOWED

The mayor took occasion to remark on the attitude of the police of Toronto in the efforts to control speaking in public in that city in which Communists were concerned and praised police action in preventing the utterance of communistic doctrines. "I want to congratulate them and the police commission of Toronto and I want to congratulate our sister province of Quebec which first took steps to prevent such utterances. I want to say that in case anyone should want to give expression to such views in Belleville, in the name of free speech, we have a Reid to take care of him." (Laughter.)

OPPORTUNITY FOR YOUNG

Mayor Reid brought a message to the boys and girls of Belleville as he noted that he had a few days ago paid a visit to the mayor of Windsor who was the son of a family which had come to Canada twenty years ago and whose members had already made their way into the foremost rank of Canadian life. "What is to hinder our boys and girls who speak the English tongue from going to any height? You do not have to go out of Belleville and Hastings County to rise to any height. I would like to see every young man and woman try to make something of themselves not only for their own sakes but for the good of Canada," the mayor said.

NEW GOVERNMENTAL INTEREST

Rev. Charles W. Bishop of Alberti College introduced Hon. Mr. Martin, the speaker guest, noting how in modern days there had been a remarkable development of a section of government devoted to social ameliorism. Government has taken on functions, particularly in the case of the provincial governments, which people have been slow to be aware of and to appreciate, he said. That a government should govern has been taken for granted, but there has been developed gradually within the range of government the study of questions relating to classes of people not favored with all the usual blessings. This function has been increasing rapidly. Under the new portfolio of Public Welfare, all these functions have to do with the highest and finest forms of governmental control. Dr. Bishop referred to the Mothers' Allowance Act and he expressed the belief that the work of Hon. Mr. Martin, himself a former minister of the Gospel and now a minister of the Crown would leave an indelible impression upon the life of this province.

DEPRESSION A PASSING PHRASE

Hon. Mr. Martin in opening his address, paid his earnest tributes to Dr. Bishop, who is in charge of one of Ontario's leading educational institutions. "There is no reason for us to be down-hearted under the fact that we have been passing through somewhat of a depression. In these days of economic stress and strain we see no finer tonic than for us to realize that ours is a great and glorious heritage to cherish. Only sixty odd years ago this land was christened the Dominion, and it was only a few decades ago that our forbears hewed themselves a home where the wilderness was lustily bushed to make room for a veritable rose garden.

"What Canada is now suffering, is not the wrath agonies but the birth of a new and greater era," said the Minister. He made reference to the fine characters which adorn the new Chamber of Commerce building in Toronto, personifying service and foresight, enterprise and courage. "These were the four qualities which brought the dream of our forefathers out of the sky and planted it firmly on this earth. Sir Esme Howard has said that the next fifty years belong to Canada and we must all catch that same spirit. It will not be long until we shall have emerged from the valley of the shadow into sunshine. We are talking the disintegration of the British Empire. we must be true to the high ideals of brotherliness and benevolence which are the basis of that same Empire of ours."

ROSS COMMISSION

Hon. Mr. Martin went on to deal with the work of the Ross Commission, which he said was the culmination of the splendid achievements carried on by the Government of Ontario. "The Commission investigated proposed curriculums in the schools for the blind, the deaf and dumb and the mentally-handicapped. There emerges a keen intellect from the training of these boys and girls, personal attention must be given to them and they must not be left behind in the onward march of education." He made reference to Dr. Sinclair who was the first Inspector of the Auxiliary schools and a leader in the movement for special training for the mentally retardent in Ontario. "His actions were endorsed at Geneva and the delegates admitted that there is nothing to compare with the Canadian system. Now ninety-five per cent of the graduates of the schools for the delinquents are successful in life. They are now equipped to earn a substantial salary, the same as graduates of Collegiates and other preparatory schools. Women's Institutes, service clubs and Churches are contributing support to achieve greater things in the program, such as we had numerically dreamed of a few years ago. Part of the deficient youth of Canada."

"The Ross Commission advocated a Department of Public Welfare for Ontario with a Minister in charge. The Mother's Allowance system was inaugurated, and now $300,000 is distributed monthly as a result of the institution of this branch. The mothers now have the opportunity of training their children on the same basis as those in more fortunate circumstances."

OLD AGE PENSIONS

He dealt with the Old Age Pension which he said is not a means of charity but just a reward for those pioneers who have given their services in the building up of Canada. "$30,000 is distributed daily by means of these two benevolences. There has been a quickening of the social consciousness in the last few years in this province," he observed.

Explaining the Soldiers' Aid Commission, the chief speaker of the dinner declared that it was the fundamental duty of this Province to look and educate those children whose fathers were killed in service. "There are upwards of over six hundred wards scattered throughout the length and breadth of this Province and we keep in touch with them all. In the matter of caring for the aged, the mothers and widows, all dependents of soldiers we have returned, they are now being given protection and assistance. "The greatest glory of Canada is, that within her borders is being built a temple of humanity, the cornerstone of which is hewed of happiness and freedom. We are mightily proud of our highways but it is a greater tribute to any legislature for them to build monuments of opportunity for the little children."

"In the matter of the Children's Aid Canada is setting the pace for the rest of the world. Under the Children's Protection Act six hundred youngsters are taken into adoption each year and under the Unmarried Parents Act two thousand children born ever year are taken care of."

CHRISTIAN INFLUENCE

He spoke of the splendid daily acts in Juvenile Courts of the country where youths appear. "They are looked on under the wing of the Children's Aid and turned into homes where they are given opportunities for advancement with a Christian influence."

Industrial Schools constitute one of the greatest problems, according to the Minister, who stated that a thorough survey is under way on this regard. "There must be schools of adjustment and opportunity where the tendencies of lustice given way to the strong arm of unrighteousness. Boys too often committed for some petty delinquency and sometimes the spirit of bitterness grows in the youthful heart when he sees hardened offenders getting off with easier punishment. The question of environment is one that deserves serious consideration and the standards of instructors must be of the highest. General programs of artisan trades are selected and practically every boy finds a congenial vocation and when he leaves, he goes out with a profitable and useful calling."

Advocation of indeterminate sentence as a means of breaking down criminality and the reduction of penitentiary sentences to the minimum was favored by Mr. Martin. "They must be satisfactorily re-established in society and no one should entrench the building of a better citizenship," he said.

BOWMANVILLE SCHOOL

"We spend millions upon agriculture, education, highways, etc., and we must be prepared to give these boys a better start in life. Incorrigibles need proper guidance and the Boys' School at Bowmanville is functioning in that respect and ranks as one of the four great schools for optimism on the North American Continent. It is no longer an experiment, it has proved an unparalleled success and almost every boy of those leaving the place are a success in business. Boys from nine to sixteen years of age are placed upon their honour, they learn to practice the golden rule of "A square deal," they are given spending money and attend Church without escort. They are trained in agriculture and many go to the farm while those of city birth go back to their urban homes. What are we going to do then?" he queried.

The Minister of Public Welfare stated that a home has been established in Toronto where the boys are taken until they procure jobs and get in the proper groove.

A similar school for girls is planned where they are taken at the critical period of life and given guidance and assistance. In the matter of crippled children's work he astounded his listeners when he pointed out that there are eight thousand in Ontario who are doomed to permanent disability unless something is done.

In conclusion he said that responses must be made to the suggestion of the Ross Commission for a separate department for crippled children. He said that a movement is on foot to establish a school similar to that at Sussex, England, where the children are taught work for which they are suited. "Britain is not relinquishing her duty to these handicapped children."

LIABILITIES

C. V. Iliey as deputy toast master voiced his gratitude on election to the presidency of the Chamber of Commerce and the desire of the Chamber to do its utmost to work with city and county councils. He assured the county representatives there was no lack of interest, but rather there was a fine sense of co-operation.

"At this time of year we might take stock especially in time of depression," said Mr. Iliey. While there were many fine assets in a fine physical stock and fertile soil, it must not be forgotten that there are liabilities, he hoped there would be indifference to opportunity to co-operate.

PRESENTATION

At this juncture Mr. Chas. T. Dolan presented Warden Chas. W. Thompson his gift of a fountain pen. This has been Mr. Dolan's usual gift to the new warden for seven or eight years. Warden Thompson thanked Mr. Dolan.

ALD. WOODLEY'S TRIBUTE

The last toast "The County of Hastings and the County Council," was proposed by Alderman W. A. Woodley dean of the city council. The proposer congratulated the warden on his election and the council membership on their return to office. Hastings he called the best county in Ontario in agriculture, in mineral wealth and in human stock. "You are I may say, Warden over a contented people and a profitable people."

"Switzerland" he called North Hastings, speaking of scenery and "Muskoka," speaking of its health giving qualities.

Hastings presented Canada with a premier, a senator, legislators, high court justices, a chief justice, financians, authors medical men of note as Dr. Bertram Collip, world known financiers like John McHugh of the Chase National Bank of New York. Hastings gave woman suffrage to Ontario through the late J. W. Johnson.

WARDEN CHEERED

Greeted with musical honours, Warden Thompson said he never believed he was "as much tongued as he was on this tonight." Laughingly he said, "Many things had happened lately. Whatever happens in city and county goes. I eagle tonight to hear, and I got an earful."

He never saw so much unanimity on any question as in accepting the invitation to attend tonight. We have been treated as princes. I can remember when these affairs started." Mr. Thompson recalled the success of the first together banquets and praised the step that gave Belleville a Chamber of Commerce whereby a steady growth was begun. For the benefit of Hon. Mr. Martin he told of the extent of Hastings. The agriculture of Hastings was very important. The Deloro Reduction Works, the Madoc talc mines, the Canada Cement plant and the air-nut boreme divided by base interests.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

On the musical program were the Belleville Brass Quartette, playing two numbers. Mr. M. P. Duff, who sang a solo, Miss Leona Riggs who sang "Only a Rose," Mr. Jack Green, who played a cornet solo and Mr. J. Arnold Thomson who contributed several numbers and led in the community singing. Mrs. Duff and Miss Riggs acted as accompanists of the evening.

Mr. John Elliott in moving a vote of thanks to the talent, paid tribute to Warden Thompson who had the skill to succeed a very successful line of wardens. A grateful reference was made to the guest speaker of the evening, Hon. Mr. Martin, on his masterly address. "I wish to pay a tribute to our late Premier, Mr. Ferguson on his wisdom in his cabinet selection. I am sure every one here tonight will say Mr. Ferguson never made a better selection than in the case of Mr. Martin."

"God Save to King" and "Auld Lang Syne" were sung as the gathering broke up.

Chest COLDS

—yield to this double-action salve

When colds reach the bronchial tubes it is important to start Vicks double-action treatment at once.

Vicks begins its twofold relief the moment it is rubbed on the throat and chest:

(1) Like a poultice or plaster, it acts through the skin, thus relieving tightness and soreness.

(2) Its healing ingredients are released as vapors by the body heat, and breathed in direct to the inflamed parts.

This method of treating colds originated with Vicks. Today, the whole trend of modern medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

WAR DEBTS

The debt problem, the aftermath of the war, continues to loom large on the horizon with suggestions that wiping out the debt would open the way to worldwide recovery from the present era of unsettlement. Mr. Frederick C. Goodenough, chairman of Barclay's Bank has declared that Great Britain cancelled two billion five hundred and fifty million pounds owing her in war debts. Challenged to prove this, he explained that Germany, Russia and the allies, according to the official estimate made by the British government, in 1922, owed Britain £5,400,000,000 of which the Mother Country owed the United States £850,000,000, the difference between the two sums being exactly the figure that Mr. Goodenough had quoted, which the Mother Country was prepared to sacrifice as her contribution, over and above all the other heavy contributions in money and life, to the great cause. "In spite of the crushing burdens under which the British people are labouring under which the British people are labouring under which the British people are labouring

WISE TO CURB YOUR "DON'TS"

BY CONSTANCE CAMERON

Every once in a while one is happily surprised by the evident thought a father has given to the problem of making home a happy place for his children.

Lately I was privileged to hear a father talking about his youngest child, a 2-year-old daughter. The man says little, is not demonstrative, but it is evident that he doesn't just take his children for granted. He thinks about them.

The mother said with a sigh: "We've had the hall done over, but it won't look nice very long. Toody (the baby) drags her little fingers along the wallpaper every time she goes upstairs."

"Well, mind the wallpaper," said the father quietly. "It will probably show finger marks for a good many years yet. And after that, we can fix it all up again. I'd rather have it pitch-black than to say 'Don't,' every time the youngsta lie upstairs."

The mother, being intelligent, agreed of course. But the man continued, after a thoughtful pause:

"Do you know, I don't blame a child for wanting to stay outdoors, or even visiting neighbors' houses when he runs home. Don't every home he comes into his own home? A home full of 'don'ts' at every turn, isn't much of a home after all. And I want my children to WANT to be at home.

That is something worth thinking about for "Don't" seems to be such a popular word whenever there are children around.

There is always a "Do" which can be used instead. It is just as easy to say: "Put down the vase and come and make a bridge with your blocks," as to shout: "DON'T touch that vase!"

A little child's whole life for a few years is bound up in seeing and touching and smelling and handling anything or everything he meets.

We can't let him juggle a precious jade elephant or a Majolica candy jar to be sure, but, instead of blocking his investigation with that unfeeling word "DON'T," we can always suggest another and more interesting activity.

That father was so right in feeling that a home where children stumble over "don'ts" at every step is going to be a home they will postpone coming into as long as possible.

Let's omit the "don'ts" and substitute a few "do's" for a while. So many of our "don'ts" are wholly unnecessary anyhow. Get the child's viewpoint, his or her interest in new things, and you will understand those acts which you often feel are undertaken with the sole idea of annoying you.

INDIGESTION NEARLY DROVE HIM WILD

until Tanlac came to his rescue

What a train of misery follows constant indigestion. The poor, weak stomach cannot digest food properly. Gas causes cramps and bloating; the pressure of gas distends the walls of the stomach and presses against the heart causing fluttering and excessive nervousness. Because food is not digested, the body is not nourished and there is a steady loss in weight and strength.

As Mr. Henry Sholer, 173 Edinburgh St., Peterboro, Ont., writes, "Often I was so weak and miserable that I had to stop work before quitting time. But good old TANLAC came to my rescue when heartburn, palpitation, headaches and nervousness almost set me wild. TANLAC seemed to build me up all over again and now I have not a complaint in the world. I would not swap TANLAC for all other medicines put together."

You'll agree with Mr. Sholer and 100,000 others who have endorsed TANLAC after giving it a trial. Get a bottle at your druggist's today. More than 30 million bottles sold.

SQUASH PIE

Two and one-half cups cooked, mashed squash, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 level tablespoons cornstarch, 3 tablespoons molasses, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-8 teaspoon ginger, 1-2 cup sugar, 2 beaten eggs, 2 3-4 cups milk. Mix in order given, pour into unbaked pie shells and bake in moderate hot oven till nicely browned and firm. Around an hour. Depends on heat. Eat cold. Really very good and easily made.

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

Dear Readers!

The short sleeved fashion is to be a more or less universal one for the coming season. It has its influence on all costumes but is particularly interesting as it concerns the dresses of new type woolens or worsteds.

Since the mode of the moment is very much concerned with the dress accompanied by jacket or coat, the short sleeved frock qualifies in many cases for spring, town and afternoon wear and is cren constantly in spring collections developed in light tweeds, in smooth finish worsteds, in jerseys and in vividly plain and novelty crepe weaves, as well as the patterned sports fabrics.

The worsted frock is worthy of mention this season. It is one of the spring styles which should tempt the customer satisfied with the diet of plain flat crepe because it has distinctive novelty and for the sheer beauty and interest of the fabrics as well. As presented, it has the fine appeal of tailored detail, a variety of silhouette, ranging from the fitted to the straight sports and is subject to clever contrast effects with jackets, scarfs and other accessories. It is interesting to see the silk jacket, sometimes of stiff silk coupled with the worsted frock and the bright draped scarfs which play up to its simplicity of cut. It is thought however, that the adoption of short sleeves in these fabrics is the final argument in their favor for the spring since it is the scheme which avoids a double sleeve when the jacket or coat is worn. The smart sleeve in both dresses and blouses and this gives another flip in their favor.

As the story of spring sleeves is in relation to the puffed type, the elbow Parisienne has adopted the short and three-quarter sleeves, which include a great deal of diversification. Doubtless these shortened lengths will influence the vogue of long gloves for it is requisite that such a sleeve must be accompanied by the glove, and the dress sleeve has a short-sleeved jacket, which makes the glove more than ever imperative. Lingerie details, stitching, cording and spaniel embroidery remain on the upward curve of the style graph.

Buttons have never played a more decorative part than in this year of grace. Buttons are especially prominent on springtime frocks made of tweed.

Belts will be narrow when of the leather variety and wider when of fabric. Many belts are used on the backs of dresses when the fronts are given to the surplice closing or a side closing.

In the surplice with a soft draped collar and revers, continuing into side drops of the skirt there is an opportunity for a good-looking buckle to hold the material at the waist line.

Side closings in the double-breasted effects will be very smart on spring frocks an interpretation of the popular coat dress and this gives an occasion for using two to four or six buttons which may be covered in the dress fabric or of crystal, or some such medium.

Fashionably yours,
Lucille.

Bright Days are to be found in even the worst stretch of bad Winter weather provided one's clothes are cheerful. Be Bright wear let us instance a coat made of a spongy bright green cloth collared with a huge shawl of red fox.

Straphangers Are Popular when they are design that hang from the new flowered shoulder straps A lovely evening frock of gold and white lame with a scalloped neckline and peplum with overskirt of white net has shoulder straps made of tiny pink pantaloons that cross and meet at the back waistline.

Over the Top Part of the coat there is often posed a fur cloth bclero. And so we find a coat of brown duvetyn with a bolero of brown Summer ermine. The coat has amber buttons and tiny amber slides on the belt and on the cuffs.

We Break into Print again with the first showing of resort wear. For Palm Beach there is now an imigort parisienne gown of printed chiffon with a design in flesh, black and gray. The frock has a curved yoke of black lace and a black velvet ribbon belt. The wide, flowing sleeves hang from the shoulder in wide sections.

Out of the Bag comes much eise and as the bag is now an integral part of each costume care must be taken in selection. Ideal for formal afternoon wear at Southern resorts would be a large envelope pouch, with wide sides, of, white satin with a clasp made of pearls and onyx combined in a monogram. This particular bag is lined with black satin.

They Do Us More Good Thanany other Medicine

Says Toronto Man of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mr. McMullen Always Keeps a Box in the House.

Toronto Ont., Jan. 26 (Special) — What most people want these days is a medicine that will cet on turn up with perfect confidence in time of need. Mr. McMullen, 31 McMorris Avenue, Toronto, has found such a remedy — Dodd's Kidney Pills. He writes:—

"We are never without Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house. Whenever we feel out of sorts we taken them and find they do us more good than any other medicine. We have used them for six years."

Your health, strength and vitality depend upon the condition of your blood, for it is through the blood that every part of the body is nourished and built up. To enjoy good health the blood must be kept pure. Dodd's Kidney Pills are an excellent blood purifier. They do not affect the liver or stomach, they are just an effective Kidney medicine.

Little Things Look Big

How foolish to continue a quarrel with relatives.

Often financial matters come up and you think you are getting a fair and square deal.

Sometimes the quarrel is over an inconsequential matter.

Perhaps it has been carried on for years till you realize the foolishness of it but you are unwilling to take the first step toward reconciliation.

Then you are still a little boy or girl though your hair may be white.

Family love should be strong enough to overlook trifling differences.

The trouble is that it is the little things that look so big.

Family quarrels are usually childish in their lack of importance.

For years you have not spoken to some relative.

How much satisfaction has it been to you?

Many times you have regretted the disagreement.

Life is too short to harbor the sort of ill-feeling created by quarrels with relatives.

It drives out cheerful, agreeable thoughts which crowd out and spoil the most out of life and there isn't a sum of money large enough to make up for the discomfort of meanness that a family quarrel can engender.

MR. AND MRS. KNIGHT HONORED BY FRIENDS

On Wednesday evening, Jan. 21st, a very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. Charlie Sayers, Rollin, when the friends and neighbors gathered in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Knight (nee Lila Sayers). About 10.30 Mr. Freeman Howes called the gathering to order and asked Mr. and Mrs. Knight to take chairs. Mrs. Harvey Chisholm read the following address and Mrs. Charlie Bailey presented the bride with a purse:

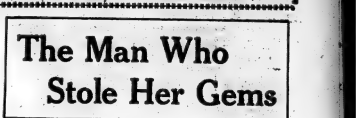
Mr. and Mrs. Knight,

Dear Friends.—

Learning of your recent marriage we feel we cannot let such a happy event pass without spending an evening with you before you take your departure and extending to you our very best wishes for the continuance of a happy and prosperous life in your new home.

We cannot commend too highly your steadfastness and loyalty in all the means of Grace. We have all greatly appreciated the whole-hearted interest and devotion that you have manifested in the Church, the choir, and as President of the Women's Association. Your interest in the welfare of the community augurs well for your success in the new home community you have entered.

Your husband must be congratulated on the partner he has chosen. The presence of all your associates and friends who are here tonight is a tribute to you both in proof sufficient of the high place you occupy in our affections.



We have but one regret, that your decision to leave necessitates your separation from us and the breaking of the daily ties, but we realize that one owes a responsibility to one's self for his or her development for life.

We take this opportunity of presenting to you this purse and trusting that you may regard it not for its intrinsic value but as a memorial of the best wishes of your friends and neighbours.

Signed on behalf of the community, Miss A. Howes, Mrs. J. Chisholm, Mr. and Mrs. C. Bailey, Mr. J. Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. Knight made suitable replies, thanking their friends for their gift and a hearty invitation to visit them in their new home, after which lunch was served and the remainder of the evening spent socially.

The Man Who Stole Her Gems

This the Glass This the Mark This the Man

He Left His Mark

A society woman in a Western city left her home one afternoon. A robber entered and stole her jewels — from a safe. He appeared to have left not a mark or clue. Whatever he touched, including the safe, had been rubbed or washed. But he forgot one thing, as robbers always do. A carelessly placed drinking glass on the sideboard showed he had taken a drink. The glass revealed a thumb-print.

The police had that thumb-print on record, with a picture of the man. He was quickly found, and the jewels were discovered in his room. The owner got all of them back—the man got a prison sentence. All because of a finger-print touch.

So Do You—on Foods Dangerous Finger-Prints

This true story shows how you leave finger-prints on everything you touch. They will not incriminate you honest people, but they often do some fearful damage. Those prints are germladen. Life Extension Institute lists 27 diseases which may be conveyed by such imprints on food.

These germs come from touching things which other people touch. People who have colds, perhaps, and have coughed or sneezed in their hands. People with other troubles. We cannot dodge those germs if we mingle with people, and handle what they touch. In a card game, for instance, every card may convey some dangerous germs to you.

The safe way is to wash your hands often, and always before you eat. Not with ordinary soap, but with Lifebuoy Soap. That contains a germicide so powerful that no active germs exist after its use.

Wash your hands with Lifebuoy often. Teach the habit to your children. Health is too valuable to risk. Millions of people are warding off millions of troubles in that way.

But Lifebuoy is not a medicinal soap. It is an exquisite soap, based on two palm oils. The world has never learned a way to make a better beauty soap and bath soap. No perfume, save the scent of health. And you will come to think it the finest odour on earth.

Your nearest dealer sells Lifebuoy. Why not buy a supply and test for yourself its remarkable qualities?

GOLDEN DAWN

by PETER B. KYNE

He decided Flynn and Angelloti your eggs on the scrimmage. You would sleep on their evidence and the suspicions it had aroused, compare notes in the morning and decide upon a course of action. They would have to adduce some material evidence to support their suspicion before the district attorney would consent to issue the search warrant, for a search warrant is not issued lightly. In the morning they would induce some stool pigeon to tell the district attorney that he had seen Nance Belden's face at the window of Lanny's home. Possibly they might induce the patrolman on that beat to stretch the truth a little.

"I can't get Nance out of Lanny's house tonight and I can't get her out in daylight tomorrow, but I must get her out tomorrow night," he decided. "But how?"

He was at his office at eight next morning. At eighth-thirty he looked into the detectives' room and saw Flynn and Angelloti in profound conference. Half an hour later he stepped out of a taxi two blocks from Lanny's house, and when the cab had disappeared, he made his way to the house and was admitted by Lanny.

"Nance has got to make it clean getaway," he assured her earnestly. "because those Flynn lads have got to come with a search warrant. The district attorney will probably call me up before he issues it and I'll have to tell him to go ahead and issue it, in order to allay suspicion. Now, here are half a dozen harmless hand grenades that burst on impact. There is a dozen cartridge bombs and three are stink bombs."

"Now, I'll tell you exactly how they will make the attack. They'll not come during the day, because they'll know you aren't at home and that Nance wouldn't answer that bell anyhow. But tonight, one of them will ring the front door-bell and shove the search warrant under your nose and step inside. The lady will, in the meantime, have gone around to your back door to prevent the girl's escape in that direction. There's a cement floor around your kitchen door is there not?"

"Yes. Well, when the door-bell rings, you answer it. That will be Mamie's sig to peek out the second story window and lob three bombs down on the cement beside whoever she sees standing there. They explode with a sound like a gunshot and diffuse their gas almost instantly over a considerable area. Now, whichever one comes to the back door will never be expecting a citizen to shower this sort of bombs down on him, because they are not accessible to citizens; so he will think that electric light bulbs have exploded down to scare him away. By the way, have Nance toss one electric light bulb down first and then follow with two tear bombs—here, I'll make a mark with my pencil on the tear bombs. Before he realizes what has happened he will be wearing like Niobe and unable to see anything in the darkness.

"But here's the point in mind, Lanny. He will not make his post. He'll hop right back door and be ready to grab her when she comes. He'll stick it out. That's the time Nance must drop a stink bomb beside him.

"Meanwhile, the man in front will hear the explosions. If the one in back cries out, the one in front will figure he has been shot and will run to the back door to help him. As he opens the door slip his pal will grab him. You must follow at his heels and shut and bolt the door instantly, or you'll get yours, too. There will be a momentary struggle between Flynn and Angelloti in the dark, because the front door man will think he has the wounded that hurled the bombs; and by the time they discover each others identity, the front door will be a sight-less and ill as the back door man.

"Nance, a word to you now."

"My name is Penelope Gatlin, Dan."

"My error, Penelope, the instant you drop those first two bombs, shut down the window. And, remember, all the lights in the rear of the house and particularly in the kitchen must be turned off. When the front door man is struggling with his pal and Lanny has closed the door, hey scream will be your cue to open the window again, just long enough to pay the rest of Mamie's reading Dr. Burt enter and leave the chief's house on Thursday night, when they knew the chief would be home until midnight, they decided to investigate. The unlocked cellar door gave them pause: Flynn whispered that he was always suspicious of things that come too easy. They crept upstairs and found Dan McNamara's ex-convict guest reading in bed. Both detectives recognized him, so while Angelloti guarded him Flynn made a hurried but thorough search of the premises. They were not in the house more than five minutes.

"We've been like two purs, chasing our tails." Angelloti complained when they met at their car. "The chief's up to his old tricks, bringing a convict with the con, and that's the bird Dr. Burt is calling to treat.

"The girl's been there, just the same, Amadeo, my boy. There was a lip-stick on the bureau and that's something old lady McNamara don't use. And I found a roll of adhesive, the kind of a roll of bandage and a soiled apron with some bloodstains on it in the dirty clothes basket in the bathroom."

Angelloti was convinced. "Where did she go?"

"She might have doubled back to that old mouse's house again, but I doubt that because she knows that's risky."

"Well, let's give Miss Lancings house a prowl anyhow."

Flynn was one of those hearty fellows who will try anything twice, so they went immediately to Lanny's house. The lights in front were out when they arrived, so Flynn purposefully circled around to the rear of the cottage to see if any lights were burning there. Going now, he listened for possible voices. Hearing none, he cautiously lifted the leg off Lanny's garage door and got his flashlight going. It he was rewarded for his courage by finding a stained bandage with clipped adhesive tape clinging to it. This affiliate evidence he carried around to Angelloti; they entered the car, drove back block and inspected the floor in the light of the dash lamp. Then they silently shook hands.

"Nothing is ever lost if you know where it is." Flynn rejoiced. "I'm going to pay mirrors a visit right with my half of the reward. We'll bone the district attorney for a search warrant tomorrow, and tomorrow night when the old lady get's home, we'll make the pinch."

"Shh!" we pinch her as an accessory."

"Amadeo, my boy, unless you're looking hard for something, it's a mistake to see too much or know too much. This Lanning woman is a friend of the chief's. As far as the public ever need know we picked the girl up on the street."

Angelloti nodded his acquiescence; they got the search warrant on the strength of that soiled bandage, and at nine o'clock that night arrived at their car. Flynn went to the back door and pasted himself there; and Angelloti rang the front door-bell. A light was switched on in the hall presently and Lanny, dressed for the street, opened the door six inches. Angelloti had his foot in it in a flash.

"Detective Sergeant Angelloti of the Central Station, Miss Lanning. I have here a search warrant, giving me legal right to search your house and secure the person of Nance Belden, an escaped convict from San Quentin penitentiary. Read it and weep!"

"You take your big fist foot out of my door and stay outside until I've read this purported search warrant and I'll shoot your foot off," Lanny informed him coldly. Angelloti withdrew his foot promptly. Lanny closed the door, and he could see her faintly through the curtained glass, reading.

"Come in," she invited—and at that moment the man who had been bolted to the left and then, even as Dan McNamara had predicted, nature took a hand—literally—and the remainder of the bombs and some dashing down the stairs. "Goodbye, Lanny, darling," she cried happily. "We'll meet again." Lanny pounded off the hall light, and Nance was through the door and was gone. Across the street from Lanny's house, in the motors of both turning over slowly.

Alternately the girl's finger was pointed at each of the detectives and she murmured, "take —this—one," she murmured, and whee, through the aid of this childhood formula, she had made a decision, she found that the couple of Messrs. Flynn and Angelloti and went rapidly away. Lanny, watching her from the darkened doorway, saw that she had taken the wrong car but was afraid to cry out and warn her. So she did the next best thing. She ran to the back door, unbolted it and climbed into the other car and drove down town to a late motion picture show. She carried the search warrant with her and while enjoying the show tore it into little bits.

Of the weeping, the groaning, the turning semi-circles in the eyelids, the bewilderment, the groping, vomiting cursing and despair of Messrs. Flynn and Angelloti nothing need be said. Suffice that Angelloti felt his way out of the gassed area and about two minutes after Lanny's departure, ventured himself on her front steps, while the valiant Flynn, dying a thousand deaths, stuck manfully to his post, keeping out gainst the kitchen door, enduring for duty's sake. Convinced they had Nance Belden cornered, they waited for the night wind to disperse the gas. Angelloti ceased to weep about half an hour after escaping from the gassed area, but Flynn persisted for an hour. About ten-thirty he was able to see, so he rang Lanny's bell reasonably, but received no answer. Then he noticed that their car was missing, so he summoned the martyred Flynn around from the back door.

"Don't speak to me," Flynn commanded passionately. "I'm dead! Hunts up an off night duty store arsenal for a tear."

"This," Angelloti hissed, "is Dan McNamara's work. Where would they get the bombs if he didn't swipe 'em out of the police arsenal?"

Flynn commenced to rub as he considered the barren faults of his enemous sacrifice.

"Amadeo, sweetheart to me boy your confidence. Faith, that, come what will, blow high, blow low, come sickness or sorrow, happiness or health, you'll never lay off this job until we've landed that—that——that—huzzy."

"Right! I swear." Angelloti's voice trembled with the sincerity of his purpose.

"The respective wives of the worthy pair telephoned down to the chief of the detectives next morning and informed him that their husbands were confined to bed with influenza. It might not be amiss, also to state that Lanny came home in a taxi about twelve-thirty, and finding the front door free of Angelloti and the neighborhood canine quite restored to normalcy, retired to her bed and passed almost at once into dreamless and untroubled sleep.

INSTALMENT XX

It was not a police car in which Nance had escaped, but the private vehicle of Detective-Sergeant Flynn, and its loss troubled him until the car was found, abandoned, out in the Mission about twenty-four hours later. A glance at the speedometer comforted Flynn. The car had been driven six miles. In company with Angelloti Flynn hastily recovered from their terrible experiences he drove in the same car from Lanny's house, via the most direct route to the police where a patrolman when he came off duty and drove the car to the Central Station garage and reported the mileage was six and two tenths miles!

"She's holed up within a block or two of where she left the car," Flynn decided.

"Not such a cold trail, after all." Angelloti exulted. "We'll have to get the neighborhood in our off moments. I'm sure the girl doesn't know she swiped your car, and that she gave us a clue to her whereabouts."

"If crooks didn't make mistakes and give us these breaks, my boy, you'd need a wonderful nurse to wipe it," Flynn reminded him. "I think it might be a good idea to interview the druggist in the neighborhood and see if she's been in to buy a new lipstick."

A round of the neighboring drug stores, however, proved barren of a new lead, and as they had other matters claiming their attention, they were forced to abandon the search for that clue.

Dan McNamara was much too intelligent to make inquiries of the assistant district attorney who issued the search warrant, but when informed that Flynn and Angelloti were down with the flu he called up Lanny at Stephens' office, and received a meticulous report. "You say the girl fled in the car my clerks arrived in?" in quarried the chief briefly. A description of the car must have been broadcasted all outlying police and the surrounding country stations immediately by Flynn and Angelloti, and Nance will be picked up somewhere down state."

"We've done our damnedest," Lanny replied cheerfully. "Angela can do no more. I borrowed the car you left out front. It's in a garage. I'll send you the claim check."

For a week, the chief waited for news of Nance Belden, but no news came through headquarters circuits around the Central Station that the car had been driven but three miles and then abandoned—for which evidence that she had cold-weed still. GREAT news, mothers! You don't have to hound your children into taking cod-liver oil—for they like it, this emulsified way.

Here's real proof. When the Scott's Emulsion reporter recently called on Mrs. E. M. McMullin of 170 Jarvis St., Toronto, he found that she didn't believe anything could make her two sons, who are pictured above, take cod-liver oil. Neither of them liked the flavor of plain cod-liver oil. So naturally she wanted to see how Scott's Emulsion of Cod-Liver Oil would appeal to the boys.

W.H. IRELAND IS REPORTED MUCH IMPROVED TODAY

Trenton Junior Hockey Players Hurt While Returning from Whitby.

ICE HARVEST STARTS

Speedy Hockey Games Were Played in Trenton Junior League

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Trenton, Jan. 28.—W. H. Ireland, M. L. A., Chief Whip of the Conservative party, is reported much improved today, although it will be another week or ten days before his physicians will allow him to leave his bed. The member for West Hastings was confined to his home here last week with what was considered to be a heavy cold but which developed into an attack of the flu. It is understood that on Friday his temperature rose to 105 degrees.

S.O.E. Installation

Bro. D. Bailfoot, District Deputy and Supreme President of Lydford Lodge, Belleville, was in Trenton this week to preside over the installation of officers for 1931 of the Sons of England Lodge No. 1. He was assisted in his duties by Bro. Ballam, also of Lydford Lodge, who acted as Grand Marshal, and Bro. Stinson of Kensington Lodge, at Picton. Bro. Bickiken acted in the capacity of Grand Inside Guard.

Following are the names of the officers installed: Past President, R. E. Taylor; President, W.M. Jones; Vice-President, W. Hatley; Chaplain, H. Allison; Secretary, C. H. Smith; Treasurer, R. Cunnell; Fire Guard, C. Woods; Second Guide, J. Hatley; Third Guide, C. Baker; Fourth Guide, R. Clarke; Inside Guide, E. P. Jones; Outside Guard, C. Jones.

At the conclusion of the installation the first game in the second series of the Trent-Carpet Ball League was played with Trenton and the visiting Oxford Lodge teams waging a [illegible] game. The game resulted in a victory for the home team and thus the other. The Oxford team finally nosed out a win by the score of 11 to 10. The evening was concluded in the good old English fashion.

Players Hurt

Trenton Juniors will be a weakened team when they take the ice tomorrow night here with the Port Hope Juniors as their opponents, this as a result of a motor accident which occurred early Wednesday morning.

The team was motoring back to Trenton after a successful encounter with Whitby on their own ice, when the car driven by Mr. B. Graham skidded on the slippery road and upended in the ditch. J. Dolan, right wing man, suffered three fractured ribs; K. Chambers, the net guardian had his leg wrenched, while the driver, Graham, and other occupants of the car escaped with a few minor cuts and a bad shaking up. The car itself was badly damaged.

Ice Harvest Begins

Harvesting ice for Trenton began today and during the next month close to 4000 tons of frozen water will be taken from the Bay of Quinte. The ice is from fifteen to sixteen inches in thickness.

Lamoyne Bros. have contracted with Mr. Fred Bateman for 2,000 tons. "It will require close to two weeks to cut, haul and store this quantity of ice. About twenty men and six teams will be engaged in the work," said Mr. Huffman.

It is stated unofficially that J. J. Mazzuh has the contract of the ice cut for the C.P.R. The C.N.R. will harvest 750 tons of ice.

Junior Hockey League

The Junior Hockey League got off with a bang here last evening when three games were staged at the local ice palace. Two cups are in competition in this league, one, donated by public subscription, for the juvenile section which comprises players under seventeen on December 31st last, and the Armstrong Trophy for the Midgets who are two years younger than the Juveniles.

In last night's opener the High School Midgets lost to the College St. team by a 1.0 score. The Separate School Juveniles won from H. Long's aggregation 2-2. The second juvenile game between College and Dufferin Street schools resulted in a 1-0 victory for the College Street boys.

The Line-ups:

College St. Midgets—Goal, H. Cottrell; defense, T. Roberts and G. Parr; wings, D. Smith and C. Graham; centre, R. Fox; subs, P. Johnson and H. Simpson.

High School Midgets—Goal, E. Gray;

VESTRY MEETING OF ST. THOMAS' WELL-ATTENDED

Major E. A. Geen Was Re-elected as the People's Warden

Although there is a general depression throughout the world which is felt to some extent in Canada, St. Thomas' Church has not felt the depression. The financial condition of the church, it was brought out at the annual vestry meeting in the Parish Home last night, is better by far than it has been for many years. The various organizations in the church have been more than active and have been serviceable, and the attendance at the meetings of these organizations has increased as well as church attendance. In this respect much credit is due Venerable Archdeacon Lyons.

Major E. A. Geen, who has been People's Warden throughout the past year was unanimously elected for the same office and H. Thomson was re-appointed Vicar's warden. Mr. Charles Stetcher was re-elected vestry clerk.

The executive council of the vestry was elected by ballot, according to the Canons of School. The executive is composed of the following members: Messrs Harry Smith, C. M. Juby, T. Chalmers, Fred Anderson, Dr. Ponton, L. C. Patrick, Norman Gowsell, Percy, P. W. Geen, Dr. N. Ketcheson, E. R. Gorman and F. C. Aylesworth. Executive Council will meet weekly to deal with all the affairs of the vestry to deal with all the affairs of the church. The Rev. Ven. Archdeacon Lyons closed the meeting with Benediction.

JOHN ST. CHURCH IN A PROSPEROUS HEALTHY STATE

Board of Managers is Named —Thanks to Their Pastor

TREASURER'S REPORT

Various Societies Report Success Every Branch is Flourishing

The annual meeting of the Congregation of John Street United Church, was held last evening in the Assembly Hall, Rev. Robt. Hall opened the meeting with Devotion Exercises and then turned the proceedings over to Mr. J. B. Boyce, chairman of the Board of Managers. On motion, duly seconded, Newton Thompson was elected as Secretary of the meeting. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read, confirmed and signed. A large representative gathering then heard the report of the Session, and the reports of the Secretary and Treasurer, of the various church organizations.

The Session Report presented by Mr. J. B. Reddy, showed a net increase over the previous year of fifty-two, making a total resident membership of 372.

The Church Help Society's Report was presented by Mrs. H., E. Fairfield and proved this organization to be in very flourishing condition. The ladies are to be heartily congratulated upon the splendid work performed this year. They raised a total amount of $1,527.65, and greatly assisted in the progress of the church. Mrs. Archibald read the report of the Secretary.

The report of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund was presented by Mr. R. Templeton and showed $2,102. raised for this purpose.

The report of the Women's Missionary Society was presented by Mrs. Denike and also Mrs. Geo. Pearson read the report of the Sunday School.

Mr. Geo. Pearson, superintendent, he was pleased to report $616.10 raised. The Sunday School was enjoying the highest membership in many years. Great progress was made in the Sunday School and Mr. Archibald and his capable staff of officers and teachers are to be congratulated upon their splendid work among the youth of the church.

Reports from the S. and T. Girls' Club and the Young People's Society were presented showing both to be in a flourishing condition.

Mr. R. W. Adams presented and explained the Church Treasurer's Report. Collections amounted to $6,052.78. After accounts had been paid a substantial balance remained in the hands of the treasurer. The assets of the church amounted to $79,500.00.

Subscriptions and loans to the Building Fund amounted to $6,312.95. The total collected raised from all sources amounted to approximately $18,000.00.

Expressions of appreciation were voted to Mr. Leo B. Rigg and the members of the Choir for the valuable assistance rendered the Church. Also to Mr. Wm. Denike, Church Secretary, Mr. Newton Thompson, Church Secretary, Mr. H. A. Ross, Envelope Treasurer and all the officers of the various organizations.

The following members of the congregation were placed on the Board of Managers—Messrs. J. MacLean, Isaac E. Corbett, Geo. Wishart, A. P. Sullivan and Newton Thompson.

Mr. H. B Fetterly, Supt. O.S.D. was elected to the Session as an Elder of the church

Words of appreciation were extended to the Hall for his uniring efforts as minister of the church and he was congratulated upon the steady increase in membership.

The church is enjoying a steady growth and is in a prosperous and flourishing condition.

LIVES SNUFFED OUT IN MINE EXPLOSION

LINTON, Indiana, Jan. 29.—The lives of twenty-nine were snuffed out in an explosion at Little Betty Coal Mine near here yesterday, with the cause of several more still unknown this morning. All men in the mine had been accounted for.

RATE FOR ROADS BRIDGES DOWN

Half a Mill Reduction is Shown by Year's Expenditures

Half a mill reduction in the county rate for roads and bridges for the year 1931, is the announcement of the roads and bridges committee in a report presented to the county council of Hastings at Shire Hall. The rate this year will be four and a half mills on the equalized assessment total of $18,954,800.00.

The expenditure on roads and bridges will be $475,975.72, according to the report of the committee presented. The government fifty per cent. subsidy on the 1930 expenditures on roads and bridges has been receiving three months earlier than usual.

Report on expenditure on roads and bridges in 1930 in Hastings County presented to Hastings County Council showed:

Expended as approved by	$ 316,558.22
50 per cent. of Subsidy	108,279.12

NEW MANAGER NAMED

Mr. Clifford Ayres, who has been manager of the uptown Dominion Store for the past two and one half years, and who has been identified with the Dominion system for the past ten years, has been appointed to succeed Mr. Ray Oliver manager of the downtown store who has entered business at Thorneburg. Mr. Gordon Blue who has been connected with the staff at Maple Village, has been recalled to Belleville and takes charge of the uptown store.

SLEIGH RIDE HELD

Several boys in the Sunday School class of Miss Florence Lake at Holloway Street United Church enjoyed a sleigh ride party last night. The party after making merry about the city streets returned to the church parlors were refreshments were served and a short entertainment held. Rev Harold Neal and Sunday School Superintendent Hodgins assisted with the entertainment.

SERIOUSLY ILL IN TORONTO

Mr. A. Wynne Roberts who is well-known in Belleville since he was the chief consulting engineer in the erection of the new gas works here, is seriously ill at his home in Toronto. Members of the city council and city officials will be sorry to learn of Mr. Roberts' illness as he made himself extremely popular in his regular visits here while the gas works was under construction. Mr. Roberts contracted the illness while inspecting a new piece of construction at Port Colborne.

MOTORED TO KINGSTON

A number of hockey fans from this city journeyed to Kingston last night and cheered the Junior Cubs to victory after Royal Military College. Motorists report the roads slippery in spots with the light coat of snow making it treacherous driving. However here were no accidents and the fans returned home shortly after midnight.

MISSION CIRCLE

Last evening the members of Hereton-I Mission Circle held their meeting at the Home of the Aged, Dundas Street. About thirty were present. The meeting opened with a song service, of favorite hymns. Margaret Twitney read the Scripture lesson which was based on the story of Jesus the Good Shepherd, and was explained by Rev. McCutcheon followed by a short prayer service. Bessie Barlow played a piano solo. Margares Mason gave a reading entitled "The Obituary Notice" which was very humorous. Mrs. Neva Horton sang a solo "The Old Rugged Cross" to her own accompaniment on a Hawaiian Guitar. Ethel Horton favored with a piano solo, Dorothea Newson and Jessie Smith sang a duet "Face to Face." Bernice Bamford gave a reading "An Old Pord Car." The meeting closed by singing a hymn followed by prayer. Refreshments were served and enjoyed by all.

SLEIGH DRIVE HELD

The boys of H Technical and their friends held a very enjoyable sleigh drive last evening. They left the school and after riding around the city for a couple of hours they went to the home of Joe Miles, where they spent the remainder of the evening playing games and dancing. Also thirty were present during the evening. Refreshments were served before the enjoyable party came to a close.

FAIR MEN MEET

Forty representatives from Central Ontario district were in attendance today at the annual Fair Association meeting here. Interest was keen and several matters pertinent to directors of Fairs were discussed. Dates were slotted for the different exhibitions.

MAY REDUCE GRAIN RATES

OTTAWA, January 29.—An announcement may be expected in a few days from the railway companies of emergency reduced rates to facilitate the use of Canadian grain for livestock feeding. Some days ago Hon. Dr. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, called a conference in his office with railway transportation executives at which Hon. Robert Reid, Minister of Agriculture, and Hon. T. G. Murphy, Minister of Interior, sat in. Since then the railway companies have been considering the suggestions of assisting the farmers who have large stocks of feed grain, by making it less costly to bring the livestock and the grain together. It is understood the railways have decided the extent of the reductions they are prepared to make.

SPENDS FORTUNE SO MUST GET A JOB

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 29.—(By the Canadian Press)—Hilda Clemins, 25, who three years ago was left an estate of $100,000 is looking for a job, and if she doesn't get one she may find herself in more trouble.

Dressed in khaki trousers and a sweater, Hilda recently appeared before Magistrate Emily Murphy in Women's Court, on a charge of theft. She stole a lump of coal from a waggon in the Market Square, threw it in the back of her automobile and started home, but a constable soon caught up with her.

Unemployment of herself and a brother-in-law, Hilda told the court, was responsible for the theft.

"How have you been living?" asked Magistrate Murphy.

"My father left me $3,000 3 years ago you got a job," said the magistrate. "It's all gone now."

"Well, any girl who spends $3,000 in three years is looking for trouble," she said.

WILL CALL CONFERENCE

Canberra, Australia, January 29.—(Via Reuters)—One of the first acts of Hon. E. G. Theodore, who has returned to the cabinet as Commonwealth Treasurer, will be to call a conference of outstanding financiers, bankers and business men for the purpose of formulating a "forward" financial policy. Mr. Theodore believes the banks have the power to alter or control the present critical situation in some degree.

Meanwhile, the Commonwealth Labor Party remains split over Mr. Theodore's re-entry into the cabinet at the request of Premier Scullin and Hon. J. E. Fenton, former Minister of Trade, declined to withdraw his resignation, which he made in protest against the Prime Minister's attitude.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Reed, Albert St., have returned home from an extended visit in Los Angeles, Cal.

Mrs. A. E. MacColl, Church street, was hostess at a delightful afternoon tea yesterday. Tea was poured by Mrs. A. Roberts, and those who assisted in the serving were Miss Ida Thompson, Miss Alice Evans and Mrs. S. Lawson, of Toronto.

A social evening was held at the home of Arelle L. Orestrix on Monday evening, January 26th., under the auspices of the "Neighbor's Aid of the 2nd Line Thurlow. The meeting took the form of a Rummage Shower to which they were entertained and a clever following three families in the neighborhood. Apples, potatoes, fruit, flour and many useful articles were brought to help them through the winter. R. M. Mitchell, reeve of Thurlow, acted as chairman and a fine program was enjoyed by all present. Miss. Orestrix served a dainty lunch. A good time was reported and a closer fellowship was felt in the gathering together to help others in their need.

HILARIOUS YOUNG VISITORS PAID FOR THEIR FUN IN POLICE COURT

The average "drunk" is a little careless about what he does and doesn't always think of the consequences. Three young men from Napanee, evidently up here for a spree, not only were inordinately careless, but as good as got down on their knees, and pleaded to be arrested. They might just as well have walked into the police station and asked for a night's lodgings.

They admitted as much in court this morning. In fact they were so "tight" that they stopped out in front of the police station, talking in loud tones of voice. All the police had to do was step out the front door and ask them to come in. This morning the oldest member of the trio, was fined $25.00 and costs on a charge of drunkenness. Another paid $10.00 and costs on a similar charge and the third was sassed a like fate. After burning up the telephone wires between Belleville and Napanee, the money was found and the fines were paid.

BRITAIN SENDING POWERFUL FORCE TO "OLYMPIAD"

Los Angeles Will be Scene of Olympic Games in 1932

LONDON, Jan. 28—By the Canadian Press—Substantial assurances are forth coming that Britain will send strong representative teams to the Olympic Games at Los Angeles in 1932. Any belief that might have been held regarding the effect upon the Olympic Games of newly instituted British Empire Games opened at Hamilton, Ontario, last August and scheduled for every four years, is largely unfounded. Lord Rochdale, leader of the British Olympic Games movement, says Britain will be adequately represented at Los Angeles.

Lord Rochdale spoke strongly on the matter at a recent meeting here of the Olympic council, says Sporting Life. He pointed out that since the first Olympiad at Athens in 1896 the United States had loyally supported the Games, no matter where they took place, to the utmost of their resources, "and it would be base ingratitude on our part not to do all in our power to help them to make those at Los Angeles as big a success as those in London in 1908."

There is no question that the 1932 games will be on a different scale altogether to those in 1904 at St. Louis. The Olympic movement at that time was, as it were, in its infancy, and many nations now regularly participate had then not the least idea as to the value of athletics towards national efficiency. This had the result of making the St. Louis Games practically an all-American affair for the European nations were practically unrepresented and the consequence was that with the exception of the 56 lb weight secured by a Canadian, all the track and field events were competed for and won by U.S. athletes. Two of the victors on that occasion, Rose and Sheridan, repeated their successes in throwing the discus and putting the shot at the London Games four years later.

"While it is not necessary for us to attempt to send to Los Angeles the vast number of athletes and officials who represented us in post-war days at Antwerp, Paris, and Amsterdam, it is all the more necessary that Great Britain should make an impressive appearance, inasmuch that already no fewer than 38 nations have accepted the invitation of the United States to compete, while others have intimated their intention of doing so if at all possible," Sporting Life added.

"The Americans are hoping that the tenth Olympiad will surpass all its predecessors in every possible way. Its enthusiasm and superb organization can accomplish what they will doubtless attain to their ambition. The honor of holding the celebration has come to them only after really admirable persistency. In 1920 the United States International Olympic Committee sent William May Garland—a sportsman to whom Los Angeles is the real centre of the universe—to Antwerp with an invitation to the International Olympic Committee to hold either the 1924 or 1928 Games in the Californian capital.

"Unfortunately for them these had been pledged to Paris and Amsterdam respectively, but Mr. Garland was informed that there was a possibility of the 1932 Games—at that time unassigned—being secured if the committee were satisfied with the suggested arrangements.

"From that moment Mr. Garland did not leave them alone, and at every opportunity he urged the claims of Los Angeles, with the result that at the meeting of the International Committee in Berlin in 1923 the United States was unanimously selected as the nation to which would be given the games of nine years hence. Then with their usual thoroughness, the Americans immediately went to work. The Governor of the State of California appointed a Commission, composed of leaders in the sporting, civic, business, and industrial life of the State to support Los Angeles, while the Government of the United States itself at once communicated with the nations of the world to the effect they would regard it as a 'friendly gesture' if the Games were supported.

"The result has been really remarkable, for never before so far in advance of the Games has such a response been made to the invitations, and the fact that, at least, the colors of 38 different nations of the world will be flown on this occasion has inspired the organizing committee to supreme efforts.

"The preparations are already practically complete. The stadium will seat well over 100,000 spectators; the track has been remodelled to suit the requirements of the Olympic Committee, and the accommodation for everyone and everything is on an elaborate scale.

"Not only this, but the programme itself has already been arranged, and extending over 16 days and nights, this included athletics, 'Soccer' football, rowing, boxing, gymnastics, wrestling, weight lifting, fencing, swimming and water polo, equestrian sports, cycling, hockey, rifle and pistol shooting, and the modern pentathlon."

$100 a Month Income

will be paid to you regularly free of any chance of loss for the rest of your life

Do you want a definite, sure income that will come to you even though all other sources of income fail? You can have it.

Picture what a hundred dollars a month would mean to some people you know—that totally disabled, the old unemployed man or woman, the widow struggling along on very small means. Resolve that you will now take the first simple step required in order to provide against you or yours ever being in such a position.

For most people it is a very difficult task to build up a fund of thousands of dollars in order to provide an income for themselves. It takes years of self-sacrifice. It isn't necessary now.

Why not adopt the modern way and by depositing moderate annual instalments let the Canada Life take over your problem?

We will guarantee you one hundred dollars a month income when you decide to retire at age, say, 50, 55 or 60 or pay you an income personally should you become totally disabled, at any time between now and then, or we will start paying it at once to your family if you should die.

Why not find out how it is done? It will mean no obligation on your part.

INTER-FORM DEBATES AT THE COLLEGIATE

The first of a series of inter-form debates took place at Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational school yesterday afternoon when IIIB defeated representatives of form IIIA. The subject of the debate was "Resolved that Movies do More Harm Than Good," the affirmative side being taken by Elinor and Mary Robins, of IIIA and the negative side was upheld by Frances Evans and Louise Schryver of Form IIIB.

The judges were Mrs. Brown, Rev. A. E. McCutcheon and Rev. Dr. H. H. Bell.

Another debate in the series will be held tomorrow afternoon when forms IVA and IVB debate on the question of the proposed abolition of the Junior Matriculation examinations for students making 65 per cent. during the term. At this meeting of the Literary Society a one-act play will be presented and there will be selections by the school orchestra.

PRINCE EDWARD EGGS ARE DOWN

Picton Moose Hockey Team Played Friendly Game With Wellington

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

PICTON, Jan. 28.—The price of eggs here at the present time is the lowest in a great many years. Merchants are paying from 7¢ to 20 cents per dozen, and even at that price there is not a great demand for them. Poultrymen are finding that at the present time that their business is hardly a paying proposition.

The Picton Moose Hockey team went to Wellington on Monday evening and played the Legion team of that town. Wellington has a fine team and it has won nearly all the games in the Owl League, but they were not good enough for the Picton boys who scored five goals to the Legion's two. The game was keenly fought and the spectators were given some excitement.

MARSHALL HARRISON

The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Burley, Bowery street, of the late T. Marshall Harrison, whose death occurred on Monday in the Prince Edward County Hospital from pneumonia.

Mr. Harrison was born in the township of North Marysburg, 81 years ago and spent the greater part of his life on a farm there. He was widely and favorably known and his death is deep ly regretted.

He was a member of the United Church; a member of the Prince Edward Masonic Lodge, under whose auspices the funeral was held; also of the Calvaryel Chapter. Politically in politics he was a Conservative. Rev. Joseph Ogden of Cressy circuit officiated at the funeral service. Interment was made in the family plot at St. John's cemetery at Waupoos.

Mr. Harrison leaves three sons, Arthur in Chicago, Laverne in Toronto and Elmer on the homestead at Cressy.

The Kiwanis Club celebrated their Charter Night anniversary on Tuesday evening. A banquet was held at the United Church. It was also Ladies night. The speaker of the evening was Past Kiwanis Governor W. Mills of Kingston.

CARD PARTY AND DANCE SUCCESS

One of the most successful card parties and dances of the season was held in St. Michael's Academy last night when members of the Children of Mary entertained at a social evening. Bridge and euchre were played during the first part of the evening and seventy tables of cards were in progress. The following were the prize winners:

Bridge—Ladies' first, Mrs. Chas. Meagher; second, Mrs. Harley Wray; third, Mrs. W. H. Lougheed. Men's first Mr. Ted Hughes, second, Mr. Lee Skelly; third, Mr. Harold Barrett. Euchre—Ladies' first, Miss Irene Bean; second, Mrs. M. Cannon; third, Miss Bernice Horrigan. Men's first, Mr. V. Flagler; second, Mr. L. Dutton; third, Mr. W. Gallagher.

A delicious lunch was served after the games and there was dancing for the rest of the evening. Chas. Coyer's orchestra provided splendid music for the occasion. A lucky dance which took the form of an elimination birthday dance was a feature of the programme and this was won by Mr. Twomey Black and Mrs. J. L. Shiels. The proceeds of the evening were most gratifying.

In Lincoln's administration not a single measure was passed over his veto.

Free Fuel

Thanks to the efforts of W. E. Tumman, M.P., W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., and Mayor C. W. Lott there will be no cold homes in Trenton this winter, arrangements having been completed whereby the second growth timber at the Government Air Camp will be cut and hauled to Trenton and provide fuel for the needy. Mr. B. W. Powers has offered the use of a vacant lot on which to pile the wood. A letter authorizing this has been received by His Worship the Mayor from Dr. Manion, Minister of Defence, Col. O. c. Desbarats. The wood will be cut from those areas designated by the Resident Engineer, Mr. W. B. Wilson.

Another successful euchre was staged by the Maids of England in their rooms over the fire hall on Friday. A. Colirell won the evening's prize for lone hands. She had a total of 1,000 points. Other prizes for the night's play were: Ladies, first, Mrs. Legrance; second, Mrs. J. Jones; third, Mrs. G. Kneeland; consolation, Mrs. B. Westfall; second, Mr. E. Baker, third, K. Reed.

An organized store necessitated calling the fire reeld to the home of Mr. M. Mumford. Court Bailiff here, is visiting his sister, Mrs. W. Pacey, and other friends in town.

Mr. H. G. Crowe, District Agent of the Continental Life, was in Toronto yesterday attending the Board of Directors meeting.

Mr. Lorne Slade, Wellington, spent a few days in town this week with relatives.

INA JEAN MAYNE

Ina Jean Mayne, two year and six months old daughter of the late Robert Mayne and of Mrs. Mayne, died on Wednesday, January 28th at the family residence, 8 Doyle's Terrace. The child was born in Belleville. Mrs. Mayne, mother of the child, survives.

ALBERTA GIRL A TALKIE STAR

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 29. — (CP) the Canadian Press) — Actress, radio broadcaster and singer Florence McHugh, of Calgary, has scored her greatest dramatic success in talking pictures. The pretty, slim little Alberta girl, who a few years ago went to London to take singing lessons, todfy is the star of a late screen success produced in Britain. Miss McHugh, well known as a stage star in London, visited here last summer.

Youngest daughter of one of the southern Alberta's oldest ranching families, Miss McHugh was born in Calgary where her mother still lives. She received her early education here, taking part in amateur and professional stage productions. She was 19 years old when she went to London, where she entered the Royal College of Music to study singing and piano. Her father is the late Felix A. McHugh, was a pioneer, of Calgary, coming here from Ontario in 1883.

Miss Mc Hugh took part in college plays and in 1926 made her first professional appearance in "Mr. Peyps" at the Everyman Theatre. It was through the excellency of her interpretation of her part in this play that Clemence Dane, British author of "Wedlock", chose her to play the part of "Penny" the little peasant girl in "Granny".

Engagements were numerous following her success under Dane and in 1928 she was offered the leading role in "Show Boat". Within the last two years Miss McHugh has become well known to British radio listeners, her broadcasts being featured. Last summer she married Dr. John Piercy, young Canadian physician who is practising in London. Her stage and screen career will be continued.

COMMITTEES ARE NAMED BY THE COUNTY COUNCIL

Grants for Schools in Hastings County Will be Fully Discussed

The report of the nominating committee was brought in at the afternoon session of the County Council yesterday, this committee naming the chairmen and various members of the several committees which function during the year. There was also brought in number of requests for donations from various institutions and organizations and all were referred to the Ways and Means Committee for further action. A number of bylaws were given notice of motion but these will not be laid on the table until the committee on bylaws convene. A large amount of correspondence was dealt with and some resolutions forwarded from various county councils in the Province were forwarded in, through a request for same. The most important was the resolution from Huron County asking the Hastings County Council to support the increase of the government subsidy for County roads. A letter was received from H. M. Robbins, deputy Provincial Secretary, it being a report on the inspection of the House of Refuge in December last. The inspector found everything in a satisfactory manner, the inmates contented and happy, and the superintendent extending every courtesy. A number of motions dealing with special grants to poor school sections in Northern Hastings, special grants for roads, in the same district were also laid on the table and referred to the Ways and Means committee discussion. At this session of the County Council a number of High School trustees will be appointed and these are all governed by bylaw. There is every prospect of a road report being submitted by the committee on roads and bridges but before that is introduced, full discussion will be held by the members as this important road question. The members all realize that something must be done but the best way to tackle the problem has not been devised. The members of the standing committees for the year are:

Finance Committee—Ernest Brown, chairman; C. W. Malley, G. E. Jordon; F. N. Marett, W. Gray, J. H. Brackett, the Warden.

Roads and Bridges — James A. Moore, chairman; J. A. McKinney, T. H. Rogers, R. M. Mitchell, Lorne E. Reid, the Warden.

House of Refuge—George E. Arnott, chairman; W. N. Gilroy, the Warden.

Agricultural Advisory Committee — Percy Larkin, chairman; W. Stiles, W. A. Morton, Edgar Morrow, Tom Montgomery, Charles Burlanyett, R. Brett; the Warden.

Administration of Justice—Walter Whytock, chairman; W. H. Nugent.

Publicity Committee—James Bronson, chairman; Dalton A. Clarke, W. H. Nugent.

CUBS DEFEATED CADETS IN HARD CHECKING GAME

Locals Staged Brilliant Third Period Rally to Trounce R.M.C., 4-2

SCORE WAS 3-2

Morgan and Runions Both Turned in Smart Games in Kingston

(By C. D. T.)

The jinx is broken!

A Belleville hockey team won a game

On Kingston ice!

But they had to come from behind and stage a third period rally to turn the trick.

Last night the Belleville Cubs, junior entrants in the O.H.A., won a well played and keenly contested game from the Cadets of the Royal Military College by a score of 3 to 2 at the Jock Harty Arena in Kingston. The team has still a mathematical chance to arrive in a playoff position for the group title, but the chances are exceedingly slim. Gananoque will have to defeat the group leaders, Kingston, for this to occur, but we think this is a big order but stranger things have happened, for instance Gananoque defeating the Cubs when it was thought the motions of a hockey game would settine. Last night the Cubs played the game they are capable of, showing that it was only persistence that brought victory to the orange and black.

If one had not seen the R.M.C.'s in action last night you could hardly believe the difference in style they exhibited. Professor Colley in three short weeks has worked wonders with them and last night they fought until the last gong and at one time it looked as if Belleville would again go under from the heavy backchecking and sensational rushes that carried the puck carrier far into the scoring zone. The game was not a pink tea affair by any stretch of imagination, and Jacobi, the referee, had to rule with a firm hand before the boys were brought to time. After the second period closed, Rene St. Denis and Kelly flaged a small disagreement were soon parted by the other play, and each received a five minute penalty for same, which had no ill effect on the other players. St. Denis was entirely to blame for the fracas as he butt-ended Kelly before the gong sounded the good reason at all. The checking was close and hard but Belleville had a little more polish than the Cadets and their hard work was rewarded in the third chukker.

Combined Better

The Cadets skated faster, showed more ability in handling the puck and combine better than the game in Belleville and all this was backed up by marvelous goal tending by Bigelow. It looked for a time as though he would beat the entire Belleville team and he robbed them of innumerable scoring chances especially in the second frame. Two or three times they worked to close quarters only to have the goalie make a perfect save. The defense of the Cadets was harder to pebetrate and the front line broke tau. tey Kelly was the pick of the Cadet attack Bigelow and he worked hard for a win. Ellis and Cagnon played well with the second line holding their own with ease. The Cubs gave their best exhibition away from home this season. They were subjected to a hard, but clean bumping game and stood the grueling well. "Pete" Morgan came back to play a swell game and could easily outskate any man on the ice. Runions was a better man previous this year this winter and his check did not roam at will.

McDonald made a strong playoff and was not outplayed by either centre man. The defence took the steam out of the incoming forwards with baby bodychecks and did their in carrying the rubber but they did not take advantage of the passing opportunities that were afforded them. McKinnon in goal turned in a swell effort and was by no means the weakest man out there.

McGuire and Ehlher made Bigelow make two fine saves without a return and Belleville held their own, while Runions was serving a penalty. After eleven minutes of uninteresting hockey Kennedy found the twine with a well-directed shot after a a perfect play around the defence. Bigelow made a nice save from "Pete" Morgan after he had been handed a swell pass from Runions. Belleville pressed and St. Denis scored from his own rebound in fact he banged the puck at the goalie three times before finding the net. The Cadets fought back and when the teams went to the barn for the rest period, Ele had put them one up on a goal that was decidedly soft. The rubber did not leave the ice but simply slid by McKinnon. The second period was scoreless but the third was a bear cat and Belleville had all the play. They went out after goals and got them. Harry Morgan scored after Sherry had carried the length of the ice and rounding the Kingston defence made a direct passout. The Cubs continued to press and McDonald scored one from a scramble. The game was in the bag. The winners dropped back to a defensive game and were by no means sure on the defensive than the Cadets were on the offensive and they skated off the ice with the first win away from home.

The line-ups and summary follows:

Belleville—Goal, McKinnon; defence, Ehlner and Sherry; centre, McDonald; wings, Runions and J. Morgan; subs, H. Morgan, St. Denis and McGuire.

R.M.C.—Goal, Bigelow; defence, Mather and Kennedy; centre, Kelly; wings, Elle and Cagnon; subs, Peck, Griffin and Kirk.

Referee—H. H. Jacobi, Toronto.

In a very exciting game in the ladies afternoon league the Hustlers managed to take three points to the Anaxes one, taking the second game by only one pin, the third by twelve and the total by forty six. high bowlers were Mrs. Singer for the Anaxes and Mrs. Laughlin for the Hustlers.

Alf Everett's Clacos took all four points from the Maple Spillers in a Bush league game. Some of the boys on both these teams were right in form last night, as a glance at the scores will show. Some nice singles on both sides. Jack Darrell was high for Claco 609 and F. Lent for Maple Spillers 594.

The second Bush league game resulted in Supremes taking three points and Hydro one. A glance at the figures will show some nice singles. High bowlers were Salisbury for Supremes and L. Blaker for the Hydro.

If you have catarrhal deafness or head noises go to your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint; (double strength) and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Y'S MEN ADDED ANOTHER WIN IN BASKET LEAGUE

Big Night was Celebrated at Y.M.C.A. With Boxing and Badminton

The Y's Men, local entrants in the Intermediate section of the Eastern Ontario Amateur Basketball Associa, Etn scored a 43-24 win over their friendly rivals from Napanee. Geo. Gilbard, their captain, lead into action a greatly improved team over that which represented the furniture town, last year. The Easterners gave the Club Men some real opposition during the first half, in fact the visitors were the first to register on the score board and for the opening minutes of play, they were able to hold the local sharpshooters well in hand. Later in the initial half the home team came to life and ran in a few extra goals along with a free throw, for a seven point lead at the half way mark.

The second half saw the Men of Weir working to better effect as in this half they were able to double the points obtained by their opponents during the final twenty minutes of play. The Napanee boys were in there trying all the time but they did not seem to have much luck in their shooting missing out on a number of occasions when it looked like sure baskets. In handling the ball the visitors have improved greatly over their work in this department when they last played here but they still still somewhat weak in their shooting.

By virtue of their win last night the Y's Men are at the top of the heap having won all of their three starts whereas every other team in the league have lost at least one game. However the Club Men have two hard games facing them, one with the Kingston Y.M.C.A. on their own floor and possibly a game with Queen's, at the latter's court on the 4th. This latter mentioned affair however may not be back to the 31st of February when the Queen's Intercollegiate team will be playing Toronto at Queen's. The teams:

Napanee—McDonald 6; Stewart 6; Kinkley 6; T. Bentley 2; P. Bentley; Reid; Gilbard 2; Wilson 2; Graham. Total 24.

Y's Men—McPee 2; Allan 12; Paul-ner 4; White 2; Weir 7; Buell 6; Masters 1; Davison 10; Evoy. Total 43.

Badminton

Preceding the basketball fixture between Napanee and the Y's Men last night, an interesting exhibition of badminton was staged by two members of the Belleville Club. In the doubles Messrs R. Martin and G. K. Graham were paired against Messrs R. J. E. Graham and A. H. Ketcheson. In spite of the fact that the ceiling in the Y gym is rather low for many of the long clear overheads of the game, the visiting players were able to give a highly creditable and interesting exhibition of the popular game.

Messrs Martin and Ketcheson played a couple sets of singles, featured by clever play on the part of both participants.

Local Boxers Assist

During the evening there were three boxing bouts put on by local mit men and in all three there was plenty of pep and action. The exhibition bouts the boys stepped right in and slammed away at each other right merrily. In the heavyweight bout George Semark created plenty of disturbance for each other. The second go between Perry and Langman was not wanting in the fact that the first bout between Parks and Angel proved good enough to hold the majority of the crowd in spite of the fact it followed the basketball game and the hour was becoming late.

Attendance Disappointing

Although an evening's programme of considerable merit was the offer to the public, the response in attendance was rather disappointing. In fact so much so that when the incidental expenses incurred in connection with the game itself are looked after, the team will not be able to even pay for the gas necessary to take them to Napanee for the return fixture. The Club Men are not in any way desirous of making money. They provide their own uniforms, furnish their own cars for transportation and pay for all their own meals when away from home but they had hoped to realize sufficient returns from their home games to cover such expenses as advertising, referee's fees and gas used on out of town trips but apparently they are destined for disappointment if last night's attendance is any indication of what they may expect.

VICTORIA GRADS ARE VICTORIOUS

"Cy" Barriage is Star, Scoring Four Goals in Junior Game

Queen Victoria graduates proved easy victors over the Wolves in a Kt-Y Junior hockey fixture at Simpson's rink last night. The score was 8-3 and the grads had complete possession of the play from the start. "Cy" Barriage was easily the star of the grads scoring four goals, while Pepper a son of the illustrious Billy Pepper of former days counted another three. Garlely scored the odd one. Stnfield in goal for the Wolves was a busy custodian but turned the grads back time after time and had it not been for his outstanding display, the score would have mounted into larger figures. Miller and Wolfe were the marksmen for the Wolves. Harvey was also effective. The first period was 3-0 second 3-0 while the play was practically even in the final chukker. Earl Bawden handled the game satisfactorily.

Queen Victoria—Goal Dickie; defence Morgan and Rigby; centre Barriage; wings, Rich ; and Barriage. Subs, Hammett, J. per and Garlely.

Wolves—Goal Stnfield; defence Miller and Hogan; centre McCreary; wings Campbell and Harvey; subs, Jones and Burley.

CONDITION UNCHANGED

London, January 29. — Physicians attending Princess Beatrice, 76-year-old aunt of the King, who is suffering from a broken arm and acute bronchitis, regard her condition as "not without anxiety." Queen Victoria of Spain, daughter of the Princess, left Madrid hurriedly and is coming here to be at her bedside.

The medical bulletin issued this morning said:

"Her Royal Highness, the Princess Beatrice, has had a fairly restful night. Her general condition remains unchanged."

STIRLING GAIN SIXTH VICTORY

Red and Whites Too Fast for Tweed in Trent League Fixture

Stirling red and whites hung up their sixth victory of the season in the Trent Valley League last night by taking Tweed into camp by a score of 3-0. It was a fast clean exhibition, one of the most spirited of the current campaign and was well handled by referee Joe Smith of Kingston.

T. Little, P. Little and Ken Davis were the marksmen for the home team and all the goals were well deserved. The whole team played particularly well, with the Little boys, Davs. Ingram and Beatty and Morton in goal being much in the limelight. The latter saved repeatedly with Tweed invading. The first period was scoreless with Stirling counting two in the second and another in the third canto.

Campbell was brilliant for Tweed with Alex Geraldi and Cripps, his frank men being equally effective. The only accident occurred in the second period when George Gerald was carried off after falling heavily to the ice. He did not return to the scene of the conflict but was reported as feeling much better after the game.

Stirling have a commanding lead in the race for home and wide Madoc, the second place team is giving them a battle, nevertheless Bill Wright's team are apparently going to regain the laurels lost to Campbellford last year. Early in the season reports stated that the Stirling team was completely "shot" by retirements of old players and the removal of others to different towns and Campbellford was "called" upon to do great feat. However, with the season about half over, Mr. Bill Whitty and his henchman are occupying an enviable rung in the ladder and unless some fall, they're going to cop the bunting this year. Seven hundred witnessed last night's game.

Tweed—Goal McGee; defence M. Geraldi and O. Geraldi; centre Campbell; wings, Cripps and A. Geraldi. subs, Marchand, Boyd, and F. Geraldi.

Stirling—Goal Morton; defence Ingram and Beatty; centre Davis; wings P. Little and T. Little. subs, Acters and Wallace.

Referee—Joe Smith, Kingston.

RESIGNATION EXPECTED

Ottawa, January 29.—An early announcement of the resignation of Hon. H. A. McKeown as chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners is fully expected. While no official statement is forthcoming, it is learned in well-informed circles that Judge McKeown, who was formerly Chief Justice of New Brunswick, is resigning. No successor is yet mentioned.

ALBERTA PARTIES FACING TASKS AT JANUARY SESSIONS

(By The Canadian Press)

EDMONTON—Preparations for the government's program of legislation at the coming session of the Alberta legislature, which opens January 29 are well under way. Several acts have been drafted and the government has held frequent council meets to line up policies practically certain to be up for legislative action.

Foremost on the sessional program will likely be the legislation necessary to set up the government's new natural resources department. One or more acts under this heading will be introduced and will, it is expected, constitute the most important business of the session.

Nothing in the way of private legislation has yet come to the clerk of the legislative assembly. It is understood however, that there will be the usual number of city charter amendments and a bill authorizing the construction of paved trackways, to be operated on a toll basis, will be brought in for the third time.

The Alberta Motor Association probably will ask for legislation affecting vehicular traffic on the highways.

There will be twenty-one new faces in the personnel of the legislature this year, representing the changes brought about by the general election in June last. With 63 seats — an increase of three as a result of re-distribution — the party strength of the house will be as follows:

U. F. A.	29
Liberals	17
Conservatives	6
Labor	4
Independent	3

Col. P. C. Jamieson, Conservative, was elected on January 8th in a by-election held to fill the Edmonton seat left vacant by the death of Col. C. F. Weaver.

From the point of view of the size of the opposition, a much livelier session is expected. In the last house the combined opposition totaled 17. In the next legislature as the result of the loss of four seats by the U.F.A. and addition of three seats brought about through a re-distribution measure previous to the election there will be an opposition composed of twenty-four members. However, Labor, as a rule, lines up with the U.F.A. on the majority of government policies, so the opposition is not quite so formidable as it might appear at first sight.

Likewise while the largest single opposition group with eleven members. They will take their seats on the floor of the house under their new leader, George H. Webster, veteran Calgary member chosen chieftain at a Liberal caucus on December 30 last. While the Liberals failed to elect their provincial politics of a brilliant young Edmonton lawyer, W. R. Howson, will be watched with interest. Howson was the lone Liberal to be elected in Edmonton at the last election. He was defeated for the Liberal leadership only by a small margin.

Conservatives also come back to the house with increased representation. When the smoke of battle cleared after the election last June they had returned six members, as compared with four in the last house. Their triumphs were confined entirely to the cities of Edmonton and Calgary, in each of which they elected three members. They have suffered a severe loss in the defection of A. A. McGillivray, K.C., former provincial leader, who decided to leave provincial politics and return to his private practice. However, the party has been showing renewed vigor under the able leadership of D. M. Duggan.

Labor comes back weaker than in the previous house, electing only four members. They had six in the last house.

For the first time in three years there is a representation of Independents. Three members of this group were returned last June.

Changes in the government ranks are not numerous. All cabinet members were re-elected and only the defeat of a private member, here and there, recorded. There has been no cabinet realignment since the last election, although Premier Brownlee has announced that this is coming soon. Hon. G. Reid has taken over the duties of minister of lands and mines in addition to the provincial treasurership.

In a recent statement Premier Brownlee, in view of the serious economic situation at present prevailing, appealed for the co-operation of all parties in the conduct of the business of the legislature.

OVER 300 ANCIENT CAVES DISCOVERED

SANTANDER, Spain — A parish priest with a passion for prehistoric research has discovered more caves and remains of Stone-age man in Northern Spain than any other scientist. The Rev. Fr. Jesus Carballo, doctor of science, director of government archaeological explorations in the North and besides all that a musician of distinction, has found more than 200 caves, of which some are scientifically important for prehistoric study.

The best known caves of the region are those of Altamira, about twenty miles from Santander. These contain "the world's oldest art gallery" —pictures of bison, deer, wild boar and other animals painted on the cave roof anywhere from ten or twenty thousand years ago. Estimates of experts vary that much. Dr. Carballo showed some of the most important bone carvings of prehistoric man yet known to science, which he personally dug out of various caves.

The earliest known examples of man's progress for artistic expression are in the Altamira caves. It had been believed that paintings of Egypt and Babylon dating to some 4,000 years B. C., were the oldest in the world. But this idea was revised with the finds at Altamira. The cave dwellers had yellow and red ochres and charcoal. With these they produced black, and shades of yellow, red and grey. They used these as crayons, making outline sketches, and also grade them into paint, by pulverizing the coloring materials and mixing them with animal blood or fat. They used paint brushes of feathers or animals' hair, and used sea shells as paint mixers and containers. They used torches, or sea shells filled with animal fat in which floated a burning wick, for light to see the paint by. Through the untold centuries their paintings on the stone roof of the cave became partially fossilized.

Also, after an interlude in the glacial period—for these Altamira men hunted the woolly rhinoceros and painted their pictures at a time when the arctic came down over most of what is now Europe—the entrance to the cave crumbled in, sealing it off from air and the outside world, until it was accidentally found some sixty years ago. This seclusion, and the partial fossilization of the pictures, is considered to account for their remarkable preservation so long.

The cave was found because a hunter's dog got jammed in a rock crevice. Removing boulders to release him the cave opening was noticed, but it was not until ten years later that some investigators spied the ancient pictures. And then almost another half century passed before real scientific researches were made. Most of the most important work has been done within ten years.

Children suffering from worms soon show the symptoms, and any mother can detect the presence of these parasites by the wildness and restless of the child. Until expelled and the system cleared of them, the child cannot regain its health. Miller's Worm Powders are prompt and efficient, not only for the eradication of worms, but also as a toner up for children that are run down in consequence.

Springbrook

Springbrook, Jan. 27 By Mail— A large number attended the dance given by the I.O.O.F. in the Orange Hall on Tuesday last and all report an enjoyable time.

A shower was given at the home of Mr. C. Burkitt's in honor of their son Charley who was married on Jan. 15th.

Quite a few attended the social evening given by the Ladies' Aid on Thursday evening at Mr. A. P. Willman's home.

We are sorry to report Mrs. Walter Heath is quite ill.

C. Heath has returned home from Belleville hospital and is on the gain.

The farmers are very busy hauling wood.

Mr. Percy Bateman and family spent Sunday at Mrs. Fenny.

Mr. Will Fitzgerald, George Thompson and A. Moon attended the hockey match at Frankford on Tuesday last.

A member from Springbrook attended the card party at the home of Mrs. Geo. Eastwood at Bonarlaw.

The young people are busy getting up a play entitled "Headstrong Joan."

A Prime Dressing for Wounds.—In some instances and workshops carbolic acid is kept for use in cauterizing wounds and cuts obtained by the workmen. Far better to keep on hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It is just as quick in action and does not sear the skin or burn the flesh.

HUMANITARIAN EFFORT

A temple of humanity, the cornerstones of which are human happiness and freedom was the description of the social building which Canada is rearing for her citizenship, said the Hon. W. G. Martin, minister of Public Welfare in the Province of Ontario in the course of an address before the city-county dinner at Hotel Quinte on Tuesday evening. He was speaking with particular reference to those who are handicapped physically, and mentally and socially. No finer picture of a nation than as a temple in which all her people are happy and free could be drawn by the strongest idealist or the most common sense advocate.

This ideal demands of those who are equipped with the ordinary faculties and surrounded with the usual blessings of life consideration and thoughtfulness, even a sacrifice if necessary in the way of tax to maintain the advanced legislation which is helping the unfortunate, the physically unfit, the mentally retarded, the physically unfit, the aged and the undisciplined to enjoy life. As Hon. Mr. Martin put it, who would refuse to pay a little towards this object which will give a real sporting chance to those who but for advanced legislation would not have a fighting chance, while we spend money by the millions for roads and education?

Principal Bishop of Albert College, introducing the minister laid before the gathering a very clear outline of the form and function of modern governments especially with relation to these new developments in which the province is becoming a big brother and the parent to the unfortunate and handicapped.

It was fitting that this whole question should be brought before city and county legislators, the men who find the money which makes such legislation largely possible. Only with their sympathy and co-operation can such a system work to the best advantage.

The province in the part of parent to unfortunate children or as guardian of the adult who is distressed with age and poor in world's goods is a realized ideal which does credit to the philanthropic and sociological workers of the province.

HEREDITARY QUALIFICATIONS?

Is there heredity in council service? One proof of it comes from Tudor and Cashel, where James Sprackett followed at some distance his father George Sprackett as member of the municipal council. To add substantial evidence it need only be added that the latter has this year joined another council—the city council. That a family seems to have many have qualification of mental and social adaptability to fit them for the office of representative will be admitted. But if there is no heredity shown in this place the question is then one for psychologists to solve.

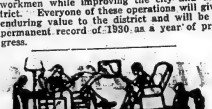
THE FUTURE

Further improvements in the city are looked upon as an almost immediate undertaking in the way of construction which is to open up in the next few months. This all means improvement in civic attraction and in the creation of a civic spirit as well as the accession of more taxes to the exchequer, to make further improvements possible.

PERMANENCY

Permanent roads are coming on the county roadways, that seems evident after hearing the discussion in the county council. The method of payment is a secondary matter and is not yet decided but permanency must be a factor in future road building.

Evidences of the value of enduring roads is growing year by year. County councils see the ever-increasing stress laid on permanently surfaced highways which stretch across the country and which are beginning to network the province and the Dominion. Further evidence is shown in the cities where roadway construction is today largely of a permanent character.



WHAT LEVEL-HEADEDNESS MEANT

Now it has been told. Superintendent H. Legate of the Canada Cement plant at Point Anne, told a body of representatives yesterday that the company had thought of shutting down for three months this year but the amount of concrete construction in the city in the bridges across the Moira River, the new filtration plant at Belleville, in the Point Anne road and in the stretch of pavement above Rednersville, meant that there would be not a shutdown of a single day this year.

This indicates what can be accomplished when times are said to be bad and when councils "lose their head." Belleville might have put off with risk to the travelling public the construction of the two bridges spanning the Moira River, and with risk to the health of the citizens the undertaking of the water purification plant; the Point Anne lane might have been left as it was and the road construction in Prince Edward might not have gone on, but had these undertakings not gone forward, many men would still be waiting for the work they are looking for, industry would not have been encouraged when it needed the encouragement. It might have satisfied a few not to have begun these highly important works which are absolutely essential to the welfare of this part of the country, but the great majority were benefitted.

Mr. Legate in so pointing out how level-headedness had meant continuity of operation at the plant, drew a true picture of the importance of sane expenditure and undertaking when times are depressed. Councils should feel that continuity of policy is an essential factor in the welfare of any city as well as of any industrial plant. To eliminate expenditure which is the only means of giving men work is like taking the little food a man can possibly get away from him. To wait for the depression to pass would simply have left the undertaking of a good work behind for a year or so and have given more reason for people to cry "blue ruin" and depression.

It is to Belleville's credit and to the credit of the authorities who supervised the construction of the Point Anne road and the Prince Edward road that they were not afraid to be progressive. It cannot be said that failed to encourage industry and to help the workmen while improving the city and district. Everyone of these operations will give enduring value to the district and will be a permanent record of 1930 as a year of progress.

SIDELIGHTS

THE BLIND MEN AND THE ELEPHANT

It was six men of Indostan,
To learning much inclined,
Who went to see the elephant,
(Though all of them were blind),
That each by observation
Mighty satisfy his mind.

The first approached the elephant
And, happening to fall
Against his broad and sturdy side,
At once began to bawl:
"Why, bless me! but the elephant
Is very like a wall."

The second feeling of the tusk,
Cried: "Ho, What have we here
So very round and smooth and sharp?
To me, 'tis very clear,
This wonder of an elephant
Is very like a spear!"

The third approached the animal,
And, happening to take
The squirming trunk within his hands,
Thus boldly up he spake:
"I see," quoth he, "the elephant
Is very like a snake!"

The fourth reached out his eager hand
And felt about the knee:
"What most this mighty beast is like
Is very plain," quoth he:
"'Tis clear enough the elephant
Is very like a tree!"

The fifth who chanced to touch the ear
Said: "E'en the blindest man
Can tell what this resembles most—
Defy the fact who can:
This marvel of an elephant
Is very like a fan."

The sixth no sooner had begun
About the beast to grope
Than, seizing on the swinging tail
That fell within his scope,
"I see," quoth he "the elephant
Is very like a rope!"

And so these men of Indostan
Disputed loud and long,
Each in his own opinion
Exceeding stiff and strong;
Though each was partly in the right,
And all were in the wrong.

—And so these men of industry
Disputed loud and long,
Each in his own opinion,
Exceeding stiff and strong;
Though each was partly in the right,
And all were in the wrong. —Anon

SCISSORS PLAY an important part in the making of a newspaper and many a gaping hole is filled by an interesting article written by some other newspaper chap somewhere East of Sugz or West of Times Square. All quite correct as adding variety to the daily newspaper menu compiled by the men on the job. But! oh, me! that there should be duts. The but in this instance is that due credit should be given to the origin of the clipped article. Recently I forgot to credit an article to the New York Times whence it originated and soon was apprised of the fact. The article in question concerned what has been called in sporting circles the Dunraven affair, when Lord Dunraven challenged for the America Cup and objected to the unsportsmanlike tactics used to defeat him. The article was distinctly U.S.A. in flavor and lack of credit to the Times writer rather put me in Dutch with a local yachtsman with a long memory, and small blame to him for when I came to read the clipped article closely what had escaped my eye in first place became painfully apparent, that the Times writer was accusing Lord Dunraven of being a "poor loser." In yachting circles the world over the opinion was general that the challenger had been unfairly treated and was perfectly justified in letting the world know it. Let this be a warning to all good newspaper men, keep a clipping if you must but give credit where credit is due lest some bloke away down in New York or Timbuctoo saddle you with sentiments just the opposite to what you really cherish. Many thanks to Sidelight reader for calling my attention to the omission.

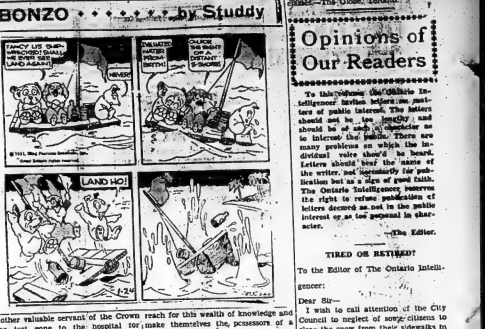
RAILWAYS AND MOTOR TRUCKS

The Supreme Court of Florida has made a ruling which promises to affect wide attention, dealing with a subject of growing importance in every country. It has refused to allow a permit to a motor-truck line paralleling the Seaboard Air Line Railway, on the ground "that the territory was being served adequately by the railway."—Toronto Globe.



COMPULSORY INSURANCE OF MOTORISTS

Cases multiply constantly to prove the folly of the theory that every driver should be allowed one accident before being required to prove financial responsibility. In a recent case, a motorist suffered severe physical injuries which kept him out of work without pay for fourteen weeks. His car was wrecked. But since the drunken motorist who was the cause of the accident had no money and no insurance, the victim was without recourse. He was not helped by the offender being sent to jail for three months. The provincial statutes protect the public against loss from injuries due to defects in the highways. It is quite as important that they should protect the public from loss through mechanical defects of cars or physical and mental defects of drivers whom the provincial authorities permit to use the highways. No motorist to whom compulsory insurance would be a hardship has any business upon the highways where he may become the author of injuries for which he can give no compensation.—Toronto Telegram.

WORKING CABINET MINISTERS TO DEATH

The news that Hon. O. S. Henry has been indisposed suggests that the new premier may have erred in taking on too much work. The probability is that no man ever should undertake to run more than one portfolio in addition to the office of prime minister. Though Mr. Henry is long familiar with the business of government, he follows an exceptionally able man, a session of the House approaches, and he should conserve his energies for a task which is heavy even though he is supported by the general confidence of the people.—At Ottawa.

Opinions of Our Readers

To this column the Belleville Intelligencer invites letters on matters of public interest. The letters should not be too long and should be written in a manner as to interest the public. There are many problems on which the individual voice should be heard. Letters should bear the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication but as a sign of good faith. The Ontario Intelligencer reserves the right to refuse publication of letters deemed as not in the public interest or as too personal in character.

—The Editor.

TIRED OR RETIRED?

To the Editor of The Ontario Intelligencer:

Dear Sir—

I wish to call attention of the City Council to neglect of some citizens to clear the snow from their sidewalks in West Belleville. Owners of vacant lots, particularly corner lots are the worst offenders, and citizens who keep their own lots clear of snow are obliged to wade through accumulations of snow and slush left on walks because of the neglect of owners. One glaring instance might be cited on Henry street, where the snow has not been disturbed this winter, also the lot is used as a dumping ground for rubbish, a fact which is resented by citizens living in that vicinity. There are men out of employment who would be glad of the opportunity of shoveling snow from the walks, why not give them the chance?

Yours truly,
FED UP.

INTERNATIONAL PAPER and POWER COMPANY

Owned, including subsidiaries, by 70,000 shareholders in Canada, Great Britain and the United States. The Company's securities are listed and traded in on the Montreal and New York Stock Exchanges.

RENDERING a public service comparable in importance to its wholesale deliveries of power for industrial purposes, Canadian Hydro-Electric Corporation Limited serves more than 19,000 homes, farms, factories and stores in areas adjacent to International's Canadian water power developments.

In southwestern Quebec and eastern Ontario, its subsidiary, Gatineau Electric Light Company Limited, now reaches an area of more than 5,000 square miles, with an estimated population of 250,000. Over 1,100 miles of transmission and distribution lines serve 126 municipalities, while more than 2,500 farms are included among the Company's customers.

Residential use of electricity as evidenced by sales of domestic appliances through the Company's retail stores, and by kilowatt hour consumption of current, is rapidly increasing in this progressive area.

Industrial activity in the territory served by the Company is indicated by the wide diversity of products manufactured, including flour, lumber, tobacco and shoes, furniture, ice, foundry castings and dairy products; clothing, cement, toys and pulp and paper products of almost every description.

What International Paper and Power Company is, who owns it, what are its politicals and where and of what nature its undertakings, is being told in a series of advertisements, of which this is the eighth.

THE GOLDEN DAWN

by PETER B. KYNE

"Miss Penelope Catlin has just been in the bank, Chief," he told McNamara. "She has purchased a letter of credit for ten thousand dollars and has withdrawn in cash the remainder of the funds on deposit to the credit of her checking account, amounting to eleven hundred dollars."

"Is she to the bank now?"

"Yes."

"Have one of your clerks follow her. Give him expense money—I'll be responsible for its repayment. And when you get his report please telephone me."

At three-thirty the banker telephoned again. "She purchased a ticket to San Francisco on one of the buses leaving here at three-fifteen. She spent two hours shopping."

The buses, McNamara knew, entered the city via Mission street, the bus depot was at Fifth and Mission streets Ella Cates lived on Howard street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth. Howard street runs between Mission and Folsom—and Flynn's car had been found abandoned at Sixteenth and Folsom. Nance was smart. She had left the car a block from Ella Cates' home and walked there. McNamara reasoned the incoming bus would drop the girl off at Sixteenth and Mission streets—a regular stop—and she would then make her way to the Cates domain's house.

He glanced at his watch. He had an hour and a half to intercept her; for that hour and a half he must have Flynn and Angelloti in another section of the city. To his chagrin he discovered they were out on detail, so he decided he would ride in a taxi. He called a taxi and drove to Ella Cates' address. He discovered it to be a cheap wood-en apartment house, but the directory in the vestibule give him no information as to which apartment Ella Cates lived in, so he rang the landlady's bell and the door opened to admit him. To his inquiry regarding Mrs. Cates, he was informed that she had moved to parts unknown a week before, nor could she give him any clue to aid him in discovering her.

As he came out the apartment house he glanced warily around and was amused to observe Detective Angelloti leaning against a cigar stand across the street. He was certain the detective had recognized him, for Angelloti immediately turned his back. The chief walked to Mission street, boarded a street car and was at the bus terminus two minutes before the bus which Nance had left in San Jore rolled in. But Nance was not among the passengers that alighted.

McNamara chuckled. Flynn and Angelloti would waste a great deal of time watching that apartment house in vain. Nance, discovering Ella Cates had moved, had sought quarters elsewhere. When puzzled McNamara, however, was the girl's failure to communicate with him or Lanny; and he knew now that she did not intend to. The fact that she had purchased a letter of credit was proof that she intended leaving the country, and the more the excellent fellow contemplated this impending move and more inclined was he to regard it as not unmixed blessing.

The more he though the matter over, the more inclined did he become to take a practical and policeman-like view of the situation. While Nance remained in San Francisco she would be a constant menace to himself and Lanny; if captured she might, during one of her uncontrolled moments, consider it a great joke to tell the world how she had been enabled to escape capture so long.

"I can't baby the world," he decided. "I'll let her go. She'll probably live abroad. And when her letter of credit is gone she may remember who she is long enough to draw more checks. I can always get a line on her through the bank, and if Steve and Lenny still insist on salvaging this nut I'll tell them where to find her. Me, I'm through. If I keep this pace up I'll be as big a nut as she is."

INSTALLMENT XXI

There is more than a modicum of truth in the ancient adage, "Out of sight, out of mind." Dan McNamara lived a very full life; and when Nance Belden had definitely passed beyond his ken and he knew himself safe at last from the prying of Messrs. Flynn and Angelloti into his private affairs, he forgot the girl, for pressing matters of great importance claimed his attention and he required more first-class assistance than he was receiving. He resolved, therefore, to give Flynn and Angelloti a week in which to make up their minds they had lost the trail; then to call them in.

On the sixth day, however, he received information that the doughty pair were still as busy as two pups with a feather duster. A beautiful lady called on him at his office and told him so.

"And who might you be" he demanded.

"I'm Susan Engelbright."

"I am not aware that I have the pleasure of your acquaintance, Miss Engelbright."

"You haven't. I was sent up from Oakland."

"Oh! Alec Sapphire Susie! I've heard of you lately."

"Perhaps...I hocked three twelve-carat sapphire rings to raise money, and the pawns called me Sapphire Susie after that."

"I see you got them out of hock again, Susie."

The girl nodded. "Nance Belden got them out for me."

"Pret of the bargain for smuggling that letter out of San Quentin for her, I suppose."

"Never mind what it was for." Sapphire Susie smiled archly and unafraid. "I started it and she kept the word."

"Check or cash?" McNamara was frightened. If Sapphire Susie had been given a check, then she knew Nance Belden's name and the name of her bank. And that would be fatal.

"I don't know. I gave her the pawn tickets and she got back the rings. I don't know just how."

"Whew!" He was relieved.

"A week ago tomorrow."

"And you say Detective-Sergeant Flynn has been giving you a bad half hour?"

"Yes, he has."

"Well, that's his business. Nance Belden escaped from San Quentin and naturally he's interested in apprehending her. You were recognized by the guard at the main gate two weeks before Nance escaped. Miss Lanning, a friend of the Belden girl, had visited the prisoner that day, and since Miss Lanning was the only visitor Nance Belden had in San Quentin, naturally she was suspected of carrying a letter for delivery to the man who helped Nance escape. You rode down to Owensbrae with Miss Lanning, and she slipped the letter to you, of course. Flynn knows that. But why do you come to me with your tale of woe?"

"I've run straight since getting out of the pen. I served my time and I want to be let alone—that's why! Flynn told me that if I didn't confess through and tell him where he could find Nance Belden he'd see to it that some thing nasty happened to me. I don't know where Nance Belden is. And I want protection from Patrick Flynn."

"You seem pretty sure of me, don't you?"

"Well, Nance told me that you were one human being. And I called on Miss Lanning last night to tell her to warn Nance that the dicks were after her and Miss Lanning told me to see you about it. She said you'd see I got a square deal."

"She did so, now? How did Miss Lanning treat you otherwise?"

"She came across and gave me a hundred dollars and told me to be on good as I could. The old girl is sure a darling."

"Did you ask her for the hundred?" "Of course not."

The Chief cited her owlishly, for he distrusted Sapphire Susie and wondered if she might not be working in the interests of Flynn and Angelloti.

"This is interesting," he admitted shrewdly. "Of course it only keep in touch with the upper office through the captain of detectives. If he set Flynn on to this he should have interviewed you a couple of weeks ago. Seems to me he has overlooked a good bet. If you've been under surveillance a week ago he'd have picked up Nance Belden when she came to you to deliver the rings. Flynn's a cracker-jack detective," he added sadly, "but this case is a bit stumping."

"That bird don't slip very far, take it from me, Chief. He met me on the street the day before yesterday and no sliced I was wearing my big ring and my ear-drops. 'Hello, kid,' he says, 'I see you got your sapphires out again.' I says to him, 'Fall dead, you bum,' and walked on. And the next night he come up to my room, 'Nance Belden got them sapphires out of hock for you, Susie, my dear,' he says. 'I want that frail. Where is she?' "

"And you wouldn't tell him, even if you could?"

"That's a fact. I wouldn't snitch on her."

"You wouldn't expect me to interfere in the work of a detective-sergeant when he appears to be doing a good job, would you, Susie? But I agree with my word. Susie, that if you run straight in this city I'll see to it that you're not harassed. Of course you helped Nance Belden to escape from San Quentin, and I know it. But we can't prove it; if I could I'd put you in the bird cage this minute. And I'll not put Flynn off the case, although if he gets too rough I'll step him."

"He's got me scared to death," Sapphire Susie declared, and commenced to weep a little; whereat McNamara realized she had been really frightened. She shook his hand warmly, blanked him and departed

For several minutes McNamara sat thinking, a smile, faintly tender, illuminating his rugged countenance. So Lanny infatuated Sapphire Susie and given her a hundred dollars and begged her to be good girl in the future. What a rare good scout Lanny was! And how good God had been to all concerned! In their pursuit of Nance, Flynn and Angelloti had followed such a hot trail they had forgotten Sapphire Susie was a pal of Nance's. In afterwards, when the trail grew cold, they had suddenly remembered her. That Flynn was a marvel, and he could not be promoted instantly. In all probability he had not at first connected Nance Belden with the girl with Susie's sapphire. Undoubtedly he had jumped to the conclusion that the girl had been up to her old trick of remailing some wealthy and socially prominent masculine jackass. So he looked up her record in the police files. Here he had discovered something that must have convinced him of Susie's total innocence of complicities during her trial; certainly she had not carried them to San Quentin with her, and the obvious conclusion was that she had pawned them to raise money to pay her attorney. In the hope of discovering the identity of Susie's latest victim (who, he assumed had redeemed them for her) Flynn had thereupon made a round of the pawn shops and located the one from which the jewels had lately been redeemed; from the pawn broker he had secured a description of the one who had redeemed them. No pawn broker would be likely to forget Nance Belden's nose!

McNamara shuddered. If Nance should visit Sapphire Susie now, she would undoubtedly walk straight into the arms of the waiting Flynn or Angelloti.

Well, Nance Belden had stolen a dozen pairs of silk hose, but apparently Penelope Catlin paid her debts. The chief wondered if he had loaned Nance Belden or Penelope Catlin two hundred dollars for of course they were two separate and distinct personalities inhabiting the same body. If Nance Belden had accepted the loan, then McNamara could kiss the money goodbye. If, on the other hand Penelope Catlin had accepted it, then, some day, when Nance had changed places with Penelope, he would get it back. Well, he could trace her progress through the world by the drafts she would cash. Her bank in San Jose would give him that information.

He took down the telephone and called thebank. Yes, a draft had just come in. Drawn for four hundred and thirty-five dollars in favor of one French Line, dated three days previously at New York. It had come through the mail. Drawn by one Nancy Namara thanked the president of the bank and called up the Pioneer Line's San Francisco office. After some difficulty he discovered that four hundred and thirty-five dollars was the amount of one first cabin passage to Havre and that the Ile de France had sailed from New York during the past three days.

Instantly the McNamara shot straight telegrams to police headquarters in New York, requesting that the passenger list of the Ile de France be checked to see whether Nance Belden and Penope Catlin had taken passage on her. For several hours later a reply to the effect that Nance Belden was not aboard but that Penelope Catlin was.

"Nothing is lost if you know where it is." McNamara decided happily and sent a cable to the prefect of police at Havre, requesting him to pick up Penelope Catlin on her arrival there, put a shadow her and report by cable, collect, the girl's detinution, the names and addresses of those who should meet her and any other information that would aid in keeping track of the girl.

INSTALMENT XXII

The following day McNamara sent for Detective-Sergeants Flynn and Angelloti. As they arraged themselves more or less at attention, in front of his desk, the chief leaned back in his chair and bent upon the pair a long, severe and penetrating look. They grew a little fidgety before he spoke.

"Well, boys, how are your private affairs prospering?"

Both shrugged, unwilling to be definite.

"They are unprosperous," the chief challenged, "so I have called you in to inform you that you may now quite willing to abandon your private practise and return to work for the department you know. I may have been mistaken, Angelloti, but I thought I saw you out in Mission street when you were supposed to be working on that racketeer killing over in North Oakland. However, I'll overlook that on the assumption that you permitted yourself to be led astray by Flynn. Flynn, you by off Sapphire Susie until that enterprising young woman does something you can pin on her. She's bring her in."

"She's done something and I'll pin it on her yet," Flynn said grimly, "and you know what it is." Flynn, being Irish, was unwilling that his chief should regard him as deficient in intelligence and enterprise.

"We understand each other thoroughly, Flynn. You've been staked by Belden, girl and you've made a mess of it." He opened his desk drawer and drew out two envelopes. One was addressed to Flynn and the other to Angelloti and each envelope bore the return address of a prominent New York hotel; but were neither stamped nor postmarked. From the envelopes he drew in a large envelope addressed to me," McNamara explained. "They're set up for suspected detective by letter and watched to they opened them and drew forth typewritten letters and five hundred and fifty dollars in bills. Flynn's letter was, undoubtedly, a carbon copy of Angelloti's.

Both men read the letter and handed it to the chief, who read:

Dear Mr. Flynn:

You good scout. You have worked so hard and so intelligently and in such dreadfully hard luck that my heart goes out to you. You were working for the reward, of course—no doubt because you needed the money. You and Mr. Angelloti would have had to divide two hundred and fifty dollars head you recaptured me, but just to prove I'm a sport and not holding any mean little grudge, I'm sending you each two hundred and fifty dollars. Please be a good scout and try to forget all the unpleasant incidents. You will never get me now so do give up your attempts, like good boys.

The letter was unsigned.

"How much did you get, Angelloti?" McNamara queried softly.

"Two fifty, Chief."

"Santa Claus has been good to you two, hasn't he? Well, are you both will ing to go back to your regular jobs now?"

Flynn threw the money on the Chief's desk: "We swore an oath—" he began, but McNamara cut him short.

"So have I!" he reminded Flynn fiercely.

"We know every move you've made in this case," Flynn shouted.

"And I knew every move you were going to make before you made it."

Angelloti tucked his present in his pocket. "Come on, Flynn," he urged. "I'll be called off for money," Flynn persisted stubbornly.

But McNamara swept the money on his desk into the drawer. "The widows and orphans of the Policeman's Benevolent and Protective Association will be glad to get this. On your way you and your oath."

Flynn sighed deeply and went out. Fifteen minutes later he came back and said humbly "Chief, I've changed my mind."

CONFIDENCE MAN'S OPERATIONS HALTED

(By The Canadian Press)

ROCKLAND — Alleged to have collected thousands of dollars during the past year by selling persons their own eye glasses, a man giving his name as John Fay of Bangor, was arrested here by police who said the action had put an end to one of the newest and most lucrative confidence games operated in Maine.

Fay's alleged method of operation said the State constabulary, always worked and the victims paid without realizing they were being duped. Posing as an expert optician from Boston and New York, according to charges made, Fay paid daily visits to the elderly and infirm in various cities in Maine, examining eyes free of charge. New glasses would be ordered immediately "to avoid illness brought on by poor eyesight." Some patients were told they would lose their sight entirely if new glasses were not secured.

After prescribing, police say, Fay would ask that the old glasses be turned over to him. These were later resold to the persons from whom they were taken. In some cases glasses sold to patients were taken from their neighbors, while others were sold in different cities. The "optician" collected a fee for examining the eyes and a fee for furnishing the right glasses to be used.

After these examinations had been carried on for several months, complaints began to deluge the police of cities and towns throughout Maine. More than 200 complaints, involving upwards of 500 victims, were received.

MADOC STUDENTS DEFEAT TWEED

Sergt.-Major McKenzie, Popular Resident of Village, Passes

Madoc, Jan. 27. By Mail.—Tweed High School hockey team played their return game at the Madoc arena on Monday evening, when the Madoc High School team won, 3-2. Mr. Wright acted as referee. Mr. Tom Moffatt of Tweed Consolidated school as manager of the Tweed boys and Mr. J. R. Hough of Madoc High school manager of the Madoc team.

The teams seemed to be pretty even ly matched, and the game might have been anybody's at different periods of the evening. Madoc opened the scoring early in the first period and kept the lead through two whole periods, by a good combination play terminating in a pass from Ross to Akey, who secured the first goal to the delight of the Madoc spectators. Penalties were few in this period but everyone were playing hockey. Tw Tweed were handed out two penalties and to Madoc, one. Tweed proved unable to score in this period.

At the beginning of the second period, Weed scored on a long rush, shooting through the defence, and hitting the net for the second count. Madoc gained one penalty in this period, but though Tweed tried every variety of combination, they were unable to beat Madoc's well-tried defence and vigilant goalie.

The third period found Tweed lads determing to place a counter, and for some time the rubber was passed from one to the other, no Aber side making much head way. After several minutes of rough give-and-take, Tweed each succeeded in placing a goal, to be quickly followed by another, thus tying the game. Penalties were more frequent now, often resulting in scraps from each side going off together. After one such brief rest, Akey succeeded in securing the puck from a scramble, and lost no time in making sure of another count for Madoc, leaving the final score of 3-2 in favor of Madoc's high school team.

Lineup

Tweed—Goal J. McCutcheon; defence J. Ryan; and S. LaFrontaine; centre Maguire; wings L. Meraw and S. Aiher. Subs C. Bashore, R. Cotton and E. Terry.

Madoc—Goal O. Nickle; defence D Ashley and A. Rupert; centre A. Ross, wings, P. Akey and R. Whytock. Subs E. Weir.

The news of the sudden but not unexpected death of Sergeant-Major McKenzie early on Sunday morning, took a gloom over the day for his many friends and neighbors. No More Piles

How to End Terrible Agony Without Salves or Cutting

External treatments cannot permanently end Piles. Nor does cutting remove the cause.

The cause is internal—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. The veins are flabby—the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles an internal medicine must be used to heal and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt a specialist, after years of study developed a real internal Pile remedy. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients, with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases. And then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist.

Don't waste time on external remedies or think of the pain and expense of an operation until you have tried HEM-ROID. J. S. McKeown's Drug Store will supply you and guarantee money-back if it does not end all Pile misery.

They Do Us More Good Thanany other Medicine

Says Toronto Man of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mr. McMullen Always Keeps a Box in the House

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 26 (Special) — What most people want these days is a medicine that will can turn to with perfect confidence in time of need. Mr. McMullen, 341 McRoberts Avenue, Toronto, has found such a remedy — Dodd's Kidney Pills. He writes:—

"We are never without Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house. Whenever we feel out of sorts we taken them and find they do us more good than any other medicine. We have used them for six years."

Your health, strength and vitality depend upon the condition of your blood, for it is through the blood that every part of the body is nourished and built up. To enjoy good health the blood must be kept pure. Dodd's Kidney Pills are an excellent blood purifier. They do not affect the Liver or stomach, they are just an effective Kidney medicine.

DIAMOND RUSH FAILS DIGGERS ARE WARNED

(By The Canadian Press)

LICHTENBURG, South Africa—Disillusioned diggers have been returning to Lichtenburg from Namaqualand, to which there was a rush a short time ago as a result of rumors that diamonds could be obtained in large quantities on the ground. It was at first reported that it was possible for diggers to overturn the seashore and scoop diamonds up in buckets, but police soon put an end to talk of this kind by appearing on the shore in large force to prevent any illicit digging.

One of the disappointed diggers told a newspaper correspondent here that while he was at the Namaqualand seashore some illicit operations were being conducted at night, but there were 300 police to about 70 diggers where he was and the latter could not do anything. This man described how illegal digging was resorted to on the seashore.

Half-naked diggers, he said, buried themselves in the sand during the day, allowing only their heads to be above the ground. They secreted themselves under bushes, and at night left their hiding places and scoured the goods. In some cases they would be out for two or three nights in succession, subsisting only on biltong. The government issued a warning to diggers to keep away from the supposed Eldorado as follows:

"With reference to the sensational statements published in the Press as to the existence of large quantities of diamonds in the sea off the coast of Namaqualand, the government desires to warn diggers that these statements are entirely false and calculated to mislead people to proceed to Namaqualand, through difficult and inhospitable country, only to find that when they get there they are faced with great hardships and no means of livelihood. The government has prohibited all prospecting on Crown land north of Port Nolloth and on the foreshore and in the sea for the reason that it is not desirable to allow the public access to Crown lands in close proximity to the State diggings, and any person found trespassing or prospecting on such land will be immediately arrested."

Marmora

Marmora, Jan. 28 (By Mail)—The dance held in the Town Hall on Friday evening under the auspices of the young men of the village, was a decided success. The hall was artistically decorated in colors of gold and purple. Excellent music was furnished by Tommy Mason and his Commodores of Belleville. Serpentine and cap novelty dances were much enjoyed. Miss Eva Jakster supplied the prize to the Lucky Spot Dance.

Among the ladies from Belleville and Stirling were, the Misses Margaret Carlton, Helen Elliott, Bernice Davison, Phyllis Davies and Faith Stillman; Miss Mandy; Miss Caughlin and Miss Eileen Farrell.

Mr. T. W. Rhind is spending a couple of days in Toronto.

Mr. J. A. Shannon spent the week end in Peterboro and attended the funeral of the late William McPherson.

Miss Nellie McHenry, of Roseneath, visited her sister, Mrs. Archie McCallum for the few days last week.

Messrs. W. Shannon, R. Campbell and P. O'Connor spent Monday evening in Lakefield.

Mr. John Finnegan, cheesemaker at Marmora Cheese Factory, was the winner of the Mills' Trophy for 1930 for the highest scoring cheese. The trophy is a beautiful silver cup presented by A. J. Mills & Co. Limited, of London, England, and awarded through the United Dairymen Cooperative Limited. The cheese is graded on five centres, Belleville, Campbellford, Kingston, Brockville and Montreal. Mr. Finnegan had the high score for all centres, his score being 93.3631. Last year he stood third and in 1928 he was second among all the contestants.

The trophy must be won three times before it becomes the permanent property of the winner. It has been up for competition for four years and no cheesemaker so far has won it twice. It is a high tribute to Mr. Finnegan that he has stood so high for three years in succession. The cup will be in Dunlay's window for some time, where anyone can see it.

Another splendid meeting marked with the addition of close to 100 members was held by the Men's Club of St. Paul's church at the White Hall on Wednesday evening under presidency of C. H. Bunkard.

Under general business mention was made of the receipt of several individual gifts by members. The name of the Rev. F. H. Howard was added to the list of honorary presidents. Owing to the indisposition of Rev. Mr. J. C. Lennon, the Club's pianist, T. L. Jones acted as accompanist.

The program commenced with community singing and stories. S. B. Cheeseman then entertained the gathering with a humorous song "Riding Down from Bangor." W. H. Reynolds gave a most interesting talk on current events, after which James Rice recited "Tim Tompkins." J. P. Baker followed with one of his pleasing songs, "Tuppenny Ride in a Tram Car". Dr. R. E. Lumsden gave a much appreciated paper, "Immunity in Relations to Disease." Jas. Rice gave another recitation and J. F. Baker supplied the closing item. In rendering a whistling song, "He whistled up the same old tune." It was decided that at the next meeting the ladies be invited and every choice program is being drawn up for the occasion.

LIKE A WOMAN

by Ellsworth Davis

The scarred slope of the hill looked forbiddingly steep and inaccessible to Tom Rainey. He flattened out in the hole which resembled a shallow grave and peered cautiously out to right and left where the rest of his company was intrenched. The machine guns on the crest, kept up their vicious, chattering song and unseen death whispered in the grass over Rainey's head. A pitiless, molten August sun leered brazenly from a sky overcast with the smoke of battle. The stunning concussion of big shells drove the breath from his body and fountains of earth dotted the slope ahead of him, the explosions tearing great rents in the ground over which Company A must advance.

Rainey licked parched lips and reached for his canteen. He shook ruefully at the neat round hole bored through it. No water! He was more concerned over the loss of water than he was that the bullet had narrowly missed taking his life.

In fact, life to Rainey wasn't particularly valuable at that moment for a letter in Rainey's pocket told him that the girl whom he loved had chosen the other man. And in an adjoining foxhole was Jack Thorpe, the one who had proved Rainey's successful rival.

Thorpe and Rainey had grown up together in the same small town. They had fought over the privilege of carrying Wanda's books to and from school. The rivalry had persisted from childhood days until high school days and had reached the zenith of bitterness when the young men were in college. War had it abated when they answered the call to the colors.

Wanda had treated them with an impartiality that was characteristic of her sweet nature. She had given each of them a picture and had laughingly evaded any promises that would mean engagement to either at the time the men had entrained for the east.

Rainey's courtship of Wanda had been one of blustering assertion. Thorpe, on the contrary, had carried on his suit with a quiet and deferent persistence that had made the cocky Rainey less sure of himself. Their rivalry had reached a barrier of antagonism between them. Despite the fact that they belonged to the same infantry company, they treated each other as strangers.

Then had come the letter announcing Wanda's engagement to Thorpe. Consequently, Rainey's loss of water and the threat of impending death, were minor things in comparison with his loss of Wanda.

In five minutes they were due to rush the hill crest and in a revealing flash of self-analysis, that often occurs when a man faces the Great Unknown, Rainey had seen himself in a different light. A rush of generosity—usually foreign to his nature—had convinced him that Wanda would be happier with Thorpe than she could be with him.

"But that don't do Thorpe any good now," thought Rainey gloomily. He was too much of a soldier to believe that the hill could be won without an appalling loss of life. Whether the Arbiter of human destinies would snuff out one or both of them could not be determined—but in any event as long as Wanda loved Thorpe, then Thorpe should be spared, Rainey decided.

The flame of self-sacrifice burned away all pettiness. He hunched big shoulders and took a firmer grip on his rifle. He glanced across at Thorpe and grinned. Thorpe smiled in return, and careless of the machine gun bullets, waved a hand.

"Keep your head down, you idiot," yelled Rainey.

"O. K., old man," shouted Thorpe in answer.

Rainey grinned happily. Thorpe was a good scout after all and the thought somewhat eased the soreness of his heart.

The artillery fire redoubled in intensity and a shrieking, blazing, inferno of shell bursts raged on the slope ahead of the waiting Americans. Relentlessly the rain of steel projectiles continued; advancing with clock-like regularity toward the hill crest—leaving death and destruction in their wake.

The first wave of Americans leaped from their lairs and rushed forward behind the advancing curtain of falling shells. Rainey, striding along beside Thorpe, suddenly threw a brawny arm across Thorpe's shoulders, knocking the slighter-built man down just as a German plane swept over the line of men. Its machine gun spitting in a vain attempt to check the invaders.

The men got to their feet again and pushed, stubbornly on until they reached the hill crest where dogged, hand-to-hand fighting took place.

Like a guardian angel in olive-drab, the big Rainey bore the brunt of all attacks upon Thorpe and himself, keeping his burly frame in front of the slenderer man.

"Get back, Rainey—give me a chance to do a little scrapping," panted Thorpe angrily as he tried to dodge around the big man.

"Stay behind me, you little fool, and let someone fight who can!" bellowed Rainey and sent the butt of his rifle crashing into the face of a gray-clad enemy.

Then Rainey stumbled and went down. The wiry Thorpe, his empty, clubbed rifle describing whirling arcs, held off the foe until Rainey had time to scramble to his feet.

"Thanks!" grunted Rainey and again waded into the melee.

Another five minutes of furious fighting cleared the crest and the order was given to dig in. Rainey and Thorpe tumbled into a convenient shell hole and lay there gasping for breath.

Hot work!" wheezed Rainey.

"I'll say! Who in the devil appointed you as my nurse maid?" inquired Thorpe. "I've been in this man's war long enough to look out for myself."

But the friendly light in Thorpe's eyes robbed the words of all sting and Rainey gripped the extended hand of his buddy.

"Seeing that you were the lucky man I decided to keep you safe for Wanda," confessed Rainey.

"Lucky man, my eye!" snorted Thorpe. "I got a letter a week ago telling me that the regiment was off. Wanda said that she didn't know which of us she cared the most for, after all. She said she'd find out after we got home again."

"Wha-a-at!" ——— "Isn't that just like a woman?" questioned Rainey happily.

DELORO SAFETY COMMITTEE MET

R. A. Elliott is Elected Chairman for the Ensuing Year

Marmora, Jan. 27 (by mail) —The annual meeting of the Deloro Safety Committee was held at the hall on Tuesday evening following a sumptuous banquet and the regular meeting. The decorations were of the finest description and the menu served by Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Element and their staff of helpers may be briefly yet fully described as par excellence.

Included in the gathering were the four newly elected men's representatives: L. R. Rundle, Silver plant; H. Neal, Oxide plant; P. Leal, Engineers and L. Huesman, Metals. The first report at the monthly meeting was given by J. A. Rice and S. J. Sanderson followed with the report of the competitive committee. Four of the eight suggestions received had merited award. Two accidents occurred in the past month necessitating only one day lost time. The flag was divided between Oxide and the Engineers and the star was awarded the engineers, Floyd Gray, as chairman of the inspection committee, reported favorably of his tour through the plant. The chairman, R. A. Elliott, appointed the incoming chairmen of this committee as floating member for January.

The statement of the Benevolent Relief Funds was read by C. H. Bullard. J. Judge mentioned a prone method practice given at the Repair Shop and H. Rennie was instructed to carry out similar practices during the current month. W. R. Reynolds, chairman of the publicity committee gave the concluding report.

Annual Meeting

Upon adjournment the annual meeting opened with R. A. Elliott, presiding. Before reading his report Mr. Elliott read a letter received from S. B. Wright, general manager, who expressed the company's appreciation of the enthusiasm still being maintained in the local safety movement. Mr. Elliott expressed the general regret at Mr. Wright's absence. In his report Mr. Elliott remarked that the completion of six years of safety work at Deloro had just been realized. Last year he reminded his hearers was the second best since the inception of the movement. The remainder of the report touched upon general activities of the movement and included the announcement that E. Hewitt, A. Kennedy and E. Smith were forward with best records in 1930 thus becoming eligible to attend the annual Safety Convention at London this year.

F. Paquil, secretary-treasurer in his interesting report gave a recapitulation of the work of the various subcommittees and a broad analysis of the expenditures of the Safety Movement.

The election of officers then took place, all being re-elected as follows: Chairman, R. A. Elliott; vice-chairman, O. H. Hemphill; secretary-treasurer, F. Paquil; assistant secretary, W. R. Reynolds. A. Kennedy was elected as trustee for Relief Board up on retirement of A. McCallum. Last year's auditors on the Trustee Relief Funds H. A. McNally and S. J. Sanderson were re-elected. The chairman then appointed sub-committees as follows: Suggestions—J. Judge, J. A. Rice, S. J. Sanderson, D. Robertson and H. Loveless. Competitive—H. A. McNally, R. D. Murray, O. Herald, W. Mumby and C. T. Nicholson. Inspection—C. H. Bullard, H. Smith, William Regan; A. Bellamy and O. H. Hemphill. Publicity—W. R. Reynolds, A. Y. Yates, W. L. Rigg, H. Rennie and R. Neal.

F. A. Bapty, on behalf of the company congratulated the committee on the fine meeting and the addresses and reports given. He expressed personal regret at Mr. Wright's absence and mentioned that the last meeting of the Board of Directors the safety work of the plant was mentioned and congratulations were extended to the committee. He hoped that efforts for a safety work this year would be as successful as in the past.

J. H. Hemphill brought out the fact that the workmen were not asked to do something impossible. If men did all they knew they should do it would be all right for them.

Dr. H. Crawford extended congratulations and enlighted the work of the Benevolent Relief of being one of the finest parts of the movement. He also informed the gathering of two things briefly to be carried out to safety first measures. There will be vaccination against smallpox and inoculation against diphtheria, both being desirable with the greater possibility now of outbreaks.

Mr. W. R. Reynolds was the last speaker and following a fund of stories and humorous remarks, Mr. Reynolds in serious vein delightfully referred to the good sporting spirit existing among the members of the committee.

The National Anthem concluded another striking annual stocktaking of local Safety First accomplishments.

Panels made of sugar cane fibre have been found to reduce noise in a room by 50 per cent.

POMEGRANATES SEEN IN THE QUEEN CITY

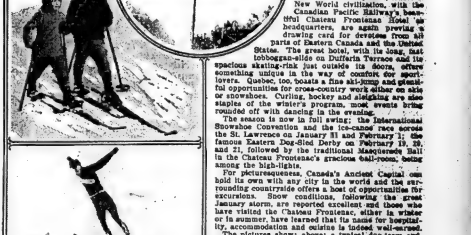
Toronto, Jan. 28 (By the Canadian Press)—A writer in the local press comes to the rescue of those women who don't know how to eat pomegranates. They have been selling in city shops at ten cents apiece, and those who have made the attempt to suck the juice have been ecstatic over the flavour. The expert says:

"I come from a land where they are grown, and where the fruit is used extensively. Out in the East the fruit when fully grown and ripe, is about the size of a bread and butter plate of a lovely burnt sienna color, with a deep ruby glow through it. The fruit is then ripe and ready to be eaten; the skin is not so hard as the ones we get here, and can be easily cut with a steel knife. We cut the fruit in halves and eat the ruby drops with a spoon. They are deliciously sweet and very juicy; the seeds can be eaten the same as the seeds in grapes, or not, just as one likes—they act as roughage, so some should be eaten. The skin of the pomegranate, when dried and powdered, is used in dysentery and kindred ailments. It is very bitter and a strong astringent. The following drink is made with the ripe fruit and is most delightful. Take the juice of six pomegranates, the juice of three organs, the juice of half a pound of black grapes, half a pound or more of sugar, according to taste; one pint of water, a wineglass of cut maderia and a liqueur glass of curacao. Press the pulp of the pomegranate through a very fine sieve, do the same with the oranges and grapes then strain through muslin. Add sugar, water and wine, chill and serve with cracked ice.

RIGID DISCIPLINE FOUND IN W.A.A.C.

London, Jan. 28 (By the Canadian Press—Dame Helen Cyzzne-Vaughan, who was Chief Controller of the Queen Mary's Auxiliary Corps, told of some of her experiences of war, when she addressed a meeting of the Association of Head Mistresses.

Dame Helen said that into their ranks came all sorts of girls —typists, housemaids shop assistants and gradually they were drafted out to France as a uniformed disciplined body. Discipline did not always come easily. And fatigue duty was invoked, which in the end made the corps proud of its capabilities. "On one occasion the corps were operating agnain on a night when an enemy bombing raid was expected. A young officer who saw this was so impressed that he wrote to headquarters suggesting that we should be mentioned in orders. Headquarters replied: "We do not thank soldiers for doing their duty, and we do not propose to treat the women differently."



"If only," added Dame Helen, "the authorities would always say, 'We do not propose to treat women differently,' what a pleasant world it would be!"

A WOMAN'S RIGHTS AS SEEN IN EGYPT

Cairo, Egypt, Jan. 28—(By the Canadian Press)—A favorable comment by the Egyptian press has been made on a recent judgment of the Egyptian Court of First Instance at Sheben-el-Kom in the exceptional case of an Egyptian woman who had brought an action against her husband for compensation for divorce and had been awarded $2,500, the court laying down the principle that a husband must show good reasons for divorcing his wife, and that divorce was not his incontestable right. The court also ruled that a wife can stipulate in the marriage contract that the man should not marry anybody else while she is his wife, and that he must divorce any wife or wives he may already have before marrying her. A wife can cancel the marriage contract if the husband fails in either of these conditions.

Quebec Sets Pace In Winter Sports

Winter sports, in the most historic city of the American continent — Old Quebec, cradle of New World civilization, with the Canadian Pacific Railway's beautiful Chateau Frontenac Hotel as headquarters, are again proving a drawing card for devotees from all parts of Eastern Canada and the United States. The great hotel, with its long, fast toboggan-slide on Dufferin Terrace and its spacious skating-rink just outside its doors, offers something unique in the way of comfort for sportlovers. Quebec, too, boasts a fine ski-jump and plentiful opportunities for cross-country work either on skis or snowshoes. Curling, hockey and sleighing are also staples of the winter's program, most events being rounded off with dancing in the evening.

The season is now in full swing; the International Snowshoe Convention and its tournaments are the St. Lawrence on January 31 and February 1; the famous Eastern Dog-Sled Derby on February 19, 20, and 21, followed by the traditional Bonspiel. Also in the Chateau Frontenac's gracious hall-room, being among the high-lights.

For picturesqueness, Canada's Ancient Capital can hold its own with any city in the world and the surrounding countryside offers a host of opportunities for excursions. Snow conditions, following the great January storm, are reported excellent and those who have visited the Chateau Frontenac, either in winter or in summer, have learned that its name for hospitality, accommodation and cuisine is indeed well-earned.

The pictures show: above: a typical dog-team and, right, the majestic Chateau Frontenac, towering over Quebec's Lower Town; upper centre and lower-left, ski-jumpers and, below: visitors out for a run in the Chateau Frontenac's dog-sleigh. The very realistic skiliers shown middle-left are typical of how young Quebec takes to winter sports, which have become famous throughout the American continent and bring visitors and competitors over Canadian Pacific lines from most of the large centres of Eastern Canada and the United States.

The Corresponding Secretary read a letter of appreciation from Mrs. James Johnson for sympathy extended at the time of her recent bereavement.

The reports of the different secretaries on last year's work were received, the treasurer's report giving great satisfaction as it announced that the allocation had been raised. The flow er fund found to be nearly exhausted and it was decided to raise the fund by contribution. Mrs. Lyons and Mrs. Rose began the canvass as soon as the meeting was closed the money to be placed in the hands of Mrs. Geo. Pollard Jr., the flower secretary.

Rev. Mr. Doggett volunteered to take charge of the birthday box.

Mrs. Doggett took charge of the officers for the coming year, giving a short congratulatory address of retrospective and commendation on the work of the last year.

Mrs. Weese then took charge of the group programs. Mrs. Dickson gave the Scripture lesson. Psalm 67, and the hymn, "All for Jesus" was sung followed by prayer by Mrs. Weese.

Mrs. Morrow gave a reading, "First Things First," and Mrs. C. N. Hess, a drink read an address on Temperance.

A duet, Sometimes, Somewhere, was rendered by Mrs. Doggett and Mrs. D. Ketchabaw.

Mrs. Weese followed with a paper on Japan and Mrs. B. Bush gave a read ing "A Baby's Home." The roll call was called, showing twenty-two members present, and several visitors.

The meeting closed by singing "Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow," and the Benediction by the Rev. Mr. Doggett.

Mrs. Weese assisted by near by neighbors in the home of Rev. Mr. Lott on Friday evening last, by extending a wood in even whilst was burning merrily when noticed. Mr. and Mrs. Lott were attending services at Campbellford at the time and their son being only one at home had gone out and forgotten to take wood from the oven. The neighbors soon gained entrance to the house and extinguished the fire before much damage was done.

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

After supper me started to write some more diary notes, saying, Well, I havent much to say, but once you start a diary youre got to keep it up, thats the unwritten law.

Courage, pop cud you know, perhaps in a few hundred years your little diary—when you get it—will be as famous as the diary of Benvenuto Cheleeny, and ma sed, Thats impossible, for the simple reason that nothing exciting ever happens to me, and pa listen to this, for instance, she sed. And she started to read what she had wrote or, note paper, being, How rainy late and as ever for breakfast a thing I seldom do, then telefoned to the butcher and gave him to understand that if he dident send me a better meet I would discontinue his services. There, now who would bother to read such unimportant piffle as that in the centuries to come? ma sed.

Its not so much the actual facks its the way you express them that counts pop sed. For instance I suppose you made them into a nice little rime, like this:

I rose this morning hardly
And berated the butcher hardly.
I refuse to faced 10 butchers yes and a rolled ten.
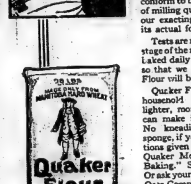
For id eaten an egg, wich I do rather seldom.

Why William I think thats prefty splendid, pa sed. Just think, getting the rimes rite out of your head without even a pencil to chew on the end of it. It gives me an idea. I write my diary every day as usual and you put it all into rimes the first thing after supper each evening. Will you William? she red.

Yes gods no, pap sed. I mean, it would hardly do. Pry instants who ever herd of the autobiography of Mr. and Mrs. Benvenoto Cheleeny? It simply isent being done, he sed.

Well, perhaps not, ma sed.



And she keep on writing the different things she had did today, such as fixing the lining in her gray coat and terring a new game of solitaire out of the paper.

BRIDE-ELECT IS TENDERED GIFTS

Miss Helen Blakely Was Showered by Her Many Friends

A pleasant social event took place in the Oddfellows Hall, Thomasburg, Wednesday of last week, when Miss Helen Blakely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Blakely, was the guest of honor on the eve of her approaching marriage. The hall was well filled for the occasion by Miss Blakely's many friends who had come to offer good wishes and present some gifts.

During the evening, Rev. J. W. Platt, pastor of the United Church, invited Miss Blakely to the platform when addresses were given and gifts presented. Miss Mildred Adams read the address on behalf of the community and Mr. Earl Bateman drew aside the curtain revealing the beautiful kitchen cabinet. The address from the Young People of the Church and her teacher and the members of the Sunday school class was read by Mr. C. Carter and the presentation of a Kenwood comforter and a rug was made on their behalf by Miss Doris Platt.

Miss Blakely was taken entirely by surprise and expressed her thanks and appreciation of the gifts. Lunch was then served by the ladies.

The following are the addresses:

Dear Helen:

We, your friends and neighbors have gathered here this evening to spend a social hour with you, prior to your leaving us, and to express to you our wishes of good luck and happiness for the future.

It is the inevitable law of life that time brings change yet we know that this change which means your removal from our community, will leave a void in your home, in the community and in the church.

We hope that the same cheerful spirit that has guided you through your business and social life here will be with you in your new home and we offer sincerest congratulations on your choice for a partner with whom to spend your wedded life.

You will be greatly missed from the Young People's Society and other branches of the church where you have always been so willing to help.

We feel that we cannot let you go without expressing in tangible form our love and best wishes for you, so we ask you to accept this kitchen cabinet and trust that it may ever remind you of your many friends in and around Thomasburg.

Our earnest prayers go with you that the God who has guided you thus far will still be your guide in the upbuilding of another of the happy circles that home that seem so much to this Canada of ours.

Signed on behalf of the Community, Margaret Elliott, Earl Bateman, Clayton Elliott, Fred Adams, Mildred Adams.

Dear Helen:

In the event of your coming marriage, we, the members of the Young People's Society and of the Sunday School class, wish to express our regret that you are leaving our community. We have always found you a genial and faithful worker in our Young People's work and Sunday School class. We will miss you but we hope that your future happines will more than make up for our loss.

We beg you to accept this gift in token of our good will and sincere wishes for a happy married life.

Signed on behalf of the Y.P.S. and teacher and members of the class, Miss Goodfellow, Mrs. Carter.

DATE CAKE

1 3.4 cups oatmeal, 1 1-2 cups flour, 1 cup brown sugar, small tsp. soda, 1-1 tsp. salt. Mix this together with your hands like pie crust, then add 3-4 cup of butter and mix in well. Then grease your pan well and put in half the crumb mixture and put in date well with the hands. Keep other half for the top.

FILLING

1 1-2 cups dates, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup hot water.

Cook the dates, and when cooled put them in pan and add the other half of crumbs on top. Cook for 20 or 30 minutes. After it has been out of the oven for 10 or 15 minutes cut in the size of squares you wish.

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

DEAR READERS:

There's more than a wee bit of bonny plaid stepping to the front ranks of style these days. In fact, anything with a dash of Scotch in it is right up Fashion's alley.

There are two types of plaid frocks that are smart as creation and till this in-between needs when you want to look smart, would like a little color and dash in your outfits and yet don't want to really dress up in your Sunday-go-to-meeting.

First, you can have the gay top worn with a dark skirt. This follows the mode for light blouses and the newer vogue for lightened coats with dark skirts. But if you make this delightful blouse of plaid, then it's a 100 per cent bet you will be glad of it.

The second type of plaid costume this late winter is the all-plaid frock. Sometimes it is of the loveliest and softest of Scotch plaid woolen, sometimes of silk. It may be the usual red, green, black, blue and yellow combination of it may be something quite bizarre such as emerald green and gold in varying stripes to make the plaid.

Two new plaid costumes that in a not-quite-Scotch manner, are lavish with their chic, include the plain-topped frock and the whole plaid frock.

An extremely smart affect is created by topping a black woolly crepe skirt with a wrap-around and belted coat-blouse of black and white plaided wool. The plaid is used on the slant to fashion the whole waist, thus giving it a dash that orderly plaid could never achieve. The scarf collar is printed in black and a black suede belt adds its suave touch.

Gayest of the gay is a plaid bolero frock that has the traditional Scotch colors for its lively design. There is a little pompon at each side of the front of the bolero which is suggestive of soft thistle, only one of these is the beige of the back ground of the plaid the other the garnet green.

The skirt has stitched pleats that flare in front, on the sides and in the back. Otherwise it is a semi-fitted, plain little frock so far as its cut goes. But nothing could be more decorative, more cheering under the fur cost or without it.

Fashionably Yours,

LUCILLE.

SCHOOL BOY'S NOTE WAFTED TO SCOTLAND

Late in August, Reginald Batchelior, school pupil, Trenton, put a message in a bottle and deposited it in the Bay of Quinte. Last week he received a letter with a Dundee, Angus, Scotland postmark, with the following letter:

. . . 31 December, 1930.

Dear Master Batchelior,

Ah wis doon by the waterside aye day and seen a wee bottle bobbin up and doon in the sea. Ah got grips o' it and fund inside o' it yer note.

Syne ah thinks tae ma sil, ah thinks sil write tae this wee chappie, so here's the letter tae ye.

It's not like day a litter comes frae America or Canada to Bonny Scotland in a bottle, ye ken!

Well, ah must awa an get on wie ma fishing.

SEES HER EVERY NIGHT

DEAR MISS FAIRPAX:

I am very much in love with a girl and I go to see her every night in the week. Do you think this love will last or will it not? My friends have been telling me that, if I don't stop seeing her so often, my love will wane because we see too much of one another.

But every time I tell her that, she gets peeved and says that I don't want to continue seeing her. Do you think this love will last? In time to come I intend to marry her, so I thought I would write to you and get some friendly advice.

People who have long engagements or "understandings," and see each other continually, seldom have enough reserves of affection to stand the long siege. As the result of having too few outside influences, their engagement is apt to develop into a very drab affair. It becomes too daily a business to have any real thrills. People who spend every evening together have few surprises; they know, in advance, what the other will say or do on any given occasion. They know all each other's stories, adventures, experiences, all of which accounts for what so often happens—the marriage never takes place. A fresher face, a newer line, a point of view less well known, and crash! The "understanding" of many years is on the rocks! It's different with a happy marriage with its sharing responsibilities such as home and children. Life then is on a firmer foundation.

Better "budget" your courting time if, as you say, you hope to marry the girl later.

Advice to Lovelorn

WHY DECIDE SO SOON?

DEAR MISS FAIRPAX:

I am 18 and going with a young man of 19. I shall call him Roddy. I think a good deal of him and he does of me. Once, I was willing to give up dancing for him but, as he is fond of dancing as I am, there was no need to do that. He works till late and he comes for the last of the dances and then takes me home. We cannot go out together because of that. I go to dances with my girl friends. And here's the trouble. I went out with another young man now and then before I started going with Roddy. I shall call him Al. I can't seem to get Al off my mind. He tells all his friends and mine, too, that he cares for me. His friends, all of whom are married, always invite us to spend the evening with them. So far I have refused, although I felt badly afterward. I don't know what to do anymore. I like Roddy real well, but at times I am tempted to cheat. Can't you help me and tell me what to do?

UNDECIDED.

As you're not engaged to Roddy, what can be the objection to your going out with Al? At 18, it is well to have several young men friends, and be pleasant and agreeable with all of them. Unless in exceptional cases, a girl of your age is a wee bit young to marry and it's better to "pal around" with two or three than to take one—to whom you're not engaged—so seriously.

Poet's Corner

TO SEX COMPANIONS

We will go back there,
seven of us, ghosts,
and sit in the shadow of the inn and call our toasts.
There will be music again,
song and violin.
We will dine our wine, the seven of us,
till the dark is thin and streaked with the white of day-break.
Then, as the wind grows cold,
we will go our many ways again,
when we are old.

BEAUTY BOX

BY HELEN FOLLETT

Many a lipstick is kicking round the bureau drawer, wondering why nobody loves it any more. The orange stick and the brilliant flannel red lipstint have gone into the limbo of forgotten beauty accessories. If factory color is used at all, it is a much deep red tone which cannot be detected except by the penetrating, suspecting eye. Counterfeit blushes have been chased away by deeper tones of night and gels her short locks shorn had no feeling of affection.

If the hot bath is the daily custom if a girl likes to steam herself and enjoy the relaxation of warm moisture she should never fail to finish up with the cold shower. It is particularly necessary to give the complexion a dash of cold water, so that tissues and muscles won't throw a sag. Don't forget the neck. Necks suffer from neglect. Bad policy. Necks get even—take on creases and puffiness.

Ever and anon there are announcements to the fact that fashionable coiffures can be constructed only with long, long hair, or long, short, hair. call it what you will. Yet, despite all this ballyhoo stuff, there is many a young native Canadienne who dog trots to the barber shop every fortnight and gets her short locks shorn

To keep the wardrobe sweetly scented, don't use perfumes. The same odor in toilet water, talcum, bath salts and sachet is an economical and effective policy. Practically all popular perfumes are bouquets of natural and synthetic oils. A sachet inside the linings of ones chapeaux will keep the hair fragrant. Grand idea.

Ladies who wear jewelry should take the trouble to keep their gems clean. Fastidious girls note the arrival of that bit, of soil on the back of the hat caused by the friction of the coat collar. Fussy folk give their shopping bags a house-cleaning now and then. Cleanliness, neatness and order to the tenth degree are necessary these days.

Twenty-five years ago there were only 32 women students at the Sorbonne, Paris, whereas more than 10,000 are now enrolled in the various courses there.

CANBERRA MADE CITY IN BUSH

Commonwealth Capital Scarce by Begun Yet and Has Inconsistencies

Canberra, Australia, Jan. 29 (By The Canadian).—Canberra, the Capital of Australia, is a city literally made to order. It has been the seat of the government of the Commonwealth instead of Melbourne only since May 9, 1927.

The visitor who arrives at the railway station of Canberra by night and sees from his carriage window acre upon acre of flashing lights imagines that he is entering a huge metropolis. It is only when he hears the bleating of sheep from his hotel window the next morning that he realizes that he is still in the Australian bush. The lights that he has seen come not for the most part from houses, but from desolate fields. They are there not to mark out the city as it is, but as it will be in 50 years' time.

Canberra as the capital of the Commonwealth has hardly begun. The Parliament House" opened three years ago by the Duke and Duchess of York is a temporary structure set down on a mountain sixteen. "The Albert Hall," will no doubt one day be the centre of swirling traffic, but at present it stands isolated on a desert of shrub and grass. The General Post Office and the shopping centre will one day be linked together by fine boulevards, but at the moment they are separated by two miles of grazing land. Constitution-aven-se will in time deserve its name; at present it is a country lane leading to the church. The parish church is the quaintest sight of all. It was built early in the last century by convict labor, and for generations the only worshippers there were the Campbell family, who owned the local sheep station. Now each Sunday it is packed to the doors with the Commonwealth leaders. In a hundred years no doubt it will be completely hemmed in by streets and by shops.

Canberra in places is no more than the ground plan of a city. Opposite the Parliament House there will one day stand out in glittering white the Capitol, but at present its site is only marked by a fountain stone; the hill behind will in time bear a great war memorial; at present it is only the feeding ground of sheep. Yes, Canberra, though it looks today rather like the beginnings of a Wembley in the mountains, is organized as if it were already a teeming city. Everywhere there are one-way traffic notices, though there often is not a vehicle in sight. To reach a hotel in a motor car you pursue a merry-go-round as involved as that of Piccadilly Circus, though the intertwining roads are as deserted as on a Yorkshire moor.

It is easy to smile at such incongruities, but it is impossible not to admire the faith and courage with which Australia has set out to turn a rocky sheep station into her Washington. The enterprise has been hampered by ill-fortune. The war instituted it, and the present depression has brought it to a standstill. Offices and shops that came into existence on the expectation of a population that would immediately rise to 30,000 or 40,000 are catering only for a quarter of that number. In fact, the Federal Parliament is being asked to cut the losses and scrap the whole scheme. But in Canberra itself there are no croakers. The citizens have faith to battle through.

ELECTION WARMS UP AT HAMILTON CHARGES MADE

Elmore Philpott Speaks to a Packed Theatre at Hamilton

DIRECT ACCUSATIONS

"There Should be One Law for the Poor and the Rich Man," he Says

Hamilton, Jan. 30—Charging that Sotloway, Mills and Company had contributed campaign funds to the Ontario Provincial Conservative party during the months immediately preceding the last provincial election, and citing, with names and dates, the circumstances of what he alleged was maladministration of justice by Hon. W. H. Price, Elmore H. Philpott, last night replied to the attack directed at him by Col. Price.

Speaking before an audience which completely packed the Savoy Theatre, Mr. Philpott, Liberal candidate in the West Hamilton by-election, spoke amid frequent applause. From the audience were interjected cries such as "Good boy, Phil," "Give them hell, Phil," "You'll win all right," and "You fight while they talk."

Again challenging Mr. Price to meet him "face to face of his own free will" to discuss matters of importance, Mr. Philpott charged the Attorney-General with laxity in prosecuting the Sotoway Mills Company, because this firm, "had made campaign contributions to the Conservative party." He also charged:

Mr. Philpott's Allegations

1.—That he has at least two witnesses who will state that it was intimated to complainants residing in Hamilton, and who demanded an investigation of the Harris Consolidated Mines, Limited, in which 600 Hamilton persons lost almost $400,000 that the Attorney General's subordinates had been instructed to take no action because one of the chief executives of the firm was a personal friend of Hon. W. H. Price and "must not be embarrassed."

2.—That was on the evening of July 31, 1930, an American woman, wife of a millionaire, Mrs. Letta Oliver, of Kenmore, N.Y., was arrested and sentenced to jail at Fruitland, Ont., because of an automobile accident, and that the magistrate stated that there was no alternative but jail. Within one hour, on the authority of the Attorney General, the woman was released and on her way home. "Under what authority did the Attorney Gen-

County Council Reeves Discuss Letter from Highways Department

County Council's session was of short duration this morning the ministers of the previous sessions being attended and a few original communications being read. A letter was received from H. C. Mott deputy Minister of Highways concerning the road from Deseronto to the Prince Edward County ferry a distance of one mile and three quarters. J. A. McKinley, reeve of Tyendinaga expressed the opinion that the road should come under the jurisdiction of Indian Affairs and the Dominion Government. The Moore chairman of roads and bridges, stated to the council, that Mr. Mott requested the council to fix the road and that they would be fully reimbursed for the expense. Mr. W. C. Malley, reeve of Deseronto expressed the opinion, that a highway would be constructed along the Prince Edward County Shore and from the ferry to the main highway. The letter was received and filed.

KAYE DON GOES FOR A TRIAL SPIN

NON-FICTION WIDELY READ IN TRENTON, LIBRARIAN FRASER SAYS

Trenton Library on Sound Financial Basis for First Time

ROTARY COMPETITION

Trenton, Jan. 30 (Special)— "Out of a total of 44,209 books circulated last year 28.32 percent were non-fiction," said Chief Librarian D. T. Fraser in presenting his annual report to the Trenton Library Board yesterday. For every one of the better class of books loaned to adults there were sought by the juvenile members of the Library. The total circulation for the past year, which is an increase of 2110 over 1929, was made up of 29,455 adult, 6,369 adult non-fiction, 3,343 juvenile fiction and 5,214 juvenile non-fiction. This was an average daily circulation of 154.

Despite the high price of all classes of literature and the expense of rebinding books, as well as other current expenses in connection with the Library's operation the financial statement showed the institution to be on a sound financial basis for the first time in its six years, and no little credit is due Mr. Fraser for this fact.

During last season 120 old books were discarded and 356 new ones added. This brings the total number of books for the 2192 members to choose from to approximately 8000.

In connection with the Library are Juvenile and Adult Reading Rooms. The Adult Room is exceptionally well fitted up and the Librarian said that it was no uncommon sight to see as many as twelve and fifteen at a time sitting in the easy chairs before the open fireplace perusing the daily papers and periodicals which are provided. Forty-four of the best periodicals, four daily papers and eight weeklies are subscribed to by the Library for the Reading Room.

Complete For Rotary Cup

A keen but friendly rivalry exists between the pupils of Trenton's two large Public School—Dufferin and College, for the diamond the athletic field and in hockey, each year the schools' representatives compete for the possession of the beautiful Trophy Cup presented by the Rotarians. Last year Principal V. Carswell's representatives of College St. School won the trophy. Who will win it this season, reside in the city.

Asian Women Vote Down Opium, Alcohol, Polygamy

Lahore, Punjab, India, Jan. 30 (CP) —Resolutions against child marriage, polygamy, opium, alcohol, white slave traffic, child labor, were passed today by the Asian Women's Congress representing the women of a score of Oriental countries. In the concluding session, Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, released this week from Yeroda Prison, Poona, where she was confined for offences growing out of the civil disobedience, campaign was elected president of the congress as a "recognition of her services for India's advancement."

THREW CRAPEFRUIT AT RUDY IS EXPELLED

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 30—CP—The Boston Post says that James B. Angier of New Haven, Conn., Harvard student and son of Prof. Roswell Parker Angier of Yale, was dismissed from Harvard University by the faculty today. The dismissal, the Post adds, followed a series of escapades which ended last Thursday night, when grapefruit were hurled at Rudy Vallee by three students at the Metropolitan Theatre.

The two schools are tied in points but Principal P. W. Fairman of Dufferin will send a picked team of puck chasers onto the ice against the Trenton cohorts Wednesday next in an effort to bring the Cup to the school on the hill. And the outcome of the game we'll decide!

21ST OPERATION UPON VETERAN

Belleville Man is Coming Along Nicely in Kingston

Mr. W. H. Smith, of this city, a Great War veteran, has had the twenty-first operation performed on him, the last having been performed this week by Dr. Etherington at Kingston General Hospital within three weeks of the twentieth. Mr. Smith has been a patient at the hospital, including Christie Street, Ottawa Hospital, Hotel Dieu, Kingston General and Sydenham Hospital, Kingston, but he is still cheerful and is coming along nicely. His wife and five children live in the city.

YOUNG CHINESE STUDENT SECOND AMONG ORATORS

Jack Wong Praised by Judger Who Award First Place to W. Hendershott

TWO OTHERS COMPETE

Mr. Wong Though Speaking in Tongue Not Native to Him Makes Impression

William Hendershott was successful in carrying off the first prize in the oratorical contest which was held at Albert College last night. This contest is an annual affair and is looked forward to with great eagerness by the students each year. There were seven entered in the contest but, by a process of elimination, three were eliminated and only four competed last night.

Jack Wong, a Chinese student at the college, was given honorable mention by the judges in the splendid way in which he gave his oration. The other two contestants were Alec Finlayson and Alec McColl. Mr. Wong first knew English only seven or eight years ago.

The contestants had to read a hymn, "Lead Kindly Light" and a passage from the Scriptures before they started their oration. For the speech itself they were given twelve minutes. Professor Denyes was chairman for the evening.

The judges were composed of Mr. J. O. Herlin, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, E. V. Ilsley manager of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and Miss Madeline Young, head of the English department at the collegiate. Miss Young announced the judges' decision.

Several pleasing musical numbers were rendered during the course of the evening. Miss Leona Biggs, talented singer, delighted with two solos and Mr. Alec Gordon, organist at Holloway Street United Church played two piano solos.

OLD-STYLE WINTER IS RAGING TODAY

Signs of Return of Old Condition Shock Mild Weather Prophets

Central Ontario is today "enjoying" a touch of the "old time" winters and those who recently harboured some misgiving, as to the change of Canadian climatic conditions are readjusting their impressions. In the north, the storm is moderate but snow shovelling scenes is handy, just the same. Indeed, Western Ontario apparently has missed the fun, but according to all appearances the best will be in the thick of the fight tonight.

Though the storm has been in progress since early morning no signs of a tie-up are evident hereabouts. Trains have all been running or, schedule and so far highways and roads are open. Stages are on time and the morning milkman was not late.

The storm however, looks one which before many hours may not be unsurprised should there be a very heavy fall of snow.

DOUG. FAIRBANKS WANTS HAT BACK

Hollywood, Jan. 30—Why anybody thought it worth while to steal a 11-year-old green felt hat with a tattered band, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., can't quite figure out but he is willing to pay $100 to get it back.

The hat was taken from the seat of the roadster his wife, Joan Crawford, gave him recently. "That hat's my good luck piece, and I've got to have it back," young Doug said.

FLAMES THROW UPPER BROADWAY IN TURMOIL, 200 ARE DRIVEN OUT

Newspaper Photographers are Dangerously Hurt One Block Away

POWDER EXPLODED

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—CP—Flames leveled a six story building on Upper Broadway early today, driving more than 200 people into the cold, injuring twenty-two others and throwing the Great White Way into turmoil.

Of the injured two firemen were gravely burned and two newspaper photographers were dangerously hurt a block from the fire when a flash light powder prematurely exploded. The majority of the occupants of the building were artists or theatre folk and many were elderly.

WARM WELCOME FOR BENNETT IN STATES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—CP— The welcome of the highest officials of the United States were extended y to Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada, the first Canadian premier to visit Washington in nearly four years. Highly informal in character his brief visit was regarded by United States officials as an opportunity for a full and frank discussion of Canadian United States problems.

CITY PAYS SHARE OF SUBURBAN ROAD

Cheque for $1121.59 to be Sent to the County Treasurer

The city council decided last night to put an advertisement in the "Ontario" this official paper of the Collegiate Institute at a cost not to exceed $20.00. A grant of $50.00 was given to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. Last night the council ordered paid the city's share of the construction and maintenance of the suburban road between Corby ille and Honeywell's Corners by authorizing the treasurer to issue a cheque to the Suburban Road commission for $1121.59 a sum of $948.36 being for construction.

New highways opened in the United States last year, had a total mileage of 7,952 while those constructed in Canada covered 6,083 miles.

Large Oil Company Makes City Distributing Centre

Business of the committee meeting of the city council consisted mainly of deputations last evening. Through a recommendation passed last night relating an agreement between the corporation and the Imperial Oil Company Belleville, is to become one of the largest distributing points for gasoline, outside of the city of Toronto. The Imperial Oil Company have acquired considerable property in the vicinity of the government dock and their property on St. Paul Street and will at once lay large pipes from the dock to the storage tanks to be erected and henceforth the gasoline used in this district will be shipped in by gas boats. This system is also being used by the British American Oil Company. Representatives appeared before the council last night to request the city fathers for permission to lay pipes over city property. This request was in full accord with the desire of the council to have more industries in the city and the Mayor and clerk were authorized to sign the agreement between the oil company and the city, which will give the oil company a right to lay the pipes thru' city property.' It is expected that the work will be completed in time for use next summer.

MOTHER OF REV. W. J. KINLIN SUCCUMBS

Mrs. Anna Kinlin Dies at Rectory in Flinton Very Suddenly

Word was received by relatives and friends in the city of the death of Mrs. Anna Amlin, of Stoco, who passed away at the home of her son, Rev. Father W. J. Kinlin, Flinton, yesterday morning. News of her death came as a shock to the whole community, for although Mrs. Kinlin was advanced in years, she had had very fair health and had come to the Rectory at Flinton just two weeks ago to be with her son.

Born in Stoco eighty-three years ago the late Mrs. Kinlin was formerly Miss Anna Whalen and spent practically all her life in Stoco. Her husband, the late Stephen Kinlin, predeceased her many years. Mrs. Kinlin was a highly respected resident of Stoco and a wide circle of friends and acquaintances will mourn her passing.

She leaves four brothers, Dan, James and Patrick Whalen of Stoco, John Whalen, Belleville and Joseph Whalen the twelve children who were born to Mr. and Mrs. Kinlin, seven survive. They are Rev. W. J. Kinlin, parish priest at Flinton; Patrick Kinlin, Bogart; Stephen Kinlin of Oshawa; Rev. Sister Mary Anna, Smith's Falls; Rev. Sister Mary Rosalia, New York; Mrs. DeMarsh, of Tweed, and Miss Margaret Kinlin at home. The body is being taken to the residence of Mr. Patrick Kinlin, Bogart, and the funeral will take place in Stoco on Monday.

ELEVEN BODIES ARE TAKEN FROM PIT

White Haven, Cumberland, Eng., Jan. 30 (CP)—Eleven bodies had been taken today from the Haig pit, where an explosion yesterday imprisoned more than three score men. Seventeen miners are still missing in the shaft, while twenty-five have been rescued alive. Rescuers worked all day in the hope of rescuing those still alive. The cause of the accident is still unknown.

Put Character First

Winter Park, Fla.—Calling attention to the emphasis placed by the Rollin's Education Conference on the spiritual and character development aspect of education as contrasted to intellectual ends, Hamilton Holt, president of Rollins College, pronounced the findings of the conference, which closed Saturday, to be a distinct departure by responsible educators from the conventional practices of liberal arts colleges.

The purpose of the college of liberal arts, according to the report of the conference, is to discover and achieve the values and significance of life, individual and social through:

1. The organization, transmission, extension and application of knowledge.

2. The awakening developing, enlarging disciplining and harmonizing of interests, appreciations, and attitudes.

3. The inspiring of the students, the faculty, and the community to cooperate their unique personalities to the common good.

"A favorable trend in education," stated the section of the report on the liberal arts college in relation to other educational units "is toward the rapid shrinking of the traditional education-al wall between vocational and cultural. The liberal college will survive and render service in proportion as it recognizes this fact and brings its course of study and administrative set-up into effective conformity with it."

It was the opinion of the conference in relation to appraisals of achievement that the best grading method is that farthest removed from the percentage method. Such steps as the use of letter or group grades, division of the class into thirds or quarters, a descriptive analysis of the student's progress, or combinations of these methods, were proposed.

Among the other proposals stated and discussed in the report are the declarations that:

1. There should be less emphasis on the acquisition of mere facts and more upon generalization, thinking, application of knowledge and awareness of gaps in knowledge.

2. There should be different introductory courses for those who plan further work in a field and for those who do not.

3. There should be more emphasis on breadth in first part of the college student's career, while in the latter part there should be more emphasis on specialization.

4. More emphasis on the development of the individual rather than on a sort of machine production should characterize the college.

5. Vocational names should not be given to lines of study that do not give vocation training.

6. Prerequisites for entrance and within the college have been too rigid and not fully justified.

7. Methods of individual guidance through advisers and faculty committees should be extended.

8. Present rigid departmentalization is condemned as greatest block to efficient administration.

9. The training and certification of teachers for schools and colleges should not be completely controlled by law and bureaucratic regulations.

Long Trousers for Golfers

New York—Knickers, if the Fifth Avenue stylists know their pants trends, are slipping out of the golfer's wardrobe.

Long trousers are due to come back to the country's links. That is to say, on the legs of the man who likes to be different. Plus-fours, of course, are still the best for the timid one. The whole idea (the stylists' idea) is that the mobile wielders don't really need knickers now.

The rough, for which they were designed, on most courses, no longer is so rough that trouser legs are likely to emerge with shin guards of thistle burrs and dry twigs.

Already plus-fours are not as baggy as they used to be.

Caps are increasing in popularity, especially in white or natural linen. White flannel trousers are by long odds the current Florida resort fashion. Here again there is a neat distinction. Most white flannel pants wearers probably will appear in the striped variety—the hotel trade, as one Fifth Avenue clothier called it. The really well-dressed man (meaning, presumably, the chap who has a villa), will wear them pristine plain.

Panama hats are first in popularity, chiefly in the optimo shape, with plain black bands. White felts are limited but smart. Sennits will remain in the perennial standard among straw hats.

Men's spring suits, says Amos Parrish fashion counselor, will rank thus:

Coats—two button, plain full back, from 29 to 31 inches long, with notch lapels; the same in three-button style, worn by many with only the middle button at the waist buttoned; six-button double-breasted, with peak lapels, worn by many with only two buttons buttoned, the middle outside and the invisible inside dress button.

Colors—Light and medium grays outstanding, tans and chocolate browns next, and, of course, blue. Light blues, greens and pastel browns and tans are a limited fashion.

D.E.K. STEWART IS DEAD AGED 87 YRS

David Elliot Kinnear Stewart, for many years a well-known lawyer in Madoc, passed away in the hospital in Kingston this morning. On Monday Mr. Stewart slipped and fell in the bathroom, injuring his chad and due to his advanced years little hope was held for his recovery.

There was not a man in the northern part of the county of Hastings who was more keenly interested in mining development than was Mr. Stewart. He devoted practically all of his time to investigating properties and floated properties in North Hastings.

Mr. Stewart was as well a keen barrister. He practised law for forty years in the village of Madoc and for a short time in Chicago. He is survived by one son Kinnear, in Arizona, a daughter Mrs. Seward Cross, of this city and another daughter, Miss Emily Stewart of New York. At the time of his death he was eighty seven years of age.

The deceased was born in Goderich Ontario, the son of John Stewart and Caroline Kinnear.

School and Road Problems Before County Council

NORTH SCHOOL GRANTS CAUSE COUNCIL DEBATE

Grant to Poor Schools and Regular Grants to North Laid Over

INFORMATION ASKED

Problem of Aid for Marmora School Referred to Special Body

Grants to northern schools usually made will not be passed at the present session of the Hastings County Council as there has been a radical change made in the regulations which it is thought may help the poorer schools to better their burden of providing education for the children. The question will come up in June.

The question of a special grant of $225 to the poor schools of the north to be handled as usual by the inspector was not passed by the Ways and Means Committee of the Hastings County Council last evening for this reason. Another reference from the council was likewise laid over to the June session at which time it is expected that Inspector of Schools J. E. Colling will have presented the assessment of conditions as they will be shown by the new regulations that the new grants to the council, which will thereupon be able to make their decision as to the grant to the poor schools and the regular grants to the schools in some of the northern townships.

The same treatment was accorded the reference of the motion of a proposed usual $300.00 grant to the Banoroft Continuation School.

All these matters will be dealt with in June after the receipt of information from the school inspector.

Another angle of the school situation was brought forward by Mr. H. W. Sabine of Marmora on behalf of the Marmora Board of Education. The attendance in the continuation classes has grown beyond bounds and if the present rate of increase is maintained it will be necessary to put the third form outside, which would mean that the needed equipment would have to be duplicated, a burden on the school Mr. Sabine pointed out that the school rate in Marmora village is between thirty-two and thirty-three mills and the total tax rate of the village is over 40 mills.

"We are appealing to the legislature to consolidate a floating loan of $12,000 so it is out of the question for the village of undertaking the building of a new school," remarked Mr. Sabine. Hon. Robert Gordon has taken up the question with the Department of Education as it is expected that the attendance which is now about one hundred may run up to 110 or 115 next fall. The department, Mr. Sabine pointed out, will contribute half of the cost of education of pupils under certain conditions and it was with this in mind that he asked the co-operation of the County Council.

If the county were to lend aid, the cost of education, it is thought, would be lessened, as has been the case in other counties where the plan had been adopted. At present Sidney gets a grant of about $4,500 from the department while Marmora's maximum is $2,000.

Marmora Village is like some of the other municipalities suffering under the present condition. A village of 1010 population, it has 235 pupils in the public school, 55 in the separate school and 68 in the continuation school. This year there will be one of the largest matriculation classes for years.

Under such aid as proposed Marmora would go ahead and make adequate provision for the teaching of these children.

Warden Thompson arose to state that this was a very important matter and hence it would be impossible to give a decision without thorough investigation as to possible changes which it would effect. There was the law to be considered along with all the possible angles. He proposed to name a committee of Messrs Whytock, Reid, Mitchell and the clerk, W. H. Nugent, to investigate and report at the June session so that action might be taken if necessary before the first of July.

Reeve S. E. Wright of Deloro emphasized the conditions as extant at Marmora. Deloro sends fifteen scholars now to the continuation school at Marmora and by the end of the summer may have ten or twelve more to attend. There is not room now for this number, he said. Action should be taken without undue delay.

Reeve Reid of Bancroft suggested the addition of the Reeve of Marmora village to the committee, the suggestion being approved by council. The committee will consist of the members named by the warden besides Reeve Marett.

Inspector Ruston Praised For His Efficient Service

Inspector Thos. D. Ruston of the Children's Aid Society came in for a special vote of thanks at the Hastings County Council last evening after the council had heard of his painstaking efforts to protect the county's interests in the case of a child whose case had come up in Toronto children's court. It was a case of the length of residence in Hastings, whether it was long enough to saddle the county with the costs of the maintenance of the child which is now in hospital in Toronto at the expense of the city.

After hearing of the case Reeve Gilroy of Wollaston arose and moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Ruston for his efficient service in this respect and for his general work for the society. After the motion carried Inspector Ruston thanked the council and explained what steps should be taken in cases under the Unmarried Parents' Act. The complaint has first to be made to the reeve who will ask the inspector to investigate. Up to that time the Reeve has no authority to investigate, even at the complaint of the woman in the case.

County Council Lends Aid to Gladioli Show

Hastings County Council in the ways and means committee on Thursday afternoon voiced its appreciation of the importance to Hastings and Belleville of the forthcoming exhibition of the Canadian Gladioli Society to be held in this city in the summer and voted $25.00 grant towards defraying the expenses of the show.

Mrs. George A. Bonisteel of this city and Mayor Reid addressed the County Council on resumption of business at two-thirty o'clock in the afternoon and requested a contribution towards the show. Mrs. Bonisteel, well known in gladioli circles, who is an indefatigable worker for the horticultural interests noted the importance of the meeting which she said would bring exhibitors from all parts of Canada and from abroad. The prize lists she said, would be sent from coast to coast and Hastings will gain by the publicity such a convention will bring.

It was pointed out by Mayor Reid that exhibitors would send flowers to this exhibition from England, the States, and from, he would every town and city of Canada, and he would like to see every village in Hastings represented.

The matter was referred to the ways and means committee for action in committee a recommendation was made to grant $25.00 towards this fund. This the committee will report to the County Council.

The Quinte District Seed Fair of which Mr. Clement H. Ketcheson is president requested through the president the usual grant of fifty dollars towards this annual event. Mr. Ketcheson's appeal was favorably entertained by the committee and was recommended to be granted by the council.

Mr. Ketcheson pointed out the importance of the new regulation which allowed fifty per cent subsidy on a seed cleaning machine brought into any municipality.

COUNCIL AIDING MAKERS OF CHEESE

Make Grant of One Hundred and Fifty Dollars for Purpose

County Council is alive to the importance of the dairy industry as the sequiescence with the appeal of Mr. Bailey of the County Cheese Makers for a grant of one hundred and fifty dollars towards the annual competition. He noted in the course of an address to the council members on Thursday afternoon that the cheese makers of Hastings won the highest percentage of firsts and specials in the cheese competition in Eastern Ontario last year. He drew the attention of the members to the winnings of local cheesemakers by name and by municipality, and told how the grant of last year was spent.

Eleven members from Hastings are entitled to be guests at the dairy conquet of leading cheesemakers of Ontario to be held in Toronto.

In ways and means the application for the grant of $150.00 was approved.

ARTERY TO NORTH GIVEN ATTENTION

Grants to Northern Townships Granted With One Cut

When the question of grants on the northern roads came up for discussion in the ways and means committee of Hastings County Council on Thursday afternoon, Reeve J. A. McKinney of Tyendinaga brought forward the question of the advisability of devoting more attention to the highway through the north and cutting down on the grants to the individual townships. Rather interesting discussion was provoked by this suggestion of the Tyendinaga Reeve.

Northern Reeves pointed out that their plans had already been laid for the expenditure of this money during the coming months and Reeves Hubbell of Faraday showed that Faraday had already spent the $425.00 mentioned as the grant.

Reeve Brett said he was willing on behalf of his township after only the really necessary work had been done on the roads to turn over what remained of the grant to making straight the road through the "hole-in-the-wall."

Reeve Mitchell of Thurlow thought it was a supreme necessity that the road through from Madoc to Maynooth should be a highway, in fact as in name. He suggested that the northern townships should get this year the usual grants except Faraday which was getting more than any, and favored the cutting of $125.00 off the grants to Faraday.

Reeve Hubbell of this township put up a strong fight for the retention of the $425.00 in the recommendation, saying that one could see a great amount of traffic in getting out timber and other products of the north and in view of this and of the tourist traffic which passed over the road helping in the development of the north, Warden Thompson pointed out that the first time this was given as a grant it was deemed a special grant and he favored the $300.00 grant for Faraday.

Reeve McKinney of Tyendinaga moved for half the usual grant to the north while Reeve Hubbell moved for the usual grant less the $125.00 cut for Faraday. On the vote Mr. Mitchell's suggestion was adopted by the ways and means committee and Faraday will obtain only $300.00 this year.

$27,310 MOTHERS' ALLOWANCE GRANTS IN HASTINGS COUNTY

Annual Report Shows Increase of $6,180 During Past Year

DETAILS OF CASE

Mothers' Allowance grants cost $27,310 in the County of Hastings for the year ending October 31st, 1930, chairman Alex Moore of the Mothers' Allowance Board reported to the Hastings County Council on Thursday afternoon. Mr. Moore showed that there was an increase of $6,180 over the previous year. Fifty per cent of this is chargeable to the municipality, the rest to the province.

Since the Mothers' Allowance Act came into force, on November 1st, 1920, the disbursements in Hastings have totalled $174,870.00.

Mr. Moore's report follows:

"For your information I beg to advise that the local board have held thirteen meetings during the year, commencing November 1st, 1929, and ending October 31st, 1930, all meetings having been held at the office of the County Clerk, Shire Hall, in the City of Belleville, on the first Monday of each month, or some other day especially fixed by the members of the board. Meetings are only held when there are applications to consider or other important business to be dealt with by the board.

"The members comprising the board during the past twelve months are: Mrs. Chas. Vanderwater, Mrs. Simeon Fox, Mr. Thos. Montgomery, Mr. W. H. Nugent, County Clerk, and Mr. Alex Moore.

"The members of the local board have, at all times, endeavored to endeavor to administer in the interest of the county of Hastings and the Province of Ontario, the affairs of the Mothers' Allowance Act, at the same time having due regard and sympathetic consideration for the welfare of those who had occasion to make application to the Board for assistance.

Believing that a detailed statement of the number of cases dealt with by the local board during the year above mentioned would be of interest to you, I hereby submit a complete list, both of applications received and money expended.

During the fiscal year commencing November 1st, 1929, and ending October 31st, 1930,

79 applications were disposed of as follows:

STANDARD OF PRICES IS NEEDED IN DAIRY INDUSTRY OF TO-DAY

All Cattle Must be Blood Tested for Next Holstein Sale

What is needed in the dairy industry today is a standard of prices and a standard of values, said F. W. Lee, immediate past president of the Prvistan Holstein Breeders Association, speaking at the representatives of the local association gathered in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon.

"If we can have a high class sale at some central point those from Canada as well as our friends from the United States will be there. I believe that those sales set up a higher standard of values for us to aim at," said Mr. Lee, "and they not only do this but they give the buyers a chance to mix with the , breeders and exchange ideas. They will repeatedly come back and buy more cattle. We would indeed do well to continue these national sales."

"Consignment sales, too," said the speaker, "have increased the quality of the cattle. Breeders, dairymen and farmers gather at these sales and start to buy and build up herds, which they would not do if we did not get together. The county agent system has also been of great benefit to the breeders."

"You men are located in a superior position as regards the holstein's ever-increasing prominence in the dairy industry. We have established a tuberculin-free area in the eastern counties."

TOO MUCH OVERPRODUCTION?

Overproduction, its evils and the part it has played in the present depression was dealt with thoroughly by Mr. Lee. It is said, claimed the speaker, that there is an overproduction of milk. But the main trouble with the farmer, in Mr. Lee's opinion, is the fact that he has fail, ed to organize. He does not distribute his own milk. Profits are unequal. There is too much profit goes to the manufacturer of condensed milk, for interest, one company, claimed Mr. Lee had, in ten years, profits of 1600 per cent) and too little to the farmer.

"Financial men say that agriculture is responsible for the present depression," said Mr. Lee. "We do not complain often, but we take exception to that statement. In Denmark, for instance, they have a co-operative organization for the manufacture of milk into butter and cheese, in Great Britain, in Germany, consuming nations in the world, we find co-operative wholesale societies which have their own stores and have laboring and manufacturing centres. They distribute profits to those who have bought from them. The more you buy, the greater profits that you get back at the end of the year."

"In this country we have absolutely nothing of this kind, nor can we expect to have it. The housewife in this country does not have to live so economically as the Scots, and on things she can go to whichever store she wants. We need some effective co-operation amongst the producers."

HARD TIMES HELPFUL

"The dairy industry," he said, "has made its greatest strides during times of depression. More perfect forms of production and marketing will arise from this depression. We need a pooling system for the distribution of our milk. This won't happen overnight, but it will come eventually."

"As a result of the big mergers of milk companies, because of facilities for transportation, new channels of trade are opening. Mergers in other industries have always been beneficial to the shareholders in those industries. Out of the mergers has come a bettered condition. We, in our industry, will have to work along a somewhat similar line."

"The greatest load overhanging the milk situation is the accumulation of butterfat and no market for it. There has been a falling off in the purchase price in the great cities due to the decrease in the pay envelope. But there is not much change in the skim milk business, in the condensed milk industry as in milk high in butterfat and special milk."

NO LESS PRODUCTION

"I do not think," said Mr. Lee, "that we should consider a failing off of production. What we need to do is to increase our efficiency and improve our stock. Live stock improvement should welcome anything along the line of fully accredited herds and blood tests. If western Canada takes out some of our best puro breds and the United States buys more, are we in a position to supply in almost unlimited numbers these markets that will soon be opened?"

"The west has got to come to diversified farming. Farmers out there are beginning to realize that they cannot have all their eggs in one basket. They must change their methods of agriculture and that is where our opportunity arises."

It was decided yesterday afternoon that all cattle consigned to the annual sale must be fully accredited. Furthermore, this year the cattle must all be blood-tested before they are shown at the sale. Eighty head were promised for the sale yesterday but by the time these have all been graded, the number will be considerably cut down. A maximum of sixty five head will be allowed to be consigned for sale.

Officers of the Holstein Breeders' Association elected yesterday were as follows:

President, Earl Bonter, Carrying Place; 1st Vice, Rockell Parks, Napanee; 2nd Vice President, E. O. Button, Brighton; Secretary-Treasurer, F. B. Nelson, Campbellford. Auditors, Fred Hubbs, Bloomfield, A. Phillips, Belleville.

FARMERS BENEFIT BY THE NEW POLICY

Farmers in this district, stated Mr. Harry Pearson, local Government Seed Inspector this morning, will benefit from the policy of the government which is offering to assist farmers to install and equip power seed-cleaning plants. The government has recognized the urgent need of producing and marketing better grain at a cheaper cost in order to compete with the low-cost grain of countries such as Russia.

Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of agriculture, who recently made an ex-, tensive trip into all parts of agriculture in the province, announced yesterday that assistance will be given in the form of grants amounting to 50 per cent of the invoice cost of cleaning machines plus freight to point of station; the grant not to exceed $500. Of the total grant paid, one half will be contributed by the Ontario Government and the remainder by Ottawa.

The grant will be made available to any individual or organization operating a seed cleaning machinery provided it is shown that there is need for such equipment in the district. In order to encourage the installation of cleaning outfits in districts where they would not prove successful or where uncleaned plants are already established and giving satisfactory cleaning service to farmers, such application must be accompanied by a petition signed by 25 farmers residing in the district that there is need in their particular district for such cleaning machinery.

GETS MONTH IN JAIL

Simcoe Jan. 30—Pleading guilty to a charge of attempted suicide, Richard Crowhurst, 27-year-old Windham Township man was sentenced to serve one month in the county jail. The offence took place at the home of Crowhurst's father-in-law where the accused had been residing along with his wife and two children.

RADIO FANS CORNER

Well it did show an improvement last night didn't it fans? Noisy in spots we will admit and the whistle was playing around some of the stations when we tried to get in but that's a minor detail and why worry about that when the stations came in with plenty volume?

At the close of Rudy Vallee's program last night received a phone call from a much worried radio fan inquiring just where she could tune in on the Chase and Sanborn program and the reason for this was the announcement Rudy made that starting with the next broadcast Maurice Chevalier would be the great star on the program. What a following that man has. She'll have a long wait I'm afraid because this is a Sunday evening feature, 8.30 however it will be worth it. Chevalier will be heard in 26 consecutive programs it was announced last night with Dave Rubinoff and his orchestra, now on your way rejoicing.

The Old Company program is on the air tonight at 7.30 over WEAF and CKGW and I'll give you a personal guarantee you'll like it. The tang of the sea flavours it tonight because the male quartet include chanties and songs that were sung "Before the Mast." The opening number will be most appropriate, "Anchors Aweigh."

Uncle Abe and David at 8.45 from WEAF don't forget and we'll hope they have better luck tonight fliting "Waddling" Dufty with a new suit so that he can go to New York with the boys at the end of the week. Jessica Dragonnette and the Cavaliers at 8 and at 9 our friends the Clicquot Club Eskimos.

Radio Keith Orpheum bring several good artistes to the microphone tonight during the broadcast at 10.30 and heard over WEAF of course so tune in and see if any of your favorites are there. Vincent Lopez at 11.

The Footlites at 7.45 from WJZ under the direction of Phil Spitalny you bet that's something. Billy Jones and Ernie Hare at 9 and the Quakers at 10. Florence Richardson at midnight. Did you hear Duke's "Mood Indigo" last night it sure was mean.

STIRLING

Stirling, Jan. 29 By Mail— Mrs. Clements is slowly recovering from her serious illness, we are pleased to report that Mrs. C. W. Thompson is also improving.

The three children of Mr. Carl Conley are seriously ill. Dr. Chant was called in consultation with Drs. Carlisle and Jones on Monday evening.

Mr. George Reynolds is not gaining as was hoped for and can only sit up a short time each day.

Mrs. W. L. Fox is still confined to bed although somewhat better.

Mr. James' Cranshan is improving we are pleased to report.

Mrs. J. M. Magee spent a few days last week with her sister Mrs. Darwin Green, Bayside, assisting her sister in the care of Mrs. Green's daughter Thelma, who was suffering from pneumonia, we are able to report Thelma as having passed the crisis if complications do not ensue.

Mrs. W. A. Hume and two children Jean and Alex spent a few days last week with her parents Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Anderson.

The funeral of the late Mr. Geo. Alex. Ferguson, Dr. H. H. Agnew was held in the home of Dr. Alger on Monday afternoon Jan. 26th, the remains were laid to rest in the Cemetery.

Mr. Alex had been in ill health for some time and was stopping with his brother.

The many friends of his boyhood days were very sorry to learn of the death of Mr. Fred Girdwood, druggist, of Perth which took place last Thursday after an illness of some months with heart trouble, he leaves his sorrowing wife and four children, James, Robert, Alice and Nancy, all practically grown up. Mrs. Girdwood is a daughter of the late Dr. Sprague who practiced in Stirling for many years. The funeral of the late Mrs. R. D. Belshaw was held on Tuesday, Jan. 27th in the home; Rev. A. L. Geen of Belleville conducting the service. The pall bearers were Messrs. J. R. Belshaw, of Madoc, Roy Belshaw, sons; Geo. Belshaw, Suttmer Belshaw, brothers-in-law of deceased, Claude Belshaw, and Jack Empey of Belleville nephews.

Friends and relatives from a distance were Mr. George Johnston and two daughters from Napanee; Mrs. George Huffman, Madoc; Mr. and Mrs. R. Wellman, Madoc; Mr. Donald Madoc; Mrs. Moon, Madoc; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Empey of Belleville.

The deceased leaves her sorrowing husband, 2 sons Robert of Madoc and Roy at home and one daughter Pearl and one sister Mrs. George Empey of Madoc.

The deceased was Jane Comerford, daughter of John and Janet Comerford and was born in Camilton in 1858, later her parents moved to Eldorado. On July 17, 1889 she was married to her bereaved husband.

Nine years ago she suffered a stroke and never really recovered from it though at the last she contracted pneumonia.

SINGING OF NEW HYMNS

With the combined voices of the members of the four United Church choirs of Belleville, singing in the melody and then in part song, members of the United Church congregations of Belleville gathered last evening their first impression of the new hymnal of the church, which is soon to be issued. The introduction to the new hymns and tunes in the book took place at Bridge Street United Church parlors when Rev. Dr. Alexander MacMillan, secretary of the Committee on Church Worship and Ritual in the United Church of Canada and editor of the new hymn book outlined a few of the new features which is a little of their history in words and music. Dr. MacMillan is one of the greatest authorities in Canada on church music and has assisted in the preparation of other hymn books. At the present time he is addressing students at Queen's University, Kingston. He knows the words and tunes of hymns, their intimate history, and he hummed the airs as the accompanist played hymn after hymn from the new book.

The treasury vaults of the new hymn book were opened and new hymns brought out for the benefit of the congregations, to give them a lively knowledge of the hymns which they will shortly have to sing.

• • • • •

Dr. MacMillan more than surprised his audience with his knowledge of hymnology, his practical gifts as director of music for he took charge of the combined choirs and indicated how the expression should bring out the thought. Dr. Ernest MacMillan of Toronto, the noted Canadian organist, who is not unknown in Belleville, is the son of Rev. Dr. MacMillan.

"There is a great movement in England and Canada towards more and more emphasis on the place of praise in worship. Rev. Dr. MacMillan said the trend promised a development the like of which has not been in many generations past.

The wealth of the new hymnal led him to comment. "When we can get the best and purest music there is no need to go to the poor, sentimental and sicky in music".

Beautiful expression in music of the church's life through worship of sor g was Dr. MacMillan's description of the part of hymn singing in the life of the church. The Supreme Court of the Church has decided to have a commission for praise and for the last a half years of enthusiastic labor the new hymnody of the United Church is an actual fact. Three hundred thousand volumes will be issued by the first of May for use in the churches in Canada.

Dr. MacMillan made it clear that the people could take for granted that the great mass of the familiar hymnody and psalmody of the church would be in the new hymnal. "I intend tonight to lead you in pastures new, the literature and music which have been brought to us in the new hymnal we have, but the music is largely new. This treasure-house has things new, in the sense of new to us," he said. Dr. MacMillan explained that this was a preparation for the coming of the hymnal, "proving that it is not impossible and not even difficult to sing songs we have never heard before."

• • • • •

The method used last night at "the first impression of the new hymn book", was to have the pianists, Mr. Hunt and Mr. Riggs, after the hymns selected had been described both as to words and music and a short historical sketch given to play the melody, the choristers, of the four United Church choirs of the city, John Street, Bridge Street, Holloway Street and the Tabernacle United to sing a verse of the melody in unison, then the choristers to sing in four parts and after this the congregation to sing. The effect was splendid that Dr. MacMillan felt called upon to congratulate both choristers and the congregation on their response to the riches of the new hymns. This he felt he said was the best way in which to promote congregational praise.

• • • • •

"Round me falls the Night: Saviour, stay by Light" was the first hymn. The editor of the new hymnal gave the opinion that there should be a large number of evening hymns. This hymn was by Samuel Sebastian Wesley, grandson of Charles Wesley, a great musician, organist of Winchester. In music while the melody is Lutheran and is known on the continent of Europe. The music of this song illumines the words and sings itself.

• • • • •

The second hymn sung was a morning hymn

"We have spent the silent night
And joy to see the cheerful light
That rireth in the east."

Words are by George Cuscoigne, a senior contemporary of Shakespeare, in the age when lyric expression reached its highest point. Robert Bridges, the poet laureate, has touched the hymn here and there ' to modernize some of the words and the music is by the great Hayden, and in his exquisite beauty of melody.

Another morning hymn, is "Sweet is the Breath of Morning Air", the original tune by Sebastian Wesley. This was sung by the choir only.

• • • • •

"A hymn majestical", one of those resembling the chorale, was the next hymn, MacMillan. It was, "Praise to the Lord, the Almighty, the King of Creation". The director explained that in the time of the Reformation Luther setting forth on his crusade wished to bring back the congregational singing which had been lost for centuries. He assembled melodies or composed them and gathered composers about him. The result was the chorale. The hymn under consideration is from the century following Luther and the words are by a German poet named Neander, translated into English.

"In the days of the Reformation: when old melodies were put into four parts, the melody was not sung by the women's voices. Men's tenor voices sang the melody, women's voices acted as embroidery, and the bases added embroidery to the embroidery. The tenors led the people in singing."

• • • • •

"My Song is Love unknown,
My Saviour's Love to me."

This is a seventeenth century lyric by Samuel Crossman, and the tune is named "Wesley". It is also associated with a beautiful communion hymn in the new hymn book.

"The Lord's My Shepherd, I'll Not Want" is sung to a Welsh air.

• • • • •

"I fell upon a summer's day
When Jesus walked in Galilee
The mothers brought Their children to His knee."

In this hymnody is brought up to the present day, the words by Rev. Stopford Brooke, a well known English man of letters while the tune is "Childhood" by Davies. The first three verses are narrative and the rest of the hymn is prayer.

• • • • •

"Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah
Pilgrim through this barren land."

The hymn words are by William Williams and one of the three tunes is a Welsh one brought in by Gypsy Smith, and well known in England and spreading its fame on this continent.

OLD LINCOLN SQUARE THEATRE IS BURNED

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—A six-story building, housing the old Lincoln Square Theatre, at 66th street and Broadway, was attacked by fire late last night, causing possible loss of life.

An entire company of eight or ten firemen were trapped on the fourth floor and fell through to the third but Joseph Gehr way out. Three newspaper photographers were badly Burned and one reporter near death.

Five alarms were sounded shortly after the blaze started and 350 firemen began pouring tons of water into the building. All the patrons had left the theatre before the flames were discovered but many tenants could be seen strugling to safety.

TEACHERS GET INCREASE

Cobalt Jan. 30—The public school board adopted with one dissenting vote a report of the finance committee providing for an increase of $30 for each of 16 teachers on the staff and of $100 for the other two. Principal Elliott and Miss McDevitt who take the entrance classes. The trustees were agreed that $1,000 of the increased grant to be received this year from the province amounting to over $4,000 should be apportioned to the teachers.

SALESMAN REMANDED

Looks Forward to 100th Birthday; Former Belleville Lady Will Be 100 Years Old on Monday

Came to Belleville Many Years Ago from Ireland — Married Here in 1852 to a Railway Contractor — Now Living at Superior, Wisconsin, with Daughters —Still Sings the Old Songs.

To live one hundred years is a distinction achieved by few people in these days of hustle and bustle, speed madness and hectic manner of living generally, when even the three score and ten years span of life fixed by the Bible as the ordinary tenure of a person's life, beyond which is labor and sorrow, seems difficult to attain but there are here and there instances of folks, even now, living a century, and the Bay of Quinte district has a fair share of centenarians.

On Monday, February 2, in the city of Superior, Wisconsin, if she is spared, Mrs. Timothy Hannifin, formerly of Belleville, will celebrate her one hundredth birthday. A letter received by a resident of Belleville from Mr. C. W. Nash, City Comptroller, of Superior, Wisconsin, says that Mrs. Hannifin is looking forward to her hundredth birthday with pleasant anticipation, and her friends hope to make it a memorable event. Mr. O'Hara was at one time a resident of Belleville and occupied the residence on John street now occupied by Dr. Chant, afterwards moving into the house now occupied by Mr. Percy Geen. Coming from Belleville himself naturally Mr. O'Hare is doubly interested in Mrs. Hannifin. He writes:

"Mrs. Hannifin landed in Belleville when a young woman from Ireland. She was a professional lacemaker and has frequently told me that she worked for weeks at mother's home making lace, she at the home of Dr. Pradgay's mother and at other homes in Belleville. I have not seen her for a couple of years but talked to me a great deal at one period of her life about the people of Belleville and she remembered many of them than I did. She just loved to hear about Belleville people. She has raised a large family here and has been quite a wonderful woman."

Mr. O'Hare enclosed with his letter a clipping from the Superior Telegram relating to Mrs. Hannifin reading as follows:

In a little brown house which is located directly west of St. Francis hospital in East End there lies a little grey haired woman who will celebrate her 100th birthday on Monday, February 2. She is Mrs. Timothy Hannifin, a resident of "Old Town" and this particular house for the past 50 years.

Up until a year and a half ago, Mrs. Hannifin was very active for her years, going for daily walks, and being up about the house during the greater share of each day. One can see while entering the dining room in her home, she turned to go up the stairs leading to the second floor and slipped, falling heavily and breaking her hip.

Since then she has been confined to bed. Each day she is placed on a chair in her bedroom for a few minutes. The late Dr. C. S. Knox, after her accident told Mrs. Hannifin that she would live probably 14 days at the most. Mrs. Hannifin is still living.

The two daughters, Mrs. T. A. King and Mrs. Elizabeth McDonald who are devoting their life to taking care of her mother, say that Mrs. Hannifin is possessed of a mind unusually active for one of her years.

Her mind is remarkably clear. She answers any question put to her clearly and intelligently. Although her voice is now weakened she still manages to speak distinctly.

Poems that she learned as a girl, and songs that were once popular are delights in reciting and singing. During the entire day she considers a minute wasted in which she is not able to talk to someone.

Ken Murray and some pay, er, spa as extra to "Lesthernecking"

Irene Dunne in "Lesthernecking"

Five nationally known players vie for comedy honors in Radio Pictures' "Lesthernecking," which will open tomorrow at The Capitol Theatre.

They are Eddie Foy, Jr., Benny Rubin, Ned Sparks, Ken Murray and Louise Fazenda.

Foy and Murray are clever vaudeville and musical-comedy stars; the latter was on the Orpheum circuit eight years, the other just stepped out of a Fred Sons show, "Hippies."

Benny Rubin, remembered for his solder part in "Marianne" and other pictures, brings a comedy flare to "Lesthernecking."

She recites yards of poetry, and remembers distinctly, many of the nursery rhymes she learned as a girl in Ireland. At Christmas time she sang Christmas carols all through the days. One of her great favorites is "Light of Other Days," which she can recite and sing from start to finish.

Among her accomplishments was the raising of 10 children, four of whom are now alive. Besides Mrs. King and Mrs. McDonald, she has two sons, Charles Hannifin, Cincinnati, Ohio and F. P. Hannifin, Pond City, Oklahoma.

She was born in Limerick City, Ireland in 1831, not far from the ancient Dominican church, Baker Place. She was baptized in this church. As a child she was raised by her grandmother and later went to school at the Convent of Presentation, which was founded by four wealthy nuns who came over to Ireland from France. At this convent she remained until she was 20 years old, when she came to the United States.

She was married in Belleville, Ontario, Canada in 1852 to Mr. Hannifin, her husband was a contractor and was engaged in building railroads. Prior to coming to Superior he was employed in working in that part of the Canadian Pacific road between Port Arthur and Winnipeg.

The family came to Superior in 1881. Mr. Hannifin had the contract to build the Airline railway out of Superior. The company planning to build the railway went broke, a boatload of equipment brought here by Mr. Hannifin was sold by him to another contractor. Because of children reaching school age, it was decided that the family build a home here and send the children to school. One of the men who built the home, in which they still reside, was C. J. Morrisey, who died Thursday at the age of 91.

The family joined the St. Francis church upon their settling here and have been members ever since. Mrs. Hannifin built the Hotel Superior and managed it for a number of years before retiring. He died 24 years ago.

Mrs. Hannifin voted for the first time in the presidential election, when she cast her vote for Alfred E. Smith, Democratic candidate.

Although her sight is practically gone, her hearing still remains very acute. She can still distinguish various objects when brought to her attention.

Her pet aversion is to be left alone. Then she calls until one of her daughters appear. She always has them know exactly what her desires are and never a day passes but what she demands to be placed on a chair so that she can rest awhile.

Another great vocal favorite of hers is The Last Rose of Summer and when she sings a number of times daily.

She also takes an interest in the affairs of people in the city, and inquires intently when her daughters read to her from newspapers, but for the most part she lives in the past.

When asked if she were glad to live to be 100 years of age she said yes, but she didn't like to think of it. Her 100th birthday will be no different from any other day. She will receive telegrams from her sons and other well wishers and will listen quietly while they are read. Then she will sing some good old songs, talk awhile with her daughter and look forward to her 101st birthday, she says.

STRONG POSITION OF DOMINION BANK

60th Annual Meeting Reports Show Very Strong Liquid Position

The Dominion Bank Statement for the year 1930 shows the earnings and deposits well maintained, and the Bank's liquid position particularly strong.

The past year was one of the most difficult Canadian business has experienced within several decades, and because of this the Bank's excellent statement covering its operations for 1930 may be viewed with much satisfaction. The Net Profits were $1,409,744 or only $113,000, below the previous year when they were the largest in the banks history. After distributing approximately $910,000 in the form if dividends and a bonus to shareholders, providing $180,000 for taxation, and a contribution of $50,000 to Officers' Pension Fund, $200,000, was written off Bank Premises Account and $444,000 carried forward in Profit and Loss Account, an increase over the previous year's figures of $70,000.

Deposits were exceptionally well maintained and appear in the Statement at $107,432,406. Thogo bearing interest declined less than $7,500,000 or less than 2 per cent.

As has been stated the Bank's liquid position is particularly strong. The percentages of Cash Assets and immediately available Assets are both higher than a year ago, with the first at $25,664,000, or approximately 21 per cent and the second at $54,896,246, or nearly 53.50 per cent of Liabilities to the Public.

The keen demand for commercial loans during 1930 naturally reduced the Bank's figures under this heading to $64,804,522. The decrease, however, was only 12 per cent compared with 1929.

The Bank's holdings of Dominion, Provincial and Municipal bonds and debentures increased by $2,000,000.

The Paid Up Capital of the Bank is $7,000,000, with the Reserve Fund and Undivided Profits $9,444,210.

SUPERINTENENTS TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Mr. Simeon Fox was named delegate to the Engineers' and Superintendents' Conference by the County Council on Thursday.

No action was taken with regard to an application of a grant of $500.00 for the Salvation Army.

Mr. Sandercock was appointed delegate to the conference of superintendents of county homes and the usual membership of ten dollars was ordered paid.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind's application for a grant, similar to last year's was granted.

TIDE OF BUSINESS PROSPERITY NOW SETTING IN

After the severe business depression of nine years ago there were many times when Ontario Business Colleges could not fully supply the required number of young people to fill business positions reported to the College. History has a way of repeating itself. If the tide of business prosperity is now setting in as many leading business men and economists believe it is there will be opportunities in plenty for those who equip themselves for them now or in the near future. Those who have received the O.B.C. business training easily surpass those who are not so well equipped.

If you value thoroughness and efficiency, and want the best courses in all commercial subjects, attend Ontario Business College. Here are highly qualified, experienced instructors, giving much individual help, and taking a strong personal interest in the progress of each student. You may start at any time and make your own rate of progress, according to your own ability and application to your work. Earnest, industrious students cannot fail to make rapid progress and the comprehensive O.B.C. course can be completed within a brief period.

There will never be a better time to start your course than right now. At any rate ask for a copy of the College prospectus and see how comprehensive the courses are and what other advantages young people have achieved as the result of a few months' attendance at Ontario Business College.

FRED NEWMAN HAD HIS LEG AMPUTATED

Prompt Action Saved Car Which Caught on Fire at Picton

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, Jan. 30—Ex-Mayor Fred Newman was taken to the Prince Edward County Hospital on Thursday afternoon and operated on at four o'clock, one of his legs, affected by gangrene, being removed. His condition shortly after when the correspondent called, was said to be as well as could be expected. Dr. Council of Kingston and Dr. Howard Hubbs, of Picton, are the attending physicians. Hundreds of inquiries as to the progress of Mr. Newman have been received during his illness of the past several months.

Prompt action by Dr. Ray Clapp and some passersby averted what might have been a serious fire. Dr. Clapp was passing the car when it caught fired and set some oil on the floor afire. Prompt application of snow on the interior extinguished the smouldering fire and the resulted in the blaze being extinguished without the use of water.

The choir of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene held a social evening in the Parish House. Each member came dressed in the attire of children and the varied costumes protected many a hearty laugh. Games and dancing were enjoyed. Mrs. R. J. Webster, choir leader, Mrs. Robert Sayers and Mrs. B. S. Welsh looked after the refreshments which were served.

The Rev. Canon Gould, of Chicago is visiting relatives in the county.

Sheriff D. J. Barker went to Toronto on Thursday where he visited the wife of Mrs. Fred F. Kelly, daughter of the late Judge Jellett, and sister of the late Mrs. Arthur Smith. Mrs. Kelly died on Tuesday, and the funeral service was conducted on Thursday.

There was a fall of snow Thursday morning which improved sleighing conditions.

Mr. W. A. Wright has been appointed representative to the College Board by Picton Public School Board.

Mr. Frank Starr is visiting in Toronto.

The A.Y.P.A. Badminton Club held a social evening on Wednesday. The committee in charge was composed of Misses H. Haddon, N. Myers, and E. Morrow.

ROYAL PATIENT'S CONDITION WORSE

London, Jan. 30.—Physicians to the Princess Beatrice, King's aunt, issued a bulletin yesterday afternoon, saying the patient's condition was less satisfactory. The 74 year old Princess is suffering from acute bronchitis and a fractured arm. Her daughter, the Queen Victoria of Spain is hurrying to her bedside. Less satisfactory condition was due to some attacks of heart weakness.

BIG OFFER FOR OTTAWA FRANCHISE

OTTAWA, Jan 30.—An offer of $100,000 for the Ottawa Senators Hockey Club was reported made last night, while Senators were engaged in a listing National Hockey League tilt with Toronto Maple Leafs. Harold Cook, Ottawa lawyer, stated he had made the offer for a certain Ottawa client or clients but officers of the club did not confirm his statement.

The price is the one which the present club-owners have indicated would meet their demands if the group should continue to operate the team here. If the offer is accepted, which is dependent on more or less minor details, it would mean the team would remain in the capital.

Mr. Cook declined to divulge for whom he was acting in the matter, nor would he say if one or more persons were making the offer for the hockey team's purchase. Earlier unofficial reports have had it, however, that a syndicate of influential hockey fans and service club men of the city might be formed to take over the team. In these reports, Mr. Cole was mentioned as the legal mind behind the movement.

That the present owners of the Senators are ready to sell was made known, a few days ago by Redmond Quain, director of the Ottawa Hockey Association and its legal adviser. He announced the association could not afford to operate the team any longer and also that it is known that better terms of purchase would be afforded to interests which would continue to operate the team in the capital. Quain's intimation that the association was up against it financially concerned a falling off in gate receipts which has marked most of the Senators' home games since they hit the slump which has deposited them in the cellar position of the league's Canadian section standing.

One of the minor details on which Mr. Cook said the deal hinges, is known to be with regard to terms up for rental of the Auditorium, in which the Senators play their games here. It was not stated in the report whether the team would be taken over immediately or at the end of the present season, if the deal is put through.

Neither President William Foran of the Ottawa Hockey Association, nor Director Redmond Quain would confirm that a concrete offer had been received from Mr. Cook, but Quain declared offers had been received for the team as a whole, and also for individual Senator players. Quain said he had been requested by those who had tendered for the team, not to divulge their identities for the present.

This is indication of the maladministration which I have charged and which I shall every time I charge it."—Applause followed.

Claims Conservative Backing

"He talks of the Stimson case being sub-judice. Wednesday night the Attorney General refused to speak on it, he refused to answer questions, he started to speak, however, last night, C. W. Bell, who is a lawyer, spoke on the Stimson case. It was all right for him to talk it until 9.30 but at 9.31 it was sub-judice for the Attorney General.

"You will remember that I challenged the Attorney General to a joint debate and you will remember that the house after the Attorney General arrested the heads of the Stimson Company.

"Immediately after these arrests some of my newspaper friends in Toronto began to call me up and tell me to get after the Stimson case at once, and I will say this, that it was owing to the co-operation of a leading Conservative that I was able to secure the evidence which I did secure and which I did present.

"It was owing to the co-operation of one of the chief Anglican clergymen in the city of Toronto, who is not only a power in that capacity, but a power in the Conservative party that, I learned how, long before the crash came, that personal representations had been made to the Attorney General.

Richard A. Locke, in 1825, announced the discovery of a vast human population in the moon. The story went through the newspapers and was printed in pamphlet form.

MERCURY GETS KNOCKOUT TODAY

Three Above Zero Temperature Recorded During the Night

Kid Mercury took a "sock on the beezer" today and went down for the long count. Old Jack Frost proved to be too good for him and brought with him as seconds a howling wind and a miniature blizzard. Although the blizzard did not assume proportions serious enough to disrupt telephone or telegraph service it proved to be decidedly uncomfortable for those who had to walk in it and the busses and taxis did a land office business. From a maximum of thirty-one above yesterday the mercury dropped to a meagre three above early this morning and at noon today had only recovered enough to climb up at the count of thirteen.

Official temperatures released by the pump house today were:

SENIORS FACE QUEEN'S SQUAD SATURDAY NIGHT

Belleville Will be Strengthened by Addition of Norm Johnson, Madoc

The biggest game and the one which means all to "The Cherries" will be played tomorrow night at the Belleville Arena, when the third tilt between Queen's and the locals will be played. The game was scheduled for tonight but was postponed until Saturday evening at the request of the Tricolor, the members of which team are attending a social function at the Col. lege tonight. Consequently the management of the teams here believing that many wanted to see the game, and Belleville being a Saturday night city, it would be wise to start the game later in the evening and the rubber will be faced at nine-fifteen. Practically all the business of the city is completed by this time and it will give the employees in the different stores a chance to see a real hockey match. It is expected that a large number from the surrounding district will be on hand when the gong is sounded.—Charles E. Hanna, president of the Retail Merchants' Association has also requested the merchants to close a half hour earlier for this important game.

The Cherries will be strengthened for the tilt, Norm Johnston of Madoc, being included in the lineup. The player to be dropped for the contest has not been announced by Stan Burgoyne. "Derby" Jeffery will be in goal with Montgomery and Holway on the defence. The first line will be composed of Leacham, Smith and Mulvihill, and the second line will be picked from Weir, Hull, Davis and Johnson. This should give the team plenty of fleetness, strength with all kinds of speed on the front line. The speed is necessary to compete against skaters such as Murphy, Ike, Squires and McKelvey. No doubt Queen's will bring their strongest team to the city for it will be necessary for either team to win their home games to stay in the running. The locals are in first class shape for the tussle and expect a win tomorrow night.

LEAFS' FURIOUS RALLY DEFEATED OTTAWA TEAM 3-2

Ottawa Jan. 30—Toronto Maple Leafs unleashed a furious closing attack to net a trio of goals and win from Ottawa Senators here last night after the lowly pupmsters appeared to have the game in the bag. The win lifted the Toronto crew out of their deadlock with Montreal Maroons and into second place in the National Hockey League's Canadian section standing.

Manager Dave Gill protested a ruling changed line-up in an effort to lift the Senators out of the slump which had tobogganed them into the bottom berth in the standing and for the first period the Senators dominated by the homesters. They shot a goal in each of these periods, Len Gravenour and Bill Touhey doing the netting on passes from Art Gange.

From the opening whistle of the final frame however, the Leafs forced a hot pace and in the space of five seconds wiped out their opponents seemingly safe lead, Charlie Conacher took Joe Primeau's rushing pass to net the first and then Harvey Jackson tallied from the following face-off on a combination thrust with the slim Primeau. The game was won by Jackson with five minutes of the game left on a lone dash.

Chabot Tested Early

A mixture of hard luck and loose work ruined two golden Senator chances in the first minute of play. The Leaf defence was demoralized by the fury of the homesters' starting dash, and play was taken right in on Lorne Chabot, but the non-functioning combination nullified the Ottawa goaling. Coach Art Ross of the visitors was smiling in saving from Kilrea from a few feet out and then shoveling Lamb's hit on the rebound.

The early kills the Leafs made for goals were nearly all on long shots. Clancy roared right through the Senator ranks and his home folk gave him a big hand, which grew even bigger as the Ottawa netman muffed the King's drive. The second string Ottawa front line took up the winning pace where the regulars left off, and finally shot into the lead when Grosvenor took the rebound of the homesmen's previous shot and gribbled in between Chabot's skates.

Leafs made it hot for the Ottawa guardian, when they had the odd man through penalties. Jackson was a Target on the attack and his hard shooting was a continual source of worry to Beveridge.

LOCAL CURLERS ELIMINATED IN INITIAL ROUND

Two Rinks Took Part in District Cup Series at Oshawa

Belleville Curling Club rinks were eliminated in the first round of the District Cup Competition at Oshawa, yesterday, while Cobourg also fell in the first round, leaving Colborne and Oshawa to play the finals for the trophy. A mix-up occurred due to insufficient ice at Cobourg, and the rinks were taken to Oshawa to play the competition. Belleville, and Colborne rinks arrived at Oshawa on the appointed time, Oshawa and Campbell ford not putting in an appearance.

It was necessary to have two degrees of ice before the competition could be started and there was not that much frost at the Cobourg rink on account of the mild weather. Arrangements were made with Oshawa Curling Club to use their artificial ice and the rinks all started for the Motor City at noon.

The first draw was made in the afternoon with Oshawa opposing Belleville and Colborne taking on Cobourg. The ice was tricky on some of the sheets and it was unfortunate, that Belleville drew the worst two. The ice however was kept to the Oshawa curlers and they piled up a substantial lead in the early rounds, which could not be overcome. Hardin and Hare fought a close game until the middle of the game, when Hare secured a five-end by "packing the front of the house with guards" and this end was practically the downfall of the Belleville rink. Pitzey had a close game with Hamilton and the tricky ice bothered his rink somewhat. J. Thompson, vice skip for Holland, did not miss a rock the entire game and his rink, thirty of half-raising shots just when they hurt.

In the other game Mayhew of Colborne defeated Cobourg all along with a 24-9 victory over George Mitchell. Harry Lucas, the other Cobourg skip, won by six shots from Ira Edwards who was the beat played game of the first. round but it was not sufficient to overcome the lead piled up by Mayhew in the second. Draw was played after supper but the Belleville rinks left before the game was started. The results of the first round were:

"Y" Alleys

In a real wild and woolly game in the Teachers' Inter-Group Series, Bal. Lally's O.S.D. "A" team took all four points from Alex Gordon's O.S.D. "B" gang. The excitement in this game was intense and a glance at the scores will show some fine singles.

The Moore Ladies' League results in six points for No. 3 team, 4 points for No. 2 and two points for No. 1.

The Royals and Nationals battled out their Junior Ladies' League scheduled game, the Royals taking three points and the Nationals one.

DOG POISONERS WERE ARRESTED

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The mystery of an epidemic of dog poisoning in the exclusive Park Avenue section was solved today when Mrs. Helen Corel, housekeeper for John J. Smith at a real estate man of 971 Lexington avenue, pleaded guilty to sprinkling powdered arsenic in front of Smith's home. She was fined $5. 00. At least two of the many dogs poisoned, belonging to one man, were worth $5,000 each.

Dogs, all blooded, of all breeds, had been dying in convulsions all over the neighborhood of Smith's house. The S.P.C.A. investigated and a S.P.C.A. agent saw Mrs Cole sprinkling arsenic in the sidewalk. She was arrested and pleaded guilty today. Her assistant wanted to keep dogs away from her house.

Smith was in court during the hearing and interrupted frequently to explain Mrs. Corel's side. The S.P.C.A. attorney asked for a summons for him, but it was refused. He paid Mrs. Corel's fine.

Every Meal Caused Misery

TANLAC Restored Health!

Is your indigestion as bad as this? Do you pay for every meal you eat with hours of suffering? Are you growing steadily weaker? Does gas and sinking spells on palpitation? Does sleep mean nightmares keep you awake at night?

This was the condition of Mr. James Evans, 418 Bay Street, Toronto, when he started to use TANLAC. He had tried lots of other remedies, and did not have much faith in TANLAC But the first bottle of this wonderful tonic changed his opinion because of the marvelous improvement it showed in his health.

"Before I knew it I ever would have pulled up to 175 pounds, where I am now, and it is today," says Mr. Evans," he writes. "TANLAC restored my appetite entirely and I eat as others do—regularly as I did forty years ago."

BARBER "SHAVED" FLYING CLOUDS

Five to Four Score Rubbed In to Aeronauts by Latherers

The Barbers hockey team "shaved" the Flying Clouds to a frazzle at Simpson's rink Wednesday, the score being 5-4. The tonsorial artists "shaved" the Clouds early in the game and after "singeing" them in the second canto, proceeded to "rub it in" in the third. The game was for the championship of the Inter-Workers' League and the Barbers let by that valiant old war-horse "Pete" Reece. There were two three-goal "Herman" Osborne, he of radio fame and "Ab" Wonnacott contributed numerous counters but it was noted that their versatility in the scoring line did not interfere one of their characteristic rallies. Roy Maddox in goal was unbeatable, the Clouds team was composed mostly of "Flying Officers" and "Red Trio" made things interesting for their barber friends. The Clouds were not disgraced in that they "flied" today and have challenged their rivals to another battle same to be played under Marquis of Queensberry rules. Fly lineups.

Flying Clouds, goal W. Anselstine, defence J. Maslin, and G. Cooke; centre Joe Mattis, wings H. Anselstine and G. Anselstine, sub Morgan.

Barbers, goal Morgan, defence Reinco and Moreau, centre Osborne; wings Casey and Wonnacott, subs Palmer and Oliphant.

Smith was in court during the hearing and interrupted frequently to explain Mrs. Corel's side. The S.P.C.A. attorney asked for a summons for him, but it was refused. He paid Mrs. Corel's fine.

Here and There

1931

More than two million lusicious salmon and 40,000 trout yearlings were placed in Nova Scotia lakes and streams during 1930 from the fish hatchery at Lake John.

About $80,000,000 was spent in Canada in 1930 on hydro-electric power development and installations, and it is expected that fully $200,000,000 will be spent for a similar purpose during the next three years.

Consumption of natural gas in Canada during 1929 for domestic purposes was calculated to be sufficient to displace 6,000,000 tons of coal. Natural gas is found in abundance in Alberta and the Province of Western Ontario, and the Maritime Provinces.

The Province of New Brunswick's representation at Sportsmen's Shows in the United States this year will be larger than ever and the territory will be invaded. Its first exhibit will be at the New York Sportsmen's Show at Boston, February 7-14, and also at the Philadelphia Sportsmen's and Motor Boat Show, February 21-28.

Six thousand pounds of salmon, white fish from Northern Saskatchewan recently were flown to Fort Pacific from Lake Albert in Winnipeg and points beyond. It was carried 150 miles to Prince Albert by aeroplane in one hour and a quarter, a trip that by motor conveyance means have taken from eight to eleven days.

When a 22-year-old woman recently fell from the wharf at Pier B, Vancouver, into the approximate 60 feet of Burrard Inlet, William Hilton, assistant chief clerk of the British Columbia Provincial Police of the Canadian Pacific Railway, without hesitation dived in after her. After a 20-minute battle in the chill waters succeeded in bringing her ashore. The woman will recover.

All Canada from here to the Pacific coast will be interested in the latest Governor-General of Canada Trophy, recently won on Canadian-Pacific liner Montclare, which sailed for England recently. Starting with Saint John system, it included, supreme of Nova Scotia scallops, eggs of western lamb, roast Ontario chicken, and bonne maple leaf as a sweet.

Work has started on the building of the British Columbia link of the Trans-Canada Telephone Line. A direct system through the Crow's Nest Pass to Calgary will be provided to replace the present system of routing telephone calls east from British Columbia across the United States and back. The proposed system will cost $1,250,000 and will involve the erection of telephone lines, 125 miles of which have already been built.

Marriage at sea has happened before and will probably happen again, but the distinction of being baptized at sea is claimed to be unique and this occurred when two infant children were baptized in mid-Atlantic by Dr. Oliver C. Rankin, Scottish minister aboard Canadian Pacific liner Minnedosa, recently. The mother and children were returning to Canada from Great Britain and the minister is returning after a course of lectures at McGill University.

GIRLS WINNERS IN ESSAY TRIALS

Eunice Reid and Rhoda Simmons Awarded Prizes for Essays

Eunice Reid, a pupil of Queen Mary School, succeeded in winning first prize in an essay competition, it was announced today by a total of 1,000 written about a story told last December at the school by A. H. Lyle, of Hamilton, Field Superintendent for Ontario of the Royal Templars.

Rhoda Simmons won premier honors at King George School.

In December the field representative of the Royal Templars of Temperance addressed the senior pupils of the King George School on the ills of the use of alcohol. At the close of the talk it was suggested that the talk be taken as material for an essay, and a prize was offered for the best essay from the pupils. In contest with a considerable number of pupils from the third and fourth classes, Miss Rhoda Simmons, a pupil in the junior fourth class, succeeded in winning the prize, a nice camera.

It was suggested that the prize be donated at the box social to be held in the Oddfellows' Hall tonight but, as Miss Reid was unable to attend, the presentation was arranged to take place at the regular morning exercises held in the Auditorium of the school.

Rev. Dr. MacTavish kindly consented to make the presentation which he did to the very excellent manner. He briefly addressed the assembled pupils, pointing out that Rhoda was to be highly congratulated both for the quality of her essay and as having learned a lesson concerning alcohol which some people never learn, and most people do not learn until they have reached a much more advanced age.

The second prize essay was the work of Miss Mary Musgrave, also a pupil in the junior fourth class.

THE BAD EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL

by Miss Rhoda Simmons

Alcohol is a very bad drink for any one, young or old, and we should all avoid drinking it. Even in sickness it should be avoided, for there are many other things that would take the place of it, and do better.

It is in all drinks such as wine, beer, whisky, brandy and gin. Water will quench thirst, therefore drink it, for it is the most healthful drink.

Alcohol in alcohol looks like water, and is very clear it is not at all like water. If you see a man who has been drinking alcohol you can easily tell the difference. Alcohol does not quench thirst, it only makes you want more and more of it.

Everybody knows it telling you about alcohol and its bad effect you should listen very carefully because it is very important for you to know about. Alcohol has many bad effects; it will dull the brain. Even a small quantity will do this. You do not feel it then. It harden the gray matter of the brain. It will also effect the heart, making it beat almost twice as fast as it naturally beats. Even a small quantity will increase the number of beats.

If a murderer is run too fast for a long time, it will wear out. The heart is the same way, so when you drink a large quantity of alcohol it makes the heart beat faster, and so it soon wears out and you die.

Alcohol will make the food toujn if you drink it. This makes food hard to digest. It has many other bad effects and we should never drink anything with alcohol in it.

REEVES DEPUTIES SEE RADIO PLANT

Municipalities Given Opportunity to Send Boys to Learn Trade

The members of the county council were entertained today by a visit through the Stewart Warner radio factory and the Alemite Company on Richmond Avenue and all were agreed, ably surprised with the conditions found there and the plant, that is in every municipality the right accord, ing a bright young man to the Stewart Warner factory for the purpose of learning the business. The reeves of the various municipalities will no doubt take advantage of the offer of Mr. Rowsome and send to the factory a bright young man who probably in future will rise high in the radio world. The young man sent will receive his wages same as other employees and will be given first hand information of the plant in general.

Warden Charles W. Thompson on behalf of the County Council, thanked Mr. Rowsome for the pleasure of visiting the factory and said that all were surprised at the progress the factory had made since its inception. "It has been a revelation," was the comment of Warden Thompson after the members had completed a tour of the plant, paying particular attention to the radio branch. Reeve Mitchell, of Thurlow, expressed regret that the municipalities which he represents, had not allowed the Alemite Corporation to leave the township and be joined with the City of Belleville and now stated that he by no means tend to the factory would be the best in the Township of Thurlow. Mr. Rowsome explained that the visit of the County Councillors was not one to be construed as advertising nor to sell stock in the company as a reserve of fifty, one millions had been built up by the parent company in Chicago. The young men who are chosen by the municipalities will come into the factory the first of July and will spend a year.

OBITUARY

MRS. H. R. STOCK

Many regrets were voiced today, when it was learned that Mrs. Stock, wife of Harry B. Stock, city treasurer, died in the Belleville General Hospital last night shortly after eleven o'clock. Mrs. Sherwood, a victim to a paralytic stroke yesterday afternoon and although it was successful and it was felt that Mrs. Stock after being a patient at Belleville General Hospital, was taken to Kingston, later returning to the city, where an operation was performed. The late Mrs. Stock lived recently at 44 Victoria Avenue for the past twenty-five years and previous to that resided on Sidney Street, Sidney, Madoc village, Frankford and Hamilton, she was born in Sidney Township, 64 years ago, the daughter of the late Samuel and Mary Curry, a society belle for education in Madoc and Belleville.

The late Mrs. Stock was exceedingly popular, her charming disposition and kindness towards others, gaining her many friends. Her demise at this time is sincerely sympathized with by a few months since her father the late Samuel Curry, passed away.

Besides here sorrowing husband, she leaves to mourn, brothers, Samuel and Elizabeth Ann, both at home. A brother, Fred Curry, is a merchant at Peterborough. The late Mrs. Stock was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and was a member of the Ladies' Aid of the church.

She was formerly a member of the choir at John Street Church and was prominent in local choral circles.

The funeral will take place from her late home on Monday afternoon with interment in Belleville cemetery.

WELLINGTON JONES

All that was mortal of the late Wellington Jones was laid to rest Tuesday afternoon in White's Cemetery, Sidney, many attending the obsequies of a highly respected citizen. A short service was held at the home, Cannifton, after which the cortege proceeded to Cannifton United Church, where the Rev. W. Merrick conducted a very impressive service.

The deceased was born April 17th, 1853, in Sidney, was married to Lorinda Wagar, who predeceased him enjoyed fifty-five years of wedded life. He farmed for a number of years, then retired and resided in Belleville previous to moving to Cannifton, where he resided for twelve years. He attended Canniston United Church, and was a Liberal in politics. He was a member of Eureka Lodge No. 283, A. F. & A. M., also a life member of Belleville Lodge, No. 81, I.O.O.F.

He leaves to mourn his death his widow and one half brother, Mr. Judson Kelly, of Sidney. Among those who attended the service were members from both lodges and Mr. Albert

WILLIAM J. HILL IS PRESIDENT OF CENT. FAIR BODY

Dates Alloted and Association Looks Forward to Most Successful Year

CO-OPERATION NEEDED

H. B. Stock Retired —Grants to Town and Village Fairs Discussed

William J. Hill of Madoc was elected President of the Central Ontario Fair Association at the annual meeting held in the city hall here yesterday afternoon. Mr. Hill is one of the most successful Fair promoters of Central Ontario and is one of the chief reasons for the success which the Madoc Fall Exhibition is now enjoying. He is a successful business man and while he has always been a member of the Association, he had declined the post on several occasions. He will doubtless fill the post acceptably as his predecessors have done.

Keen enthusiasm was manifest at the meeting yesterday which augurs well for the Association during the coming year of the Fair Boards were represented and all reported that prospects are bright for a successful year.

Mayor George A. Reid on behalf of the City of Belleville, welcomed the visitors and expressed the wish that the Association would continue to prosper as it has in the past. He complimented the officers and members on their splendid achievements. The auditors report was received and was satisfactory. President Harry B. Stock of Belleville presided and moved that one minute silence be observed for the late Dr. Hay of Campbellford who was one of the staunch supporters of the Association in this district.

The matter of dates was discussed and it was moved that all Fairs not represented, be communicated with, and informed of the dates alloted and advised to avoid confliction in these, selection insofar as possible. One delegate suggested that steps be taken to have the grants to Fairs naming conflicting dates withheld. Mr. W. J. Hill the new president said that it was merely a gentlemen's agreement and that the Association could do nothing in the matter of punishing those who did not co-operate, did not send delegates and named conflicting dates with those given by the Association.

R. H. Ketcheson, Secretary of the Belleville Fair suggested that all Secretaries of district Fairs send a list of officers to him. Ambrose Dafoe read the financial report of Belleville Fair which was commented upon favourably by the delegates following which the matter of grants to the local Exhibition was discussed. Mr. Dafoe fully explained this to the satisfaction of all present.

NEW OFFICERS

The following officers were named. Pres.—W. H. Hill, Madoc, moved by R. H. Ketcheson, seconded by H. Aylsworth.

1st Vice Pres.—Lester Boyes, Napanee, moved by A. E. Galnan, seconded by J. Locke.

2nd Vice Pres.—John Locke, Campbellford, moved by George Stokes, seconded by William Stephens.

Sec. Treas.—J. Lewis Hay, Campbellford, moved by Wm. Stephens, seconded by Mr. Armstrong.

Auditors—J. E. O'Donnell, Stirling and Sam Nicholson, Frankford.

It was resolved that a letter of condolence be forwarded to the family of the late Dr. Hay and the delegates were in hearty accord with the suggestion.

NEW PRESIDENT SPEAKS

Mr. W. H. Hill in his inaugural address said, "we have an enviable reputation to uphold and as we are in the centre of the best district of Ontario, we must look forward to greater things. We must keep our stars fixed. I hope that I will occupy this office as well as my predecessors. The department is using every Exhibition fairly in the matter of grants. We must have co-operation among the members of this Association as well as our own local organizations in order to enjoy a successful year."

Mr. Hill pointed out that it any of the branches found friction developing the best policy to pursue, was to rid the board of the trouble-makers in order to create the proper spirit and harmony. "The patrons must be satisfied and then they will return in the following year."

It was decided to meet in Belleville next year. Chas. Hanna, President of the Belleville Fair Board spoke briefly and said that it was a pleasure to have the delegates come to this city. "We hope that you will actually enjoy your short stay here." Mr. Locke of Campbellford also spoke as the new Vice President.

The following dates were named by the Association for next Autumn:

Campbellford—Sept. 30, Oct. 1, Wed. and Thurs.

Stirling—Sept. 22-23, Tues. and Wed.

Tweed—Oct. 1-2, Thurs. and Fri.

GOLDEN DAWN

by PETER B. KYNE

Alas! McNamara was Irish, too. He glanced at the clock. "You're fifteen minutes late, so I'll fine you two hundred and fifty dollars for tardiness and slothfulness and disloyalty and house-breaking."

"I'll get you for this, McNamara!"

"I don't think so. My advice to you, Pat Flynn, would be to quite associating with T.N.T. I've known detective-sergeants to be taken for a ride."

"Threatening me, eh?"

"Not at all. I wouldn't harm a hair of your red head —and by the way, red hair in the Irish is a sign that they turned back to the Danes and Swedes. A pure-bred Irishman would know enough to lay off a girl without question and implacable friends. All you were after was a hundred and twenty-five dollars—half the state reward for recapturing that gilt-edged when she ought you double that you're not sport enough to meet her halfway."

"I teck an oath," Flynn mumbled. "You should have taken a physic."

"Well, I did take an emetic. Chief, I'll never forgive you those tear and stink bombs."

"Well, you shadowed my house and entered it unlawfully."

"Well, I found a lipstick——"

"Belonged to the nurse I had looking after a sick friend of mine," the chief lied glibly.

But Flynn only grinned ferociously. "I found stained bandages, too."

"Well, the pot can't get nowhere by calling the kettle black," McNamara decided. "Clear out!"

"Give me the money and I'll lay off."

But Dan McNamara shook his head. "I know your kind, Pat. There's no sense wasting good money on you. Your loyalty won't stay bought. Clear out, I tell you."

So Flynn cleared out, carrying with him infinitely more respect for the chief than he had heretofore entertained. Well, some day he'd collect two dollars and fifty dollars

The last patient had left Stepler, Burke's office for the day and the ever watchful Lanny had locked the office door.

"Friend Stevie!" she queried anxiously, as he loaded his pipe.

"No, of course not," he replied abruptly. "What have I done to be worried?"

"Well, you had another session with that terrible Mrs. Merton."

"She doesn't weary me any more. She merely excites my sympathy. Still sleepless, of course, and still bothered about her poor devil of a husband. She's had detectives on his trail for a month. They've cost her ten dollars a day each and they haven't discovered anything to Merton's discredit."

"It's about time for Mrs. Merton to commence hearing voices or sorts," Lanny commended dryly. "Highball, Stevie?"

"Yes, thank you, Lanny," he said, and deluged Lanny with his sunny smile. "Yes, Mrs. Merton is hearing voices. Her first husband who is dead keeps whispering through space to her. He's trying to tell her how sorry he is. I understand he made a dirty will."

"He would—if he had any common sense. What a poor, beaten devil Merton is! He hasn't the courage of a mouse."

"What can he do, Lanny? His wife is unbalanced, but if he swears out a warrant charging her with insanity, she'll snap out of her lunacy. Mrs. Merton isn't sufficiently insane to be incarcerated. And she's a beautiful woman, well-to-do, respectable. Merton couldn't get to first base on an insanity warrant."

"Then why doesn't he divorce her on grounds of mental cruelty?"

"The man's chivalrous and profoundly sympathetic. Besides, he has not any witnesses to prove a charge of mental cruelty. And he can't run away from her, because he has a thriving business he may not abandon. I told her again today not to come to my office any more; that I could do nothing for her; that she was a nuisance—and to try some other doctor. She went out in a rage."

Lanny jumped up. "Now who do you suppose that is knocking? Your office hours are plainly printed on the door."

"Oh, Lanny, don't be so hard-boiled. It's the patient in."

"Who's there?" Lanny shouted angrily.

"Oh! So it's you, is it? I knew you were there," the voice of Dan McNamara boomed.

Lanny unlocked the door. "Lucky for you you're not a nut, Dan. Sterle and I are just pinning one on."

"I'll join you, if that's the case." McNamara proffered his huge hand, that resembled nothing so much in its size a bunch of bananas. "Howdy, Mexico." He planted himself in the visitors' chair.

"You have news of Nance Belden," Stephen challenged.

"Golly of it, Doctor."

Lanzy entered with a highball. "I had a letter from Nance yesterday, Dan. She's in Paris. Can you beat that?"

"I can," McNamara replied coolly. "She's got an apartment at twenty-seven Rue St. Honore, with a cook and a maid, and a chauffeur who drives her around in a Citroen car. And she's having her picture painted."

"She's written you, too, then?"

"Didn't a line. I have my information from the prefect of police of Paris."

"Dan, you're marvelous!"

"What's more, Lanny, she's living with her normal personality."

"How do you know?"

"She registered as required by law, under her real name of Penelope Gatlin. I've known her name since the day after her escape from Dan Quentin."

INSTALMENT XXIII

McNamara proceeded to relate the tale he had previously related to Stephen, who had neglected to retail it to Lanny. "Well, if this isn't a hell of a tale, Dan!" she said.

"Does it beat your news, Lanny?"

"Beats it by a mile, although while she was at my house she told me as much about herself as she could remember."

"This morning," McNamara continued, "the president of the Security Trust Company telephoned me that the girl's mother had called him up to ask if Penelope had been cashing any checks lately. The banker gathered that the mother has a notion her daughter's dead. She doesn't like the idea of having to wait seven years to have the girl declared officially dead before she can lay claim to Penelope's estate."

"Did you find out the name of her mother?" Stephen asked.

"Oh, yes. She's married again, you understand. Naturally the client got any information out of the banker. He's on to her, and it was none of her business whether Penelope had been cashing checks or not."

"Get the girl's case record, Lanny," Stephen commanded. "What is her mother's name, Chief?"

"Mrs. Rudolph Merton."

"She's a patient of Stevie's!" Lanny yelled. "She's such a nut she squirrels chase her."

Stephen finished writing and laid down his pen. "I told you, Lanny, that Mrs. Merton wasn't insane enough to be confined."

"Guess I've got Lanny's news beaten after all, Stephen. This Mrs. Rudolph Merton is the girl's foster-mother."

"Hooray! Hooray! Hooray!" cried Lanny. "How do you know? Did the banker tell you?"

"No. I dug the information up myself."

"Why? How?"

"Why? Because you gave up hope for the girl when I told you her mother was a devil on wheels and a relentless fiend. And I wanted to investigate the girl's fortune. So yesterday I had a copy of the will and a copy of the appraisal of the estate made at the court house in San Jose and sent up to me. Gatlin stated in the will that he left all of his estate to his beloved adopted daughter, Penelope Gatlin. At the time of his death his estate was worth practically half a million dollars and has since doubled in value. Nance Belden is a left heiress."

"Not wholly lost," Stephen reminded him. "There are times when she remembers who she is and that she has money."

"She doesn't know anything about her mother," Lanny declared. "I asked her, but she could tell me nothing. And she was Penelope Gatlin when she asked me."

"There is a reason for that." Dr. Burt's scientific mind was already racing along this new channel. "I hope has had a wretched childhood; she knew nothing but unhappiness up to the time she received the shock that threw her mental gears out of mesh. She hated her mother with a terrible hatred. Feared her, probably. Then she made up her mind to forget her mother. And the will to forget was so strong that she succeeded."

"Not only did she forget her mother, but her entire past life as well. Well, she ran away, and she'll never find her way back until she acquires sufficient courage to face ghastly issues again, surmount them and defeat them."

"But is that possible?" McNamara asked.

"Quite. She will have to have assistance and the sort of treatment I think I can give her, and she must have assurance that never again will she be subjected to the old unhappiness. By the way, I wonder if Penelope was a love child. Have you looked up her parentage, Dan?"

"I haven't. Can't you ask Mrs. Merton about the girl?"

"I suppose I could. But if lunacy ran in the family of her father or mother, I'm not going to bother with Penelope."

"If you decide to take her on, we'll have to get her back into this city," McNamara murmured. "and Flynn will pick her up."

"We'll fix her nose first," Lanny said.

McNamara beamed upon her. "Her criminal photographs and Bertillon measurements are gone to glory, Lanny. What did Penelope say in her letter?"

"Not a great deal. She said, among other things, that after leaving my house she found two hundred dollars. So she returned it."

"She found two hundred, Lanny," Stephen, our little thief is honest."

As one personality she would remember you gave her two hundred dollars to buy a car, the other she couldn't remember who gave it to her," said Lanny.

"Get over to Paris as quick as you can," McNamara commanded, "or she will be stealing the Eiffel Tower."

"Stephen can't spare me," said Lanny.

"Stephen can spare you," he decided. "It's get to be," McNamara urged. "Nance fled the town with a letter of credit for ten thousand, but she'll go through that like a weasel through a rat hole. Take a bankroll with you, Lanny, and when you get there take charge of her funds."

"And have her nose done over while you're there," Stephen urged.

"There's a hitch," said Lanny. "The girl evidently got a passport in New York——"

Part-bottle of Minard's Liniment "rubbed out" intense pain.

When the Head of an Old Country business makes a remedy on his firm's letterhead, he is worth listening to. Mr. F. G. Riley, Liverpool, wrote:—

"Some time ago, owing to a member of the writer's household suffering extremely from Rheumatism, we were offered a part bottle of your Liniment by a seafaring friend. It did not take all we had to remove the pain, but we have used it extensively ever since, and also stable purposes, and we are more than delighted with the results."

If you suffer from any acute pain, Sore Muscles, Lameness, rub in plenty of Minard's Liniment. It's wonderful stuff! Heals up Wounds and Burns. Ends Chilblains, Corns, Warts. Stops Dandruff, Prevents Falling Hair. Taken internally Minard's makes short work of a Cough or Cold. Good for Asthma. Furthermore, any experienced Vet. will tell you that Minard's Liniment can't be beaten for animals.

ALL-BRAN BROUGHT WELCOME RELIEF

THOUSANDS of letters attest to the efficiency of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in overcoming constipation. For instance, Mr. James D. McEnery (address on request) relates his experience:

"For fifteen years I was constantly bothered with constipation. . . . Some eighteen months ago, I began using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. From the first week to this good day, I have never had to take a dose of laxative medicine of any description."

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the largest-selling all-bran cereal in the world. Two tablespoonfuls daily are guaranteed to give relief. How much safer than using habit-forming laxatives.

ALL-BRAN also adds needed iron to build the blood. In the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

GOOD MANAGEMENT

Hastings County House of Refuge and Industrial Farm got along with a net expenditure of two dollars and forty one cents a week per inmate of the county home last year. This does not only pays for food and lodging but also for care, and so on. These figures should indicate close attention to the management of the home and also the best direction by the Refuge Committee of the County Council.

WARDEN THOMPSON

Elected to the wardenship for the year Charles W. Thompson, reeve of Madoc township comes to the office with every indication of one of the most successful years as far as ties within the power of the county council of Hastings to achieve. Warden Thompson is a public man of long experience in municipal affairs, gained in the municipal council of his own township, which he has so long representated and in the larger body of the county council in which he has served for many years. He has sat under wardens who have filled very meriorious terms and all this time was gaining experience in the detail and in the handling of public business.

The new warden brings to the office not only earnestness and zeal, experience and natural talent but he possesses what public men do not all possess, a fine sense of humor which is one of the saving graces. Often when debate is sharpest and there seems no way out by pure logic, a flash of wit or a touch of humor clear away the battle smoke. We should such an occasion arise at Shire Hall it is certain that the present incumbent of the office of warden will not fail to use his talents.

He enjoys the confidence of his own township and of the membership of the county council and through his office will be applied to the new homes. The new type will be a very small house or suite of rooms. They will be small with plain wall areas. Sometimes a dining room now will take the place of the dining room and the kitchen will be scientifically laid out to secure the greatest convenience and to lessen labor.

The planning of future homes will have in mind double aim, utility combined with utility, comfort for the men and more time for women for outside activities. There will probably be a common living room with separate loggias for sleeping. The windows will be designed to admit as much light and air as possible with a minimum of hangings.

Mr. Rushbrook sees the day dawning of a style suitable to taste and living conditions. "Some day people will wake up and find themselves in a new world of decoration for modern art is here to stay and as the world, our living conditions, science and thought develop so will modern art progress to fulfil its destiny in meeting the needs of mankind," he says.

The view in regard to art seems a natural one for art to be worth while must be able to benefit and touch mankind closely. No art is worth anything or can exist unless it does this. Art is more than a mere outside decoration, for it goes to the heart and head, it becomes the expression of the individual and the age.

PLACE OF HYMNS AND MUSIC

The heralded appearance of a new hymnbook for the United Church draws again to the mind the fact that music and hymn-singing occupy no small place in the worship of the Church. Hymns composed in every period of one communion are sung by congregations of other communions. Hymns are one of the abiding signs of the religious life and experience.

Some people are inclined to believe that the future of music is in doubt, that the level of music is not what it ought to be; in fact while a very large percentage of the people have hymns which they sing, the future is tolerably bright. Though many of those who sing hymns in church, in Sunday school and in their homes do not think of themselves as contributing to music, yet actually they do keep alive the love of music, which is a true handmaid to religion. This fact would seem to be that the only reason the lovers of music fear that jazz may break down music is because jazz is so blatant that music is heard of it. It reminds one of the insignificant man who is talking loud to keep up his courage. Jazz entertainment itself, that is all.

Still currents yet run deep in music and in literature. After all the future of music and the hymn is safe; they will never pass out of the psyche of religion and mankind.

GET PLANS READY

Now is the time for those who have thoughts of building to reach a decision as to their intentions, so that they may have the benefit of an early start with construction when the spring season arrives. Many projects along this line are not crystallized until the summer is half gone and construction is accordingly shoved over until the late summer, when there are not the opportunities of improving grounds and deriving the full benefit of the new home for instance.

SISTER-HUNGER

One who has no sister speaks:
"Sometimes, suddenly,
Swift and deep a longing stirs
In the heart of me:
Longing for a sister's smile.
For sister's hand,
And the little loving ways
Sisters understand.
When I glimpse a face
Of rare sweetness, meet a glance
Filled with light and grace,
Then that sister-hunger flows
Through my soul anew,
For a sister such as she,
Tender, proud and true.

Just such charm she might have had,
Just such sun-touched hair . . .

With a wistful air.—Aline Michaelis

ROBERT BURNS, the Scotch poet, was only thirty-seven when he died. What a lot of life he lived in such a brief time and what a lot of cheer he gave to the world. Bobbie died at an age when most geniuses are just beginning to bud. What he would have given to the world had he lived the allotted span is difficult to imagine. His few years contained much hardship and sorrow but the bright flame of his cheery nature never dimmed on earth until it was quenched to flame forth anew in another and brighter world reserved for poets and newspapermen who have tried to keep the lights of good cheer burning in this old wornout world cluttered up with so many pessimists, knockers and gloom generators. It does seem good to spend an hour or so with memories of Bobbie Burns and a number of citizens of Belleville have to thank Jamie Macdonald Elliott, Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia there for a pleasant half hour on Monday when he gave such a sympathetic and appreciative picture of Bobbie Burns, his life and times before the Rotary Club.

JUNIOR BOARDS OF TRADE

The members of the Junior Boards of Trade of today will be found the leaders of tomorrow. Montreal, as the metropolitan city of this Dominion, cannot afford to lag behind in such matters. Already other cities have got a long start, but the establishment of a Junior Board of Trade here will enable this city to take its place with all that are in the foremost march of progress. Influential public men have lent the idea their cordial and practical support, and it should be assured of success from the start.—Montreal Star.

AMERICAN BOND-DUMPING

English financiers have made it clear recently that the 1200 weakness in British securities was largely the result of the "bond-dumping" practice of needy United States citizens, who preferred to sell their securities in the London market rather than further depress their domestic price levels by distress liquidation at home. . . If Americans succeeded in establishing their moral right to prevent Russia from dumping goods into the United States for what they will bring, they at the same time prove their own culpability in having sold securities below their true value on the London market. For British conditions were sufficiently onerous without this liquidation, just as the Chicago wheat pit was ill-prepared to withstand the effects of Russian wheat sales. If one practice is reprehensible, so is the other.—Mail and Empire, Toronto.

BANKERS VIEW

It is notable that both President Austin of the Dominion Bank and President Moore of the Bank of Nova Scotia express the opinion that the spirit of pessimism get too firm a grip. General Manager Bogert of the former bank is of the opinion that prosperity is born of our own efforts. General Manager McLeod of the Bank of Nova Scotia pointed out that the recent decline in price commodities made it necessary for Canada to export a correspondingly large amount to meet debt charges. In each case a strong call for constructive effort with acknowledged opportunity for success underlies the counsel given by these men, but can do their share toward it. These periods of reaction have come to mark the goal. If excessive optimism and unwarranted pessimism could be replaced by a long-range view of these matters, there would be more of a reality.—The Globe, Toronto.

TRIBUTE TO ENGLISH LANGUAGE

The Hon. Senator Rodolphe Lemieux recently made an address in the Senate Chamber upon the occasion of Montreal on "Personal Oratorical Reminiscences of British Parliament," arising at Westminster, in 1927, to pay a great tribute to the English language. He is, as every one knows, one of the finest orators which Canada has produced. He is a past master of both the English and French tongues, while he has had the opportunity of knowing many of the leading British Parliamentarians. Consequently, he is well qualified to speak on this subject. He mentioned that Gladstone on his way to speak on Home Rule at a great gathering in Glasgow, stopped at the library for a few minutes to memorize the Castor and Pollux incident from Horace. Mr. Lemieux says that the inspiration he took from Horace and a few minutes later applied to the Scottish audience with great effect. Again, one of the most striking examples of what a beautiful and poetical language is when passionately and sincerely spoken. Addressing himself very directly to his audience, Senator Lemieux expressed the conviction that the English language, made up as it is, of the best elements of French, Saxon, Danish, Celtic, and Latin was truly the purest and most poetic tongue in existence.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

Station of Ancient Bricks

A railroad station, believed to be the world's oldest in point of the date of manufacture of the material from which it is made, has just been completed at Tell Billah, Mesopotamia, for the use of the expedition of the University of Pennsylvania Museum and the American School of Oriental Research at Bagdad.

Built on the Khorsibad Railroad almost entirely of brick made more than 3,500 years ago in the reign of King Ashurnatzirpal, the station will be used as a stopping point and storage house for objects found in the excavations at Tell Billah.

News of the completion of the station was contained in a report received by the museum from the expedition. It tells also of the recent discovery of important archaeological material, including fine painted pottery, a collection of bronze weapons and a huge residence hall, behind which are expected to be found further objects of value.

"During the first month of our excavation there we found many remains of Assyrian occupancy of the site in the last millennium B.C." Prof. Ephraim A. Speiser, field director of the expedition, states in his report.

"The second month's work has served fully to establish unmistakably the fact, with the people who occupied the huge mound of a millennium earlier."

He continued: "Under the remains of the Ashurnatsirpal period we have come upon levels full of fragments of painted pottery. A corner of a former city, sun-baked bricks resting upon a massive stone foundation which has been uncovered and in the two rooms of that structure cleared thus far we have found the same type of pottery.

"The ware is extraordinarily beautifully as thin as the finest Sussian ware, and the vases show a great dominance of geometric wine cups with slender bulbous vases. There is a variety of designs as well as colors. Checkers, the most frequently executed representations of beasts and water birds vary with parallel zigzag lines.

"England has remained, however, to give us a variety of kinds of utensils and scientific interest. Apart from the characteristic painted pottery, both painted and plain, the graves have yielded numerous razors, bone needles, small bronze and a tiny decorated button seal.

"One tomb contained also a curious terra cotta figurine of a bull. The work on this is a bit too realistic, for the eyes have been so emphasized that they give the impression of bulging spectacles, thus giving the entire figure a rather absurd appearance. Another tomb contained parts of an animal with three legs and the head of a wild boar.

"The flowers which promises perhaps the most interesting results. A trial trench sunk at the base of the mound edge has revealed a prehistoric remaining wall, which is in some sections as high as ten feet and attains a width of ten feet. Its purpose remains unknown to us, for part of the wall is still under ground.

"Below the wall has been found a fairly complete collection of bronze implements. There are bone tools more than a foot long, with incised designs on the handles, arrows, a lance head with ridged blade and a finely turned octagonal butt end, the latter a splendid axe head, with a prominent and well-made spine, an adze and a mallet.

"What may be behind the massive wall no one can predict. A number of weeks' work will be required before we can hope to solve the question."

To this column the Ontario Intelligencer invites letters on matters of public interest. The letters should not be too lengthy and should be of such a character as to interest the public. There are many problems on which the individual voice shou'd be heard. Letters should bear the name of the writer, not necessarily for publication but as a sign of good faith. MILK SITUATION

To the Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

In the Ontario Intelligencer on Wednesday evening it was stated that the Board of Health would ask the City Council to pass a by-law "allowing the sale of pasteurized milk and cream only." Before the Council does anything so drastic, it would be well to be absolutely certain that that is the right thing to do. In the present divided state of public opinion it is impossible to be absolutely certain that the Board of Health is on the right track. Good authorities can be quoted both for and against the pasteurizing of milk.

An eminent food specialist says: "Pasteurized milk does not have as great a food value as milk in the raw state, on account of its being heated to such a degree that the organic salts and vitamines are precipitated and changed into minerals which the body cannot use. This pasteurizing process which kills some of the bacteria which sour the milk and thus is prized by the reason why the pasteurized milk came in this condition it will keep for a longer time without souring. No disease germs are killed by the pasteurizing process and if the milk is from unhealthy cows no amount of heat would make it fit for food.—Eat 4 or 5 eggs a day! Unhealthy milk from sick cows cannot be made fit for food by any kind of process. Science says that only then could the contents of a garbage can."

Personally I do not like pasteurized milk but I do like clean, certified milk and see about a pint of it daily, and I regard it as an unwarranted interference with my personal liberty to prevent me from buying the milk I like and exempting me to use milk I do not like, especially when it is not so nourishing and its purity is not guaranteed.

If my memory is not at fault a few years ago the Board of Health in Oshawa was about to insist on that city the very thing that we are now asked to do here. But Dr. Kaiser, a prominent physician in that city sook up the matter and fought the Board to a stand-still, and the scheme was rejected.

I should like to suggest that the Board of Health do not go to the trouble of pasteurizing milk until Dr. Kaiser is address a meeting in the city hall. He would draw a crowd and he would have an interesting story to tell.

It is pure humbug to say, as was stated, "It was felt that certified milk would cost twenty-five cents a quart. I can buy certified milk where any day at exactly the same price as any raw or pasteurized milk.

MINERS TRAPPED BY EXPLOSION

Linton, Ind., January 29.—Between thirty and thirty-five men were believed trapped by an explosion late today in the Little Betty shaft coal mine near here.

The blast, said to have been a powder explosion, occurred at 3.30 o'clock about a mile from the mine entrance and was heard two miles away from the mine. First efforts to reach the trapped miners were futile.

A brisk brushing with a fairly stiff brush or broom will restore a lot of life to the wilted looking upholstery.

NEW SHOE STYLE IN COMING YEAR

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—(By The Canadian Press)—At the Canadian style show of shoe it was apparent that the strap-a-ankle-and a-spike-heel that lately did substitute duty as footwear is out of the walking. Canadian shoe prospects for 1931 are bright; bright and graceful and pleasing, with a knowing turn to them. With the exception of had a dozen flat-heeled crepe-soled examples of common sense shoes were not to be distinguished from shoes for dress, year. And the "street" models were far observed to differ in height of heel, thickness of sole or delicacy of design and color from "afternoon" shoes.

For sport, street and afternoon alikes, were first favorite. One, two, three and four eyelet models were shown. The fashion almost universal in sport models was for two tones of leather or two varieties, or contrasting colors. The rarer more ribbon was noticeable in all models. Many models were trimmed with reptile. Half a dozen of the finest were made entirely of python snake skin.

Colors were many, but beige, under its new names of "desert sand" and "sea rand" made a strong bid for first place. Blacks, and blacks and whites and browns were rivalled by gay-colored slidskins piped in gold and silver. Soft green, blue and brilliant red shoes were simple in cut, and trimmed with several. Mesh, taking the place of the showed a laudable tendency to desert the spike for the straight Cuban. Here and there could be found a model of graceful sobriety that succeeded in being comely on a heels of two-inch heel.

Waiting for Inspiration

Are you waiting for the "inspiration" that never comes?

Are you expecting a great "urge" sometime that will revolutionize your whole life and make you a world beater?

You have heard of inspirations of the moment, great ideas that came suddenly and lighted the horizon in such a wonderful way that the one receiving it pressed on to great success.

This made a great impression on you, and you are waiting for one.

You want an incentive to proceed.

People who accomplish great things don't stand idle awaiting an all-powerful, irresistible command to proceed along a certain line.

The idea that "some time I am going to do" has been a thought that some folks have carried all their lives, to no purpose.

Back in your mind you have had a big idea many years.

You have felt it was safe and would not be presented by any one else to your detriment.

Don't wait—till another makes your idea look sick.

"Inspiration" is very elusive.

DEAR READERS:

Springtime frocks are beginning to make their charming appearance in dress shops and Dame Fashion has cleverly designed them, given them lovely fresh colours, and has made them so alluring that the average woman is in deep contemplation of the condition of her clothes budget, trying to see if just one more dress can be added without disastrous financial results.

In the first place there are the colours. As well as the soft flower shades there is one that is receiving great attention. This is gray. Not the cold grey resembling nothing as much as granite, but a warm, rich, Victorian shade that will be welcomed by the youthful and the matronly type alike. In some frocks there is a contrasting note of trimming. Others are entirely out of gray. For such a shade the wearer should be a person with a good colour or the result will be rather drab.

Blue and green, as practically always, lead in the Springtime colour parade. A new green is called "May-green" and is a particularly pretty shade. "Guardsman Blue" is a pastel tone, and "Sheepskin" and "Antelope" are two new tones to join the browns.

One of the established fashion tendencies is the continued lowering of hemlines. This will be followed in all types of frocks, whether for daytime or evening wear. Dresses this Spring will be an inch or two longer than those of this season. For afternoon wear they will be seen or eight inches "off" the ground. This will apply to printed crepes, chiffons and other soft fabrics. For dance frocks the tops of evening slippers will barely peep beneath ruffled flounces or clinging draperies.

Fashionably yours,
LUCILLE.

ON WISHES

Does the maple ever murmur
To the violet at his feet,
"Would that I were fair and fragrant,
Fair as thou art, gracious, sweet?"

And the violet, shy, a-tremble,
Dewy-eyed return a sigh—
"Oh, for broad and scarlet branches,
Proudful rufflet unto the sky?"

Does the brook long for the mountains
And the mountains for the deeps?
And does each grow more in beauty,
Through the dream the other keeps?

SMALL PASTRIES THAT SATISFY

BY HANNAH WING

Line muffin pans with rich pastry. Fill with currant jelly. Cover with pastry, press edges together and prick tops with the tines of a fork. Bake in a quick oven (450 degrees F.) 10 minutes, reduce heat to 425 degrees F. and bake 5 to 8 minutes longer.

BAKED PEACH DUMPLING

Roll out rich pastry to 1-8 inch thickness and cut in 4 inch squares. Place half a peach in the centre of each square. Sprinkle with sugar and dot with butter. Moisten edges of pastry with water, draw corners to the centre and press edges together firmly. Bake in a quick oven (450 degrees F.) 10 minutes, reduce heat to moderate oven (350 degrees F.) and bake about 15 minutes longer.

SWEET RISSOLES

Roll out rich pastry to 1-4 inch thickness and cut out circles about 3 inches in diameter. Moisten edges with water. Place a teaspoon of jam on one-half of the circle, fold other half over and press edges firmly together. Brush with beaten egg and dip in deep hot fat (350 to 375 degrees F.) until brown. Drain thoroughly.

RASPBERRY ROLLOVERS

Roll rich pastry to 1-4 inch thickness. Cut in circles 3 to 4 inches in diameter. Place a teaspoon of jam and spread with raspberry jam. Sprinkle with chopped nuts or cocoanut. Roll lightly over and over. Place in baking pan with lapped side down. Bake in a hot oven (375 degrees F.) 15 minutes.

BANBURY TARTS

Roll plain pastry to one-eighth inch thickness and cut in three-inch squares. Mix together 3/4 cup chopped nuts, 1 cup light brown sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 egg, juice and grated rind of 1 lemon and 1 orange. Put a little of the mixture on each square. Moisten edges with cold water, fold over diagonally and press edges together. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes.

PUMPKIN TARTS

One can pumpkin, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs, 1.2 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon cloves, 1-4 teaspoon ginger, 1.2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 tablespoon salt, rich pastry.

Put the contents of one can pumpkin into a heavy frying pan and cook slowly, stirring occasionally, until most of the liquid has evaporated. Add the beaten egg yolks, sugar, spices and salt and mix well. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg white. Roll pastry to one-eighth inch thickness and cut in circles four inches in diameter. Fit into fluted pans and pinch edge with fingers to make a rim. Pour mixture in filling and bake in a quick oven (425 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Cool and just before serving garnish with whipped cream.

TO-DAY'S VERSE

OLD BOOKS

I care nothing for old collections
For who has possessed this or that book;
Nor whether the poet's hand has pressed the page,
Nor for his autograph on the fly leaf,
No more than I would care to hear
The Ave Verum of Mozart
Performed upon an old, garrulous spinet.

The poet's thought—
His glowing, strangely disturbing thought,
Awakening, challenging, terrorizing my own,
It must resound in a de luxe binding,
Does not bear the stamp of any age,
It alone is worth the capture.

NEVILLE AND ELLIOTT RETURN TO LONDON

LONDON, Jan. 30—London Tecumsehs will have at least two new players when they take the ice to battle Syracuse Stars here tonight. Besides Mike Neville, who was purchased from the Americans on Wednesday, the local management yesterday announced the signing of Freddie Elliott, well-known right-winger, who played here for a short time last season.

Elliott will come here from the Philadelphia Arrows of the Canadian-American League. He was a free agent, having failed to come to terms with Philadelphia.

Four players of condition is said to have had a lot to do with his failure to hold a job in London and Windsor during his pastime, around these parts last Winter, but he is in good condition now. Elliott will get a chance to make good while the injured Reinikka is out of action.

4TH OF SIDNEY

FOURTH SIDNEY — About thirty members of the official board of Sidney charge were invited to spend the evening, January 7th, at the parsonage. Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Sexsmith entertained the members to a very pleasant evening. Finance reports from the societies and from the finance stewards showed that side of the work to be in good condition. Well on to five thousand dollars has been raised during the last conference year. The Women's Missionary Society have sent away nearly $600.00. A pleasing feature of the reports given by the W.M.S. presidents was the splendid leadership given to and work done by the Mission Band on the charge. During the past year the new mission hall at Stone church has been dedicated and a very substantial payment made on the mortgage. Also beautiful electric lights have been installed in Aikens church. The pastor hev. E. B. Sexsmith, M.A., B.D., was unanimously invited to remain on the charge for the fifth year. A cordial and happy spirit prevails in all official relationships. "At the close of the meeting Mrs. Sexsmith served a very dainty lunch.

SCHOOLS AND "ARENTS

Dr. G. E. Reaman, principal of the Toronto Boys' training school, recently expressed the opinion that the school was more to blame than the home for the "problem boy." He points out that nearly all the boys in the institution of which he is in charge have been truants and "fed up" with school. And yet when they go to Bowmanville they become enthusiastic people the reason being that they are interested in what they are doing! And that is where the chief point of Dr. Reaman's criticism of the present school system comes in. He holds that it is useless to expect a boy make a success who is not interested in the subjects taught him. If the training given in the schools is to be of practical value to the young people attending them, the instructors must be served up in an attractive way. It is to be feared that in some cases, the pupil will never profit very greatly however, attractively the material may be taught. The tastes and capacities of young people vary to such an extent that it is impossible to draw up a syllabus that will be equally suitable and attractive to all. But there is no good reason why an attempt should not be made to discover the special aptitudes of students and cater to their individual requirements.—Hamilton Spectator.

Children suffering from worms soon know the symptoms, and any mother can detect the presence of these parasites by the writhings and fretting of the child. Until expelled and the system cleared of them, the child cannot regain its health. Miller's Worm Powders are prompt and efficient, not only for the eradication of worms, but also as a tonic for children that are run down in consequence.

PRICE ANSWERS ASSAILANTS IN RINGING TERMS

Accuses Philpott, New Nominee of Slander—Penned Libels?

FALSE INFORMATION

Attorney General Charges Hepburn and Candidate in Blunt Fashion

HAMILTON, Jan. 29.—Carrying war into the enemy's camp, Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, set an audience of more than a thousand cheering here last night, as he plunged into battle in the hottest by-election Hamilton has seen in years.

Declaring his hon or and veracity impugned by the Liberal leader and his candidate, Mr. Price proceeded to answer attack with attack; to follow with a militant defence of his administration, and then to give his opponents something themselves to answer—demanding that as a pair of "bottle babies" they declare whether they are for the Liquor Control act, prohibition or beer by the glass.

The Attorney-General, with stinging invective, had separate and individual attacks for Mitchell F. Hepburn, Liberal leader, and his candidate, Elmore Philpott. Then he attacked them jointly. After that, he raked the Liberal party, W. E. N. Sinclair, S. C. Tweed, Hon. W. D. Euler, the late Government and the Liberal executive. And, not to overlook anybody, he paid his respects to Mr. Justice Raney.

Col. Price's speech lacked nothing in plain speaking and blunt comment. Mr. Hepburn, he defined as a "deliberate, insurer cf confirmed false information." The Minister found that he would be more justified in asking Mr. Hepburn's resignation from the Liberal leadership than was Mr. Hepburn in demanding Mr. Price's.

Accuses Philpott of Slander

Mr. Philpott he accused of persistent libel and slander carried on for the past year behind the curtain of anonymity of the editorial page of Toronto's prohibitionist morning paper. He stigmatized Mr. Philpott as one "who prostituted the press, prostituted principle to ambition, carrying in one hand christian professions and in the other the assassin's dagger." He declared that Mr. Philpott in the last provincial election fought and spoke for prohibition, but had now aligned himself with a "dripping wet" leader.

Captain Philpott, he said, was "like the man who called another man a liar and then wanted to debate it." That was the colonel's answer to the challenge to joint debate.

Apexiating Capt. Philpott, Col. Price continued, his indignant sentences punctuated by applause: "As you maligned me for your own purposes, as with utmost bitterness you told untruth after untruth, if you want to talk to the electors of West Hamilton as you penned those libels on me, you will have to stand among your own ilk. You cannot discuss public issues of the day with me. No man who carries in one hand Christian principles and in the other the assassin's dagger can debate With me on the public platform."

The Attorney-General, referring to attacks by himself in connection with the Stimson case and the broker age prosecutions, declared that his opponents were merely seeking some excuse to draw a red herring across the trail of their desertion of prohibition —their exchange of principle for expediency.

They Do Us More Good Thananyother Medicine

Says Toronto Man of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mr. McMullen Always Keeps a Box in the House.

Toronto Ont., Jan. 26 (Special) — What most people want these days is a medicine that can can turn to with perfect confidence in time of need. Mr. McMullen, 341 McRoberts Avenue, Toronto, has found such a remedy —Dodd's Kidney Pills. He writes:—

"We are never without Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house. Whenever we feel out of sorts we taken them and find they do us more good than any other medicine. We have used them for six years."

Your health, strength and vitality depend upon the condition of your blood, for it is through the blood that every part of the body is nourished and built up. To enjoy good health the blood must be kept pure. Dodd's Kidney Pills are an excellent blood purifier. They do not affect the Liver or stomach, they are just an effective Kidney medicine.

GIRL ATTACKED BY UNKNOWN MAN

St. Thomas, Jan. 29.—Attacked by a masked man early last evening, Miss Violet Ellington-of Aylmer, is confined to her home under the care of a physician.

She states that her attacker seized her after dark with the remarks: 'Now, I've got you." He sat upon her, she says, with his fists, tore her coat off and bruised and scratched her. Finally she was able to break away and escape in the darkness. Her attacker is believed to have fled in a car.

Interviewed this evening, Miss Shillington could offer no explanation for the attack. She is 21 years of age and slight of build.

ARABIAN DESERT TO HAVE RADIO STATION

BAGDAD, Jan. 29 —By the Canadian Press—Wireless for the Arabian desert within 18 months is the object aimed at by Ibn Saud, King of Hedjas and Nejd, who has signed a contract with the Marconi Company for the supply of 15 wireless stations, which will provide Arabia with a complete system of telegraphic communication. In addition, four Marconi sets fitted in lorries are to be supplied as mobile telegraph stations and to enable the King to keep in constant touch with his two Capitals, Mecca and Riyadi, during his journeys into the desert.

A powerful telephone and telegraph transmitter with a modern type receiver will be installed in Mecca, and as persons who are not of the Mohammedan faith are forbidden to enter the Holy City, a Mohammedan engineer will instal th equipment. A British engineer will supervise the installation of the Arabian stations outside Mecca. To provide for maintenance, King Ibn Saud has sent four of his subjects to England for a course of instruction, in the Marconi School at Chelmsford.

GOLD DISCOVERY MAY BE VALUABLE

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Jan 29 —By the Canadian Press—Rumors of a "second Rand" in Southern Rhodesia have been filtering into Bulawayo and many mining men there are supposed feeling of confidence that the new gold discovery may prove valuable, according to the Bulawayo correspondent of The Cape Argus. Two qualified mining men, it is known, have pegged an area of 8 1-2 miles of country 10 miles south of Port Victoria, and prospectors and miners are hurrying to the district.

"At this stage it is impossible to say anything definite about prospects of the discovery," the Bulawayo correspondent says, "but it is understood that samples are been gassayed in Bulawayo at present with a view to determining whether gold exists in payable quantities. Basket is vaulted for by mining officials, and kuarts and eluvi pebbles typical of the Rand formation have been revealed."

The first railroad passenger cars were little better than boxes mounted on wheels.

CLAIMING LARGE REPARATION SUM

Winnipeg Woman Asks $7,803 as Result of Loss in War

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan 29 — (By the Canadian Press)—The biggest definite claim placed before the War Reparation commission at its sitting recently, was that of Mrs. Mary Brooks, of Ochre River, amounting to $7,800. Consideration will be given the individual cases after the return of the members to Ottawa.

Mrs. Brooks lost personal effects and household goods by the sinking of the S.S., Hesperian, off the south-west coast of Ireland, Sept. 4 1915. The original claim was for $6,771, which was amended by a Winnipeg valuator to $7,800. Two of her sons were in Canada and wrote home suggesting that their parents join them, which they did, instructing packers to ship their furniture and effects. The goods were insured, but they only received $1,500 from the insurance company for their lore.

The second case heard was that of Rev. John A. Beattie, formerly of Winnipeg, but now of Stony Mountain, who claimed $1,597, to cover expenses incurred in connection with the search for the body of his wife, lost at sea with the sinking of the S.S. Lusitania, on May 7th., 1915, and medical expenses incurred through the illness of his son, which lasted for 18 months after the disaster. Mr. Beattie went overseas with the Canadian Expeditionary Force in August 1914, and in 1915 Mrs. Beattie, together with her son decided to join him overseas, sailing on the ill-fated vessel.

Another case was hat of Mrs. Mary A. Matthews of 317 Aubrey street, Winnipeg, in lieu of an allowance made by her son, Robert, who was entering the Atlantic for the purpose of enlisting when the S.S. Lusitania, was submarined. From 1911 until his departure in 1914, he had contributed towards her support, she then being a widow. She explained to the court that her son was a married man, and that his widow had received a reparation.

MOHAWK CHURCH 145 YEARS OLD

Will Celebrate Nearly Half Century of Service this Year

BRANTFCRD, Ont., Jan. 29.—(By The Canadian Press)— As quaint and as distinctive as the colorful costumes of the natives who first worshipped the Great Spirit beneath its kindly, sheltering roof, the Mohawk Church, of Brantford, will this year celebrate the 145th anniversary of its completion.

The history of the little church, the eldest Protestant church in Ontario, is enriched by treasures of associations more valuable than the gifts of two of English sovereigns who possessed more than usual interest in their subjects beyond the sea. The beginning of the story has its roots in the days when Queen Anne sat on Great Britain's throne. The British dominions in North America included the present United States. Much work has been done by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel among the Six Nations, who lived in the Mohawk Valley in the present New York State. Queen Anne had aided the Mohawks soliciely in the building of a chapel and had given a solid silver communion set with linen and altar ornamentals as well as a beautiful copy of the Sacred Scriptures. All of the gifts were suitably inscribed.

But the peaceful communities, so quiet and peaceful since their founding, were disturbed by rumblings of revolution and the Indians, under the direction of Joseph Brant, fenewed their allegiance to the Great White Fathers beyond the sea. Their little chapel was destroyed but they buried their treasures at the beginning of hostilities. When the new church was completed the Indians went back to the Mohawk Valley, and dug up their treasures. Since that time Thousands of tourists have gathered at the church to inspect its treasures. On the fly leaf of the Bible there are the autographs of Albert, Edward, Prince of Wales, (Edward VII), George and Victoria, Mary the present Queen.

INDIAN ARMY MAN BARRED AT COAST

Vancouver, Jan. 29.—Two passengers from the liner Empress of Russia which arrived here Saturday afternoon from the Orient, Captain W. Little and L. Mercer, have been ordered deported by an immigration board of inquiry. Appeals have been lodged in Ottawa against the rulings.

Captain Little, just discharged from the Indian Army, was on his way to join relatives in Toronto. Mercer from Shanghai, an engineer of the steamer Hedwig wrecked a few months ago off China, said he intended to settle in Canada.

The deportations were ordered under the government regulations which bars all but practical farmers and wives of bona fide Canadian residents from entering the country.

OBITUARY

Napanee, Jan. 28.—Death came with startling suddenness on Monday morning to one of the best known railroad men in this district in the person of Robert Clarke, East street. The deceased had not been in the best of health for some time, having been a sufferer with heart trouble, but he was very energetic and delighted in his work with which he had been associated for a long number of years.

The late Mr. Clarke was a native of Glenvale and when a young man entered the service of the Grand Trunk Railway and for over thirty-four years has been associated with the road. For twenty-two years he was on the Tamworth and Yarker division and then came to Napanee. Had he lived until April of this year he would have retired on pension.

Forty-one years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Thompson of Glenvale. He was a member of the Orange Order and was held in high esteem by his brethren. Mr. Clarke was one of the best liked members in the railroad service and his sudden passing came as a great shock to his many friends. He was a member of Grace United Church.

Besides his widow he leaves to mourn his loss, two sons, Earl of Napanee, Wilburt of Belleville and two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Walter Adams of Toronto and Gladys at home.

ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH BURNED

Fire-Fighters Were Injured When Shower of Bricks Fell

Montreal, Que. Jan. 30—St. Denis Church, Laurier Ave, East, lay a heap of smouldering ruins today following a fire which raged throughout the night. The Church built thirty-two years was valued at three hundred thousand dollars. So quickly did the flames spread that it was impossible to save the Host and sacred vessels.

Chief Gauthier and fireman Desormeaux were injured, former being pain fully crushed when a shower of bricks fell.

Air service between the Isle of Man and England is to be inaugurated.

Betty was greatly enthused about the dance her mother was giving her. But she was worried, too.

"I do want to ask Janet", she explained, "but it will take three or four days to get a letter back and if she can't come it will be too late then to ask someone else".

"Why not telephone her", suggested her mother. "It won't cost much. In fact", — as she found the out-of-town rates in the front of the directory — "it will cost after eight-thirty in the evening it will be only 45 cents".

So Betty called after dinner that night and Janet said "yes" right away. It was all settled in three minutes, and another young hostess had discovered how easy it is to use the telephone for out-of-town invitations.

Evening rates on "Anyone" (station-to-station) calls now begin at 7 p.m. Night rates begin at 8.30 p.m. Just give "Long Distance" the number you want—it speeds up the service. If you don't know the distant number, "Information" will look it up for you.
